MENTAL DEPRESSION IS BLAMED FOR ACT

Father Claims Body After It Lies in Morgue Three Hours.

THREATS OF SUICIDE ARE RECALLED NOW

ANNE ESTELLE ARTHUR.

Paralyzed with the horror of what they saw, half a dozen persons yesterday afternoon watched Miss Anne Estelle Arthur, 22 years old, of 1946 Calvert street northwest, drown herself in shallow water in the Tidal Basin, unable to aid her.

Borrowing a crutch from a colored cripple, Sergt. O. R. Reese and Private Robert Howell, of the U. S. Park police who were summoned by J. N. Lowden of 509 Fourth street southeast, a passing motorist, pulled Miss Arthur's body to the shore and attempted to revive her while waiting for the arrival of the Fire Department rescue squad and Emergency Hospital Ambulance.

After more than half an hour's attempt to resuscitate Miss Arthur had failed, she was pronounced dead by Dr. I. Rutkoski, of the Emergency Hospital. Less than a cupful of water was forced from Miss Arthur's lungs, and had any one of those who saw her floating made an effort to bring her body to shore the tragedy would not have occurred, police said.

Body Identified at Morgue.

The body was taken to the District Morgue, where it lay unidentified for more than three hours. Sergt. J. T. Langley and Private James Bennett, of the Harbor Precinct, located the girl's father, John C. Arthur, a salesman through the telephone number of Miss Arthur's music teacher, found scrawled on a slip of paper in her coat pocket.

Mental depression, incident to a nervous disorder suffered several months ago when she was temporarily dismissed from her position in the Interstate Commerce Commission, was given by her parents as the motive for the suicide.

On several occasions, Miss Arthur had told her parents and friends at the Collier Inn, 1805 Columbia road northwest, where she had been serving temporarily as a hostess, that she intended taking her life, but her parents and friends did not take the threats seriously.

She left her home early yesterday morning without telling her mother where she was going. She appeared to be in good spirits and no alarm was felt for her safety when she failed to return later in the day.

As far as police have ascertained, no one actually saw Miss Arthur throw herself into the Tidal Basin. Half an hour before her body was first seen floating near the sea wall adjacent to the polo field in Potomac Park she had been observed sitting alone on a park bench, where her hat later was found.

Her wrist watch stopped at 3:45 o'clock, however, and police believe this is the time the young woman committed suicide. Sergt. Reese and Howell were notified of the tragedy about fifteen minutes later. When they arrived at the scene, a half-dozen persons were standing near the sea wall, watching the body without making any effort to bring it ashore.

Was Popular at School.

Miss Arthur was graduated from the Business High School with the class of 1924. She was one of the most popular students at the school. Later, she studied at the Washington College of Law. The following verse, written by her classmates in the Business graduating class, attest to her popularity:

"So nice, so sweet, and yet so shy,
The little girl with the big brown eyes—
Anne came into our class one day,
And in our hearts she'll always stay."

Her parents said several young men had called on her but she had no tangled love affairs. She delighted in walks through Potomac Park, according to her parents, and it is believed she made up her mind to "end it all" while participating in her favorite recreation yesterday.

Several years ago a 7-year-old brother lost his life in an automobile accident. Miss Arthur's parents came to this city from Richmond, Va., about seven years ago.

Year and Half Is Given Mother as Rum Seller

Fort Smith, Ark., June 12 (A.P.).—Mrs. Joe Post, 50, mother of sixteen children, twelve of whom are living, tonight faced a year and six months' sentence in Federal prison and a $100 fine as the result of pleading guilty to a liquor selling charge.

Mrs. Post accepted full responsibility for an alleged retail liquor business said to have been conducted on the Post farm, 30 miles north of here. As a result, liquor charges lodged against her husband were nolle prossed.

POLICE QUIZ CHINESE WOMAN IN SLAYING

Reported to Have Run Rooming House That Was Meeting Place of Orientals.

DRUG RING IS SUSPECTED

Plunging deper into the mystery that shrouds the killing of Lee King, detectives last night arrested a Chinese woman, who is reported to have run a rooming house that was a meeting place for Orientals from various parts of the country, and resurrected the colorful history of the yellow man who was "taken for a ride" Tuesday night.

The woman was apprehended at 1214 D street northeast, according to members of the homicide squad who made the arrest. She was taken into custody with her two children, one a baby in arms and the other a 4-year-old lad dressed in the bizarre costume of his country.

The identity of the woman has not been established by detectives. She regarded the officers with a stoical countenance and answered questions with a rumble of unintelligible words. After efforts to break down her mask of taciturnity and apparent ignorance had failed, detectives took the woman and her children to the House of Detention. She will be questioned further at headquarters today with an interpreter assisting.

An all-night watch over the house where the woman was arrested was maintained last night. Police believed that other Chinese might have planned to meet at the house during the night. Authorities also entertained a suspicion that others might be lurking in the house or somewhere in the neighborhood. This latter theory was given some attention despite the fact that the house was given a thorough search. Police also believed that the arrested woman was connected with another house in the neighborhood, and last night's secret patrol covered a radius of several blocks. Another house under suspicion was reported to be in the 1300 block of the same street.

Last night's other important development concerned the identification of Lee King, the man who was shot to death in front of 1215 Eleventh street northwest late Tuesday night. Members of the homicide squad announced that he is really a Korean, Chong Hung by name, and not a Chinese, and that he used the name of Lee King as an alias.

Hung, according to one detective, left behind him a police record that covered the gamut of housebreaking, liquor violations, dope traffic and assault. He had been arrested on a number of occasions, it was said. For a long time Hung carried a gun, it was said, but

U. S. Starts New Inquiry Into Virkkula Death in Minnesota.

DEMAND THAT AGENTS BE DISARMED GROWS

Treasury Officials Declare Step Is Impossible; Point to Previous Order.

(Associated Press.)

New demands that the weapons of prohibition agents be silenced and that the Government provide funds for the dependents of those killed through misuse of firearms were made yesterday as Washington received news of the death of the second victim within the week.

The only reply from the Treasury Department was that disarmed officers could not cope with desperate smugglers who depended upon gun play for success. They again called attention to an order which forbade agents from using weapons except in self defense or to prevent the commission of felonies and said that to make the regulations more stringent would render ineffective the efforts of their agents.

The second death—that of Archibald Eugster, 21-year-old Detroit youth—occurred almost simultaneously with the announcement by the Treasury Department that the border patrolmen responsible for his death and that of Henry Virkkula at International Falls, Minn., would be held personally responsible if they were found to have used their arms except in self defense or to prevent commission of a felony.

Bill to Aid Dependents.

Meanwhile Representative Florence P. Kahn (Republican), California, was introducing a bill to provide $25,000 for the dependents of persons killed by prohibition agents who "wantonly or negligently" used guns except in self defense.

The proposal of Mrs. Kahn, who is opposed to the prohibition law, would make general the same legislation introduced yesterday by Representative Schafer (Republican), Wisconsin, to care for the Virkkula case.

In declaring investigations of the two shootings would be pressed, Assistant Secretary Lowman said officers had been warned in a year-old order of the department that they would be held strictly accountable for the results of any use of firearms that resulted in fatalities. Lowman also said members of Congress had made vigorous demands upon the department to disarm agents.

Investigations of the two shootings already have been initiated by the Treasury and Justice Departments and Lowman said the official report of the International Falls affair already was on the way to Washington. Protesting to the Treasury Department, Representative Pittenger (Republican), Minnesota, added his voice to those who were demanding full investigations of the International Falls affair.

Eugster's Slayer Cleared.

Detroit, Mich., June 12 (A.P.).—Prosecutor James E. Chenot and Representative Robert J. Clancy tonight absolved Jonah Cox, customs border patrol inspector, of all blame in connection with the fatal shooting here yesterday morning of Archibald Eugster, 21, on the banks of the Detroit River. The first story told by the youths after the shooting was that they were

Prince Scorns $1,000 A Month and Mrs. Corey

Louis of Bourbon Writes Friend That Proposed Wedding Is Off.

Paris, June 12 (A.P.).—Prince Louis of Bourbon, wandering cousin of King Alfonso of Spain, has changed his mind about marrying Mrs. Mabelle Gilman Corey, who had agreed to provide him with a home and $1,000 a month for pocket money.

Prince Louis decided he would like to have a better allowance, he wrote to a friend in Paris, who received the letter today.

Mrs. Corey has not heard from him in nearly two weeks, since the time originally set for the wedding, but she said this afternoon that the engagement had not been broken, though the wedding had been postponed until autumn.

She blamed the postponement on the weather, saying it was too hot in the summer at San Remo, Italy, where Prince Louis is now staying, for the Infanta Eulalie, mother of the prince, to attend the ceremony. The Infanta Eulalie is an aunt of King Alfonso and looks far younger than her 64 years.

The Infanta Eulalie told the Associated Press that the wedding had been "indefinitely postponed" and indicated her doubts that it would ever take place. She said nothing about the weather, except that she had returned to Paris recently from Spain because it had become too warm down there.

13 TEXTILE STRIKERS ACCUSED OF MURDER

Woman Among Those Who Face Capital Charges; State Frees 24 Men.

REST HELD FOR ASSAULT

Gastonia, N. C., June 12 (A.P.).—The list of prisoners held in connection with the slaying of O. F. Aderholt, Gastonia chief of police in a clash with strikers, dwindled tonight to 47, when George B. Mason, city solicitor, withdrew warrants charging 24 men with assault with intent to kill and released them.

His action followed waiving of preliminary hearings in recorder's court by those held and announcement by Tom P. Jimison, defense attorney, that he would bring habeas corpus proceedings in Mecklenburg superior court for the release of all. Thirteen of those still held, including one woman, are charged with murder and the rest with felonious assault.

Mason said he found no reason to hold the prisoners he released after examination of them late today.

All the prisoners are strikers from the Loray Mill or outside leaders who came to Gastonia to aid in the strike. Aderholt was fatally wounded last Friday in a clash with strikers when he, with three patrolmen went to the headquarters of the National Textile Workers Union to investigate reports of fighting and rioting there. He died the next day. The three patrolmen were wounded. Two of them are in hospitals but are said to be recovering.

Following waiving of preliminary hearing today, Solicitor John G. Carpenter announced he would ask Gov Gardner for a special term of court

U. S. MAY NOT SIGN REPARATIONS PACT

SCALING OF DEBT FOUGHT

By ALBERT W. FOX.

Although the United States Government will be represented at a conference to be held in London next month with a view to securing governmental action on the part of the reparations experts, it now appears probable that the American representative will not sign the agreement which the allies and Germany will draw up on the basis of the Young report.

There has arisen a divergence of opinion among officials here as to the course which the United States should follow, but the indicated procedure at the moment is that the American representative — probably Ambassador Charles G. Dawes—will be instructed to sign a special agreement affecting only the United States and Germany. This would cover the sacrifices which American taxpayers are being asked to make by scaling down the payments due from Germany, and would stand a chance of being approved by the Congress. The main agreement between the allies and Germany, which now includes the American sacrifices, would stand little chance of being approved by Congress, according to officials here who frankly admit the debt-cancellation features of the experts report. Some portions of the experts' report contained such pointed references to hoped-for debt cancellation on the part of the United States that even the American experts

Coolidge Likes His Job With Insurance Firm

New York, June 12 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—Without adding one jot to the ordinary jostlings and excitements of city life, Calvin Coolidge, insurance man and author, slipped into New York for the monthly meeting of the board of directors of the New York Life Insurance Co. today, and sat and talked for a few moments to a representative of the New York World News Service—the first informal interview he has granted since he retired from the Presidency three months and eight days ago.

Mr. Coolidge was at first reluctant to talk, remarking that he usually has "nothing to say to the newspapers any more." But in a moment he was prevailed upon to sit down in a large armchair and relaxing into a companionly smile, quite different from the unyielding facial mask he wore during his residence at the White House, he remarked that it was nice to come in and out of New York as a private citizen. Mrs. Coolidge did not make the trip from Northampton this time, he said, but he would rejoin her at their home tonight.

"I am merely here to attend the meeting of the board of directors," he continued, taking the lead in conversation. "Incidentally, I am seeking an artist. The State of Vermont has authorized a painting of my induction into office as President, showing my father swearing me in at his home in Vermont. No, I haven't decided upon the artist yet, but I have one under consideration."

"How does it seem to be in the business world?" he was asked.

"I like it," he replied promptly in the clipped phrase for which the most laconic of Presidents is famed. "I have had some connection with the New York Life for many years, and I am greatly interested in it. It makes it very pleasant for me to have this little business association, and meetings to attend when I come into New York. It occupies but little time, and I like it."

The conversation then veered to Mr. Coolidge's new writing interests. The reporter congratulated him upon the clean-cut vigor of his style, as displayed in his memoirs now running serially in a monthly magazine.

"I am glad you like it," the former President answered simply. "How long have you been in newspaper work?" he said, turning the tables and becoming the interviewer, and then—"Do you like to write?" he questioned, with an expectant look.

Perhaps it was disappointment that showed on his face for a moment, disappointment at himself, when the response told him there were persons who did like to write.

"I don't," came instantly, when the same question was fired back at him. "Oh, I don't find it so difficult to sit and write about something that I know

Beautiful Girls and Adults and Children for Character Roles Sought.

Motion picture producers are agreed that the discovery of new and suitable talent for pictures is one of the chief problems confronting the industry today. They are agreed as well that it is equally difficult for persons having natural ability as actors and actresses to obtain audiences with the producers.

Directors constantly desire unusual types, different faces, distinctive characters—men, women and children—who photograph consistently well and have talent for acting.

To help the motion picture industry and to help also those whose ability may never have been presented to those who can make use of it, The Washington Post, in conjunction with the Fox Washington Theater and the Fox Film Corporation, will hold a "Post-Fox

HARLAND URGES SPEED REDUCED AS GIRL, 8, DIES

Limit on Autos to Be Cut From 30 to 22 Miles on Connecticut.

ORDER TO GO IN EFFECT FOLLOWING PUBLICITY

Fourth Fatal Accident at Albemarle Crossing Stirs Protests.

CORONER'S JURY FREES DRIVER OF DEATH CAR

Reduction of the speed limit for traffic on Connecticut avenue from 30 to 22 miles an hour was recommended yesterday by Traffic Director William H. Harland in a memorandum to the District Commissioners.

Unless there is objection, Harland said, the lower speed limit will be put into "effect directly after some publicity has been given by the press to the change."

That the District Commissioners will approve promptly the reduction in the speed limit was indicated by correspondence between the traffic director and Commissioner Proctor L. Dougherty, showing that Dougherty had returned to Harland a recommendation the director made on April 16 for a reduction of speed at the intersection of Albemarle street.

Dougherty returned the recommendation "for further consideration relative to the possible elimination of the entire 30-mile speed zone."

Follows Death of Girl.

Harland's action yesterday was taken as a result of the fatal injury of 8-year-old Ann Woolard, 4514 Connecticut avenue, on the avenue just south of Albemarle street, on Tuesday night when she was struck by an automobile operated by Maj. Wyatt G. Franks.

A coroner's jury yesterday absolved Maj. Franks of blame for the girl's death, rendering a verdict of accidental death after hearing the testimony of many witnesses.

The child's death was the fourth fatal accident at the intersection in the last few years and, Harland said, "regardless of the sentiments of some motorists the general interests of the public demands that some action be taken immediately."

Residents Protest.

Traffic conditions at Albemarle street have been the subject of protests and pleas for traffic policemen, traffic lights, and reduced speed limit for months, many prominent residents of the neighborhood having called conditions to the attention of traffic officials with pleas for action.

Harland's proposal for a reduction in the speed limit yesterday was in direct conflict with the belief of the traffic advisory council. The council, on May 28, Harland told the Commissioners, in his memorandum, voted against any reduction in the 30-mile speed limit at Albemarle street.

Installation of a traffic signal light was recommended by the traffic council "as quickly as possible," but this step can not be taken at present because of a lack of funds, Harland told the Commissioners. Installation of a traffic signal light at the intersection when funds are available is planned, Harland said, adding that restoration of the 30-mile speed limit will be considered when light has been installed.

No Police Available For Post.

TARIFF DEBATE SHOWS SCHISM ON DEBENTURE

LATTER WOULD LIMIT BILL TO AGRICULTURE

House Expected to Defeat Export Clause in Farm Aid Vote Today.

THIRD PARTY IS AGAIN URGED BY BROOKHART

Recess Date Is Problematic as Senate Committee Opens Hearings.

By CARLISLE BARGERON.

With the way finally set for disposition of the farm bill, the sectional feeling that it stirred up began yesterday to creep out to meet the tariff bill.

Senator Borah, of Idaho, getting an admission from the Republican leader, Senator Watson, of Indiana, that he favored a general, instead of a limited revision of the tariff, exclaimed that the Congress had better adjourn, not recess, "right now." Senator Brookhart, of Iowa, again called for a third party and a President who will sign the debenture plan.

The tariff discussion, formal and informal, grew more heated every time the Progressives looked on the severity of the complexion of the Senate finance committee as it sat down for its first hearing on the House tariff bill. There was high protection written all across its grim face.

Recess Matter of Uncertainty.

There was not much for either the Senate or House to do save wait for today, when the House votes on the farm bill, but out of the welter of sulky idleness came considerable uncertainty about the recess, about when it will begin and when it will end.

From somewhere on the House side came the word that that body would not agree to a recess until a definite date for a vote on the tariff is set. Its origin was not directly traceable, but the Senate Democrats and Progressives greeted it with laughter, because of Speaker Longworth's well-known intense desire to get away for Europe.

It may be that the Speaker is prepared to sacrifice his anticipated trip, but in the absence of any definite word it was looked upon as merely a threat, part and parcel of a plot to force the Democratic-Progressive coalition to agree to a voting date. It is doubtful if it can be done.

Long Debate on Tariff Likely.

In the meantime, Senator Watson's plan is still understood to be to bring the Senate back about August 11, when the finance committee will have finished with the tariff bill. In a colloquy which the senator had on the floor with a flock of Democrats and Progressives, he agreed with Senator Borah that a general revision of the tariff would take until December 1.

It is the knowledge that consideration of the tariff will go along indefinitely, possibly into the next session, despite the assurance of cooperation by the Democrats, that make Watson anxious for an agreement for a date to vote on the measure.

Taunted by the Democrats as to whether his attitude for general revision did not conflict with the President's limited revision views, Senator Watson said he did not understand the President to mean that the revision was to be confined solely to agriculture. This would be manifestly unfair, he declared. It was the attitude of his questioners, Borah included, however, that their understanding of the cam-

JAMES J. DAVIS.

DAVIS TO LEAVE POST OF LABOR CHIEF SOON

FILENE MAY SUCCEED HIM

New York, June 12.—A Washington dispatch to the New York World says: James J. Davis will retire this year as Secretary of Labor to enter the primary campaign for Governor of Pennsylvania, clearing the way for a new era in administration of the Labor Department without a union member at its head.

Edward A. Filene, multimillionaire Boston merchant, almost since boyhood an employer of men instead of a worker, yet an outstanding labor philanthropist and international promoter of labor interests, will be the next Secretary if Mr. Hoover can persuade him to accept.

It is believed Filene would find the post would offer a still greater medium for extending his life work—better organization of production and distribution in the United States and Europe "in order to lower costs, eliminate waste, increase wages and profits and raise the general standard of living."

The Boston merchant is in the unique position of being acceptable to organized labor, although not holding a union card.

Among his two-score positions on Government and public agencies and commissions, Filene has been on the advisory council of the American Association for Labor Legislation, founded and directed the Twentieth Century Fund, organized to improve labor and industrial conditions; aided industrial relations work of the Boston Chamber of Commerce, and has served on peace commissions, Government war-time boards, and civic enterprise groups.

Under agreement with the President, Secretary Davis was to remain in the

Sir Esme's Successor May Be Gilbert Murray

Sir Gilbert Murray, noted professor at Oxford University, is being mentioned as a possible successor to Sir Esme Howard as British Ambassador to the United States. Unofficial word to this effect has been circulated in diplomatic circles here on the heels of reports that the Labor government is casting about for a new envoy to this country.

The name of Sir Gilbert Murray has been unofficially put forward here as a tentative feeler in American congressional circles. Inquiries have been entirely unofficial and no word has come through the British Embassay. The British Labor government would prefer to send a Laborite as ambassador, but in the event no suitable candidate is available would turn to the Liberals. Sir Gilbert is known as a Liberal.

High School Day Increased Half Hour by Board Order

Daily Closing Time Moved Up to 3 o'Clock, Beginning in September; Proposal to Withhold Diploma for Personal Conduct Is Held Over.

Longer school hours for Washington's 11,000 high school students was ordered yesterday by the Board of Education at its meeting in the Franklin building.

The order, which becomes effective with the opening of the next school term in September, lengthens the school day half an hour. Hereafter the students will remain in their classes until 3 o'clock instead of being dismissed at 2:30 o'clock, the customary hour which has been in vouge for a number of years.

The order was adopted upon recommendation of Dr. Frank W. Ballou, superintendent of schools, who pointed out the fact that the average class period in Washington's high schools lasts but 41 minutes. The length of the high school day in many other cities is much longer than that in Washington, school officers said.

Under plans to be put into effect, no new class period will be ordered. Instead each of the recitation periods, usually 5 in number, will lengthen about 6 minutes.

Dr. Charles F. Carusi, president of the Board of Education, was named to represent that body at the world conference on adult education, to be held at Cambridge, England August 22 to 29, inclusive.

The recommendation for adoption of a new rule, which would give school authorities the right to withhold the diploma from any student found guilty of immoral conduct, indecent language,

GIRL, 22, ENDS LIFE IN WATER OF TIDAL BASIN

Father Claims Body After It Lies in Morgue Three Hours.

THREATS OF SUICIDE ARE RECALLED NOW

Paralyzed with the horror of what they saw, half a dozen persons yesterday afternoon watched Miss Anne Estelle Arthur, 22 years old, of 1946 Calvert street northwest, drown herself in shallow water in the Tidal Basin, unable to aid her.

Borrowing a crutch from a colored cripple, Sergt. O. R. Reese and Private Robert Howell, of the U. S. Park police who were summoned by J. N. Lowden of 509 Fourth street southeast, a passing motorist, pulled Miss Arthur's body to the shore and attempted to revive her while waiting for the arrival of the Fire Department rescue squad and Emergency Hospital Ambulance.

After more than half an hour's attempt to resuscitate Miss Arthur had failed, she was pronounced dead by Dr. I. Rutkoski, of the Emergency Hospital. Less than a cupful of water was forced from Miss Arthur's lungs, and had any one of those who saw her floating made an effort to bring her body to shore the tragedy would not have occurred, police said.

Body Identified at Morgue.

The body was taken to the District Morgue, where it lay unidentified for more than three hours. Sergt. J. T. Langley and Private James Bennett, of the Harbor Precinct, located the girl's father, John C. Arthur, a salesman through the telephone number of Miss Arthur's music teacher, found scrawled on a slip of paper in her coat pocket.

Mental depression, incident to a nervous disorder suffered several months ago when she was temporarily dismissed from her position in the Interstate Commerce Commission, was given by her parents as the motive for the suicide.

On several occasions, Miss Arthur had told her parents and friends at the Collier Inn, 1805 Columbia road northwest, where she had been serving temporarily as a hostess, that she intended taking her life, but her parents and friends did not take the threats seriously.

She left her home early yesterday morning without telling her mother where she was going. She appeared to be in good spirits and no alarm was felt for her safety when she failed to return later in the day.

As far as police have ascertained, no one actually saw Miss Arthur throw herself into the Tidal Basin. Half an hour before her body was first seen floating near the sea wall adjacent to the polo field in Potomac Park she had been observed sitting alone on a park bench, where her hat later was found.

Her wrist watch stopped at 3:45 o'clock, however, and police believe this is the time the young woman committed suicide. Sergt. Reese and Howell were notified of the tragedy about fifteen minutes later. When they arrived at the scene, a half-dozen persons were standing near the sea wall, watching the body without making any effort to bring it ashore.

Was Popular at School.

Miss Arthur was graduated from the Business High School with the class of 1924. She was one of the most popular students at the school. Later, she studied at the Washington College of Law. The following verse, written by her classmates in the Business graduating class, attest to her popularity:

"So nice, so sweet, and yet so shy,
The little girl with the big brown eyes—
Anne came into our class one day,
And in our hearts she'll always stay."

Her parents said several young men had called on her but she had no tangled love affairs. She delighted in walks through Potomac Park, according to her parents, and it is believed she made up her mind to "end it all" while participating in her favorite recreation yesterday.

Several years ago a 7-year-old brother lost his life in an automobile accident. Miss Arthur's parents came to this city from Richmond, Va., about seven years ago.

After efforts to break down her mask of taciturnity and apparent ignorance had failed, detectives took the woman and her children to the House of Detention. She will be questioned further at headquarters today with an interpreter assisting.

An all-night watch over the house where the woman was arrested was maintained last night. Police believed that other Chinese might have planned to meet at the house during the night. Authorities also entertained a suspicion that others might be lurking in the house or somewhere in the neighborhood. This latter theory was given some attention despite the fact that the house was given a thorough search. Police also believed that the arrested woman was connected with another house in the neighborhood, and last night's secret patrol covered a radius of several blocks. Another house under suspicion was reported to be in the 1300 block of the same street.

Last night's other important development concerned the identification of Lee King, the man who was shot to death in front of 1215 Eleventh street northwest late Tuesday night. Members of the homicide squad announced that he is really a Korean, Chong Hung by name, and not a Chinese, and that he used the name of Lee King as an alias.

Hung, according to one detective, left behind him a police record that covered the gamut of housebreaking, liquor violations, dope traffic and assault. He had been arrested on a number of occasions, it was said. For a long time Hung carried a gun, it was said, but

Year and Half Is Given Mother as Rum Seller

Fort Smith, Ark., June 12 (A.P.).—Mrs. Joe Post, 50, mother of sixteen children, twelve of whom are living, tonight faced a year and six months' sentence in Federal prison and a $100 fine as the result of pleading guilty to a liquor selling charge.

Mrs. Post accepted full responsibility for an alleged retail liquor business said to have been conducted on the Post farm, 30 miles north of here. As a result, liquor charges lodged against her husband were nolle prossed.

U. S. Starts New Inquiry Into Virkkula Death in Minnesota.

DEMAND THAT AGENTS BE DISARMED GROWS

(Associated Press.)

New demands that the weapons of prohibition agents be silenced and that the Government provide funds for the dependents of those killed through misuse of firearms were made yesterday as Washington received news of the death of the second victim within the week.

The only reply from the Treasury Department was that disarmed officers could not cope with desperate smugglers who depended upon gun play for success. They again called attention to an order which forbade agents from using weapons except in self defense or to prevent the commission of felonies and said that to make the regulations more stringent would render ineffective the efforts of their agents.

The second death—that of Archibald Eugster, 21-year-old Detroit youth—occurred almost simultaneously with the announcement by the Treasury Department that the border patrolmen responsible for his death and that of Henry Virkkula at International Falls, Minn., would be held personally responsible if they were found to have used their arms except in self defense or to prevent commission of a felony.

Bill to Aid Dependents.

Meanwhile Representative Florence P. Kahn (Republican), California, was introducing a bill to provide $25,000 for the dependents of persons killed by prohibition agents who "wantonly or negligently" used guns except in self defense.

The proposal of Mrs. Kahn, who is opposed to the prohibition law, would make general the same legislation introduced yesterday by Representative Schafer (Republican), Wisconsin, to care for the Virkkula case.

In declaring investigations of the two shootings would be pressed, Assistant Secretary Lowman said officers had been warned in a year-old order of the department that they would be held strictly accountable for the results of any use of firearms that resulted in fatalities. Lowman also said members of Congress had made vigorous demands upon the department to disarm agents.

Investigations of the two shootings already have been initiated by the Treasury and Justice Departments and Lowman said the official report of the International Falls affair already was on the way to Washington. Protesting to the Treasury Department, Representative Pittenger (Republican), Minnesota, added his voice to those who were demanding full investigations of the International Falls affair.

Eugster's Slayer Cleared.

Detroit, Mich., June 12 (A.P.).—Prosecutor James E. Chenot and Representative Robert J. Clancy tonight absolved Jonah Cox, customs border patrol inspector, of all blame in connection with the fatal shooting here yesterday morning of Archibald Eugster, 21, on the banks of the Detroit River. The first story told by the youths after the shooting was that they were

Prince Scorns $1,000 A Month and Mrs. Corey

Louis of Bourbon Writes Friend That Proposed Wedding Is Off.

Paris, June 12 (A.P.).—Prince Louis of Bourbon, wandering cousin of King Alfonso of Spain, has changed his mind about marrying Mrs. Mabelle Gilman Corey, who had agreed to provide him with a home and $1,000 a month for pocket money.

Prince Louis decided he would like to have a better allowance, he wrote to a friend in Paris, who received the letter today.

Mrs. Corey has not heard from him in nearly two weeks, since the time originally set for the wedding, but she said this afternoon that the engagement had not been broken, though the wedding had been postponed until autumn.

She blamed the postponement on the weather, saying it was too hot in the summer at San Remo, Italy, where Prince Louis is now staying, for the Infanta Eulalie, mother of the prince, to attend the ceremony. The Infanta Eulalie is an aunt of King Alfonso and looks far younger than her 64 years.

The Infanta Eulalie told the Associated Press that the wedding had been "indefinitely postponed" and indicated her doubts that it would ever take place. She said nothing about the weather, except that she had returned to Paris recently from Spain because it had become too warm down there.

The career of her son, Prince Louis, has been a source of poignant sorrow to his mother. He was first expelled from Spain and then his Spanish titles were taken away from him. Subsequently he was expelled from France

13 TEXTILE STRIKERS ACCUSED OF MURDER

Woman Among Those Who Face Capital Charges; State Frees 24 Men.

REST HELD FOR ASSAULT

Gastonia, N. C., June 12 (A.P.).—The list of prisoners held in connection with the slaying of O. F. Aderholt, Gastonia chief of police in a clash with strikers, dwindled tonight to 47, when George B. Mason, city solicitor, withdrew warrants charging 24 men with assault with intent to kill and released them.

His action followed waiving of preliminary hearings in recorder's court by those held and announcement by Tom P. Jimison, defense attorney, that he would bring habeas corpus proceedings in Mecklenburg superior court for the release of all. Thirteen of those still held, including one woman, are charged with murder and the rest with felonious assault.

Mason said he found no reason to hold the prisoners he released after examination of them late today.

All the prisoners are strikers from the Loray Mill or outside leaders who came to Gastonia to aid in the strike. Aderholt was fatally wounded last Friday in a clash with strikers when he, with three patrolmen went to the headquarters of the National Textile Workers Union to investigate reports of fighting and rioting there. He died the next day. The three patrolmen were wounded. Two of them are in hospitals but are said to be recovering.

Following waiving of preliminary hearing today, Solicitor John G. Carpenter announced he would ask Gov. Gardner for a special term of court

U. S. MAY NOT SIGN REPARATIONS PACT

SCALING OF DEBT FOUGHT

By ALBERT W. FOX.

Although the United States Government will be represented at a conference to be held in London next month with a view to securing governmental action on the part of the reparations experts, it now appears probable that the American representative will not sign the agreement which the allies and Germany will draw up on the basis of the Young report.

There has arisen a divergence of opinion among officials here as to the course which the United States should follow, but the indicated procedure at the moment is that the American representative — probably Ambassador Charles G. Dawes—will be instructed to sign a special agreement affecting only the United States and Germany. This would cover the sacrifices which American taxpayers are being asked to make by scaling down the payments due from Germany, and would stand a chance of being approved by the Congress. The main agreement between the allies and Germany, which now includes the American sacrifices, would stand little chance of being approved by Congress, according to officials here who frankly admit the debt-cancellation features of the experts report. Some portions of the experts' report contained such pointed references to hoped-for debt cancellation on the part of the United States that even the American experts

New York, June 12 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—Without adding one jot to the ordinary jostlings and excitements of city life, Calvin Coolidge, insurance man and author, slipped into New York for the monthly meeting of the board of directors of the New York Life Insurance Co. today, and sat and talked for a few moments to a representative of the New York World News Service—the first informal interview he has granted since he retired from the Presidency three months and eight days ago.

Mr. Coolidge was at first reluctant to talk, remarking that he usually has "nothing to say to the newspapers any more." But in a moment he was prevailed upon to sit down in a large armchair and relaxing into a companionly smile, quite different from the unyielding facial mask he wore during his residence at the White House, he remarked that it was nice to come in and out of New York as a private citizen. Mrs. Coolidge did not make the trip from Northampton this time, he said, but he would rejoin her at their home tonight.

"I am merely here to attend the meeting of the board of directors," he continued, taking the lead in conversation. "Incidentally, I am seeking an artist. The State of Vermont has authorized a painting of my induction into office as President, showing my father swearing me in at his home in Vermont. No, I haven't decided upon the artist yet, but I have one under consideration."

"How does it seem to be in the business world?" he was asked.

"I like it," he replied promptly in the clipped phrase for which the most laconic of Presidents is famed. "I have had some connection with the New York Life for many years, and I am greatly interested in it. It makes it very pleasant for me to have this little business association, and meetings to attend when I come into New York. It occupies but little time, and I like it."

The conversation then veered to Mr. Coolidge's new writing interests. The reporter congratulated him upon the clean-cut vigor of his style, as displayed in his memoirs now running serially in a monthly magazine.

"I am glad you like it," the former President answered simply. "How long have you been in newspaper work?" he said, turning the tables and becoming the interviewer, and then—"Do you like to write?" he questioned, with an expectant look.

Perhaps it was disappointment that showed on his face for a moment, disappointment at himself, when the response told him there were persons who did like to write.

"I don't," came instantly, when the same question was fired back at him. "Oh, I don't find it so difficult to sit and write about something that I know

Beautiful Girls and Adults and Children for Character Roles Sought.

Motion picture producers are agreed that the discovery of new and suitable talent for pictures is one of the chief problems confronting the industry today. They are agreed as well that it is equally difficult for persons having natural ability as actors and actresses to obtain audiences with the producers.

Directors constantly desire unusual types, different faces, distinctive characters—men, women and children—who photograph consistently well and have talent for acting.

To help the motion picture industry and to help also those whose ability may never have been presented to those who can make use of it, The Washington Post, in conjunction with the Fox Washington Theater and the Fox Film Corporation, will hold a "Post-Fox

HARLAND URGES SPEED REDUCED AS GIRL, 8, DIES

Limit on Autos to Be Cut From 30 to 22 Miles on Connecticut.

ORDER TO GO IN EFFECT FOLLOWING PUBLICITY

Fourth Fatal Accident at Albemarle Crossing Stirs Protests.

Reduction of the speed limit for traffic on Connecticut avenue from 30 to 22 miles an hour was recommended yesterday by Traffic Director William H. Harland in a memorandum to the District Commissioners.

Unless there is objection, Harland said, the lower speed limit will be put into "effect directly after some publicity has been given by the press to the change."

That the District Commissioners will approve promptly the reduction in the speed limit was indicated by correspondence between the traffic director and Commissioner Proctor L. Dougherty, showing that Dougherty had returned to Harland a recommendation the director made on April 16 for a reduction of speed at the intersection of Albemarle street.

Dougherty returned the recommendation "for further consideration relative to the possible elimination of the entire 30-mile speed zone."

Follows Death of Girl.

Harland's action yesterday was taken as a result of the fatal injury of 8-year-old Ann Woolard, 4514 Connecticut avenue, on the avenue just south of Albemarle street, on Tuesday night when she was struck by an automobile operated by Maj. Wyatt G. Franks.

A coroner's jury yesterday absolved Maj. Franks of blame for the girl's death, rendering a verdict of accidental death after hearing the testimony of many witnesses.

The child's death was the fourth fatal accident at the intersection in the last few years and, Harland said, "regardless of the sentiments of some motorists the general interests of the public demands that some action be taken immediately."

Residents Protest.

Traffic conditions at Albemarle street have been the subject of protests and pleas for traffic policemen, traffic lights, and reduced speed limit for months, many prominent residents of the neighborhood having called conditions to the attention of traffic officials with pleas for action.

Harland's proposal for a reduction in the speed limit yesterday was in direct conflict with the belief of the traffic advisory council. The council, on May 28, Harland told the Commissioners, in his memorandum, voted against any reduction in the 30-mile speed limit at Albemarle street.

Installation of a traffic signal light was recommended by the traffic council "as quickly as possible," but this step can not be taken at present because of a lack of funds, Harland told the Commissioners. Installation of a traffic signal light at the intersection when funds are available is planned, Harland said, adding that restoration of the 30-mile speed limit will be considered when light has been installed.

No Police Available For Post.

High School Day Increased Half Hour by Board Order

Daily Closing Time Moved Up to 3 o'Clock, Beginning in September; Proposal to Withhold Diploma for Personal Conduct Is Held Over.

Longer school hours for Washington's 11,000 high school students was ordered yesterday by the Board of Education at its meeting in the Franklin building.

The order, which becomes effective with the opening of the next school term in September, lengthens the school day half an hour. Hereafter the students will remain in their classes until 3 o'clock instead of being dismissed at 2:30 o'clock, the customary hour which has been in vouge for a number of years.

The order was adopted upon recommendation of Dr. Frank W. Ballou, superintendent of schools, who pointed out the fact that the average class period in Washington's high schools lasts but 41 minutes. The length of the high school day in many other cities is much longer than that in Washington, school officers said.

Under plans to be put into effect, no new class period will be ordered. Instead each of the recitation periods, usually 5 in number, will lengthen about 6 minutes.

Dr. Charles F. Carusi, president of the Board of Education, was named to represent that body at the world conference on adult education, to be held at Cambridge, England August 22 to 29, inclusive.

The recommendation for adoption of a new rule, which would give school authorities the right to withhold the diploma from any student found guilty of immoral conduct, indecent language,

DAVIS TO LEAVE POST OF LABOR CHIEF SOON

FILENE MAY SUCCEED HIM

New York, June 12.—A Washington dispatch to the New York World says: James J. Davis will retire this year as Secretary of Labor to enter the primary campaign for Governor of Pennsylvania, clearing the way for a new era in administration of the Labor Department without a union member at its head.

Edward A. Filene, multimillionaire Boston merchant, almost since boyhood an employer of men instead of a worker, yet an outstanding labor philanthropist and international promoter of labor interests, will be the next Secretary if Mr. Hoover can persuade him to accept.

It is believed Filene would find the post would offer a still greater medium for extending his life work—better organization of production and distribution in the United States and Europe "in order to lower costs, eliminate waste, increase wages and profits and raise the general standard of living."

The Boston merchant is in the unique position of being acceptable to organized labor, although not holding a union card.

Among his two-score positions on Government and public agencies and commissions, Filene has been on the advisory council of the American Association for Labor Legislation, founded and directed the Twentieth Century Fund, organized to improve labor and industrial conditions; aided industrial relations work of the Boston Chamber of Commerce, and has served on peace commissions, Government war-time boards, and civic enterprise groups.

Under agreement with the President, Secretary Davis was to remain in the

Sir Esme's Successor May Be Gilbert Murray

Sir Gilbert Murray, noted professor at Oxford University, is being mentioned as a possible successor to Sir Esme Howard as British Ambassador to the United States. Unofficial word to this effect has been circulated in diplomatic circles here on the heels of reports that the Labor government is casting about for a new envoy to this country.

The name of Sir Gilbert Murray has been unofficially put forward here as a tentative feeler in American congressional circles. Inquiries have been entirely unofficial and no word has come through the British Embassay. The British Labor government would prefer to send a Laborite as ambassador, but in the event no suitable candidate is available would turn to the Liberals. Sir Gilbert is known as a Liberal.

Recess Date Is Problematic as Senate Committee Opens Hearings.

By CARLISLE BARGERON.

With the way finally set for disposition of the farm bill, the sectional feeling that is stirred up began yesterday to creep out to meet the tariff bill.

Senator Borah, of Idaho, getting an admission from the Republican leader, Senator Watson, of Indiana, that he favored a general, instead of a limited revision of the tariff, exclaimed that the Congress had better adjourn, not recess, "right now." Senator Brookhart, of Iowa, again called for a third party and a President who will sign the debenture plan.

The tariff discussion, formal and informal, grew more heated every time the Progressives looked on the severity of the complexion of the Senate finance committee as it sat down for its first hearing on the House tariff bill. There was high protection written all across its grim face.

Recess Matter of Uncertainty.

There was not much for either the Senate or House to do save wait for today, when the House votes on the farm bill, but out of the welter of sulky idleness came considerable uncertainty about the recess, about when it will begin and when it will end.

From somewhere on the House side came the word that that body would not agree to a recess until a definite date for a vote on the tariff is set. Its origin was not directly traceable, but the Senate Democrats and Progressives greeted it with laughter, because of Speaker Longworth's well-known intense desire to get away for Europe.

It may be that the Speaker is prepared to sacrifice his anticipated trip, but in the absence of any definite word it was looked upon as merely a threat, part and parcel of a plot to force the Democratic-Progressive coalition to agree to a voting date. It is doubtful if it can be done.

Long Debate on Tariff Likely.

In the meantime, Senator Watson's plan is still understood to be to bring the Senate back about August 11, when the finance committee will have finished with the tariff bill. In a colloquy which the senator had on the floor with a flock of Democrats and Progressives, he agreed with Senator Borah that a general revision of the tariff would take until December 1.

It is the knowledge that consideration of the tariff will go along indefinitely, possibly into the next session, despite the assurance of cooperation by the Democrats, that make Watson anxious for an agreement for a date to vote on the measure.

Taunted by the Democrats as to whether his attitude for general revision did not conflict with the President's limited revision views, Senator Watson said he did not understand the President to mean that the revision was to be confined solely to agriculture. This would be manifestly unfair, he declared. It was the attitude of his questioners, Borah included, however, that their understanding of the campaign promises was that the revision was to be for agriculture.

Borah asked Watson what cement had to do with agriculture, referring to the pending increase for that item. Watson agreed that it had none, but then he turned toward Senator Jones, of Washington, who was also on his feet protesting against anything but a very brief recess, and asked what shingles had to do with agriculture. Jones wants a shingles tariff.

Brookhart read his call for a third party from a prepared memorandum. Asserting that if the House voted the debenture down he would agree to the farm bill's passage without it, he declared that the campaign should be launched now for the debenture in the tariff.

"We should at once organize to put up a progressive candidate in every congressional district," he declared "and for senator in every State, who will fight for this program. If the debenture should be vetoed by the President, we should follow with a progressive candidate for President."

House Absentees Are Recalled.

Over in the House the leaders sent out a call for all absent members. There were 130 absentees the other day on the reapportionment vote. It is doubtful if that many are now away but many of them have gone home with the understanding that they would not have to vote on the debenture.

Of those who remained, groups gathered in the well of the House, it having adjourned after a brief session, forlornly and in many instances feelingly discussing the situation. Their appearance suggested huddled sheep.

There was considerable discussion, too, of who was responsible for their predicament. There was a general agreement that the President should have knocked the debenture for a cocked hat the first time the Senate agriculture committee went to see him to suggest it.

Debenture Vote Delay Deplored.

But inasmuch as he did not do that, there are many House members who believe they would be better off had the leaders let them vote when the debenture first came up. They had that opportunity before the great advertising campaign that the debenture has now enjoyed, before an issue developed out of it.

As an example, there is the plight of Representative Dickinson, of Iowa, whose senatorial aspirations have been encouraged by the powers that be. His explanation yesterday was that he would vote against the debenture because it was the only way to get a farm bill, which is probably true, but Dickinson made a speech against the merits of the debenture when the question first came up, and there will be plenty of ambitious men to tell the Iowa farmers about it in the elections next year, Senator Steck, for one.

And whether the Iowa farmers are deeply concerned about the debenture now or not, Dickinson will, to say the least, have another argument to meet on the hustings. His senatorial aspirations have received a serious jolt.

The best guess is that the leaders will be able to hold down any panic among the membership and beat the debenture by from 75 to 100 votes.

Labor and Farm Groups Urge Domestic Valuation

Organized labor and agriculture, at the hearing on tariff joined in the plea for a change to some form of domestic valuation.

Matthew Woll, a vice president of the American Federation of Labor, speaking for the American Wage Earners Protective League, favored American valuation and the raising of duties to protect domestic labor and industry.

Chester Gray, legislative representative of the American Farm Bureau Federation, declared in a statement filed with the committee that in view of the fact that adoption of some domestic valuation would necessitate a scaling down of ad valorem duties and that this would take a long time, the Tariff Commission should be authorized to make the adjustment in a period not to exceed fifteen months after enactment of the new tariff law.

ROOT'S PLAN VOTED BY LEAGUE COUNCIL

Project for Acceptance of U.S. Court Reservations Now Must Go to Assembly.

PRESS PARLEY IS CALLED

Madrid, June 12. (U.P.).—The League of Nations council today approved the Elihu Root project for acceptance of the United States reservations to adherance to the permanent Court of International Justice at the Hague.

The project, which was drawn up by the American statesman last winter, still must be unanimously approved by the league asembly in September before the United States Senate may consider adherance to the World Court.

The council instructed Sir Eric Drummond, secretary-general of the league, to communicate the approval to Washington in reply to the note of February 19, sent by former Secretary of State Frank B. Kellogg and paving the way for American adherence.

Drummond also was instructed by the council to convoke an international conference at Geneva, September 8, at which all signatories of the World Court protocol will be asked to adopt revised statutes which increase the number of judges from 11 to 15 and strengthen the court generally as a safeguard against international disputes.

The First International Conference for Progressive Codification of International Law will meet at the Hauge, March 13, 1930, another step toward strengthening the World Court. The United States and other nonleague members will be invited to attend.

Upon the report of Zaleski, of Poland, and as a result of the league's International Press Conference, of 1927, it was decided to convene an international conference this autumn for repreesntatives of all governments, newspaper publishers, and rail and aerial transportation and distribution.

All governments were urged to ratify the league's 1925 protocol for abolition of gas and germ warfare. It has been ratified by 13 states and nine others have promised to accept it.

Japan Likely to Sign Kellogg Treaty Soon

(Associated Press.)

Ratification of the Kellogg treaty for the renunciation of war by Japan, the last of the fifteen original signatory nations to sign, is expected by American Government circles within the next few days.

Approval of the treaty by the Nipponese government, which will bring into being the pact renouncing war as a national policy by most of the major nations, has reached final stages, advices reaching the State Department relate. Premier Tanaka has submitted the pact to the emperor, who has turned it over to the Privy Council for examination under the directions of the Japanese constitution in the case of treaties.

Two Maryland Youths Arrested as Fugitives

Two 18-year-old Charles County, Md., youths, George E. Thompson, stopping at 1408 T street southeast, and Alton Wheeler, stopping at 411½ G street northwest, were arrested last night by Detectives Sergeants Talley and H. A. Cole on fugitive from justice charges.

According to the detectives who arrested them, the pair are wanted there on charges of assault of a 12-year-old Charles County boy in a country-side strawberry patch, they said. They were turned over to officers representing Sheriff Robert J. Cooksy, of Charles county, Md., last night.

Green Flash and Yellow Bird Plan Early Hop-offs; Weather Clears.

Old Orchard, Me., June 12 (United Press).—After two weeks of waiting for favorable weather, the American and French transatlantic fliers plan to take off about 8 a. m. tomorrow.

Lewis A. Yancey, navigator of the American monoplane Green Flash, after talking with Dr. James H. Kimball, of the New York Weather Bureau at 11 o'clock tonight, said that both planes would get off in the morning.

Flying conditions over the Atlantic, Yancey said, were gradually improving and they felt that this was the break in the weather for which they had been waiting.

Dr. Kimball reported that there were clouds and low-hanging fog over part of the proposed routes, but that they were clearing up and conditions would be favorable in the morning.

The fueling of the French monoplane Yellow Bird began at 7 p. m. It was expected that the loading of the 1,200 gallons of gasoline and benzine into its tanks would be completed shortly after midnight.

As the fueling of the Green Flash, which carries but 540 gallons of gasoline, can be completed in three hours, work was not begun on the American plane until shortly after 11 p. m.

The fliers made their first attempt to get off for Europe two weeks ago. The French plane, after flying out ten miles, was forced to return to the beach because of a faulty mixture of fuel. The Green Flash sank into the soft sand of the natural runway on its attempt to take off, breaking a wheel and causing postponement of the flight.

According to tentative plans for the take-offs Thursday morning, the Green Flash, piloted by Roger Q. Williams, will take off first.

Lieut. Leonard M. Melka, Coast Guard aviator assigned as a convoy for the first 150 miles of the flights, will follow in a Coast Guard seaplane. Melka will keep in touch with the beach and Coast Guard vessels by radio, broadcasting the progress of the first few miles. This description of the start will be sent through the country over station WEAF's national radio hook-up.

The big yellow French monoplane, with Armeno Lotti, jr., Rene Lefevre and Jean Assolant in the cockpit, will follow the seaplane.

The American fliers expect to cover approximately 4,750 miles on the flight and the Frenchmen 3,400 miles. The distance flown over water is estimated at 3,150 miles for both planes.

BISHOPS OPTIMISTIC AFTER MEETING GIL

Mexican Prelates Received in Friendly Fashion as Ideas Are Exchanged.

RULER SEEMS PLEASED

Mexico City, June 12 (A.P.).—The first conference between President Portes Gil and representatives of the Mexican hierarchy of the Catholic Church looking toward a settlement of the government-church religious controversy, was held today. After an hour and a half the apostolic delegate, Mgr. Leopoldo Ruiz y Flores, Archbishop of Michoacan, and Bishop Pasqual Diaz, of Abasco, emerged from Chapultepec Castle with their faces wreathed in smiles.

None of the parties to the conference would discuss it, but Archbishop Ruiz did go so far as to admit that there had been "an exchange of ideas." When photographers aimed their cameras at him he said:

"Don't photograph my heart, because then you would have a statement which for the time being I can not divulge."

President Gil Friendly.

When this quotation became public the monsignor was asked by a close acquaintance whether he really said it and answered, "I certainly did."

Later the archbishop issued the following statement:

"With regard to the negotiations, I can only say that they have begun. President Portes Gil showed himself as very friendly and I am much pleased with his reception and his attentive consideration."

The statement was given out after he had been asked if he would like to send a message to his many friends in the United States and to the American people in general. Bishop Diaz was silent about the conference, referring all questioners to his superior.

The pleasure which the archbishop experienced from today's conversation with the president has given rise to optimistic hopes on the part of churchmen. There was a general opinion among them that if an agreement has not already been reached, it will be worked out in the near future.

Calles Avoids Conference.

Only the two prelates and the president took part in the conference. Gen. P. Elias Calles, former president, arrived at the castle while the meeting was in progress, but chose to depart rather than to interrupt it. The two bishops went to their secret residence place after they had posed for the photographer.

President Portes Gil received the newspaper men for a few minutes after the conference. He was in a happy mood, but would make no statement except to confirm the fact that the negotiations had begun.

Dancer Takes Poison, Believing It Medicine

Thinking that he was taking harmless headache tablets, Henry K. Norris, dancing master at the Columbia Studio of Dancing, 1107 F street northwest, intermittently took a large quantity of poisonous sleeping potion yesterday afternoon at his place of employment, and required treatment at Emergency Hospital when its effects overcame him.

Norris, who lives at 1300 Massachusetts avenue northwest, was taken to Emergency Hospital and treated by Dr. I. Rutkoski. His condition was not thought to be serious, and he later went to his home.

Bids for Five Cruisers To Be Opened Saturday

The Navy Department will open Saturday the bids for the first five cruisers of the fifteen-cruiser program authorized some time ago by Congress.

The bids were to have been opened about two weeks ago, but the date was postponed at the request of shipbuilders who wanted more time in which to make all the necessary calculations. Three of the new cruisers will be built in navy yards and two in private shipyards.

Street Car of Newsboys Catches Fire; One Hurt

A call for the Fire Department was turned in early last night when a trolley car of the Washington Railway & Electric Co. returning from Glen Echo with a load of newsboys who had been on an outing caught fire in the 5200 block of Conduit road northwest.

Wilson Creamer, 16 years old, 5012 Conduit road northwest, suffered a cut on the right elbow alighting from the car. None of the others were injured. Damage to the car was slight.

Branch Offices Seen By Charities Board

Members Vary Usual Meeting With District Tour of Inspection.

The Board of Managers of the Associated Charities varied its usual monthly meeting yesterday afternoon by making a tour of the different branch neighborhood offices of the society. After inspecting the second and third district offices located in the Social Service House, 1022 Eleventh street northwest, the board proceeded to the southwest office, at 617 M street southwest. It next visited the three joint offices at 225 Fourth street northeast which cover the Northeast and Southeast sections of the city, including Anacostia and Congress Heights.

The Northern District office at 701 Rhode Island avenue northwest, was the next objective, and then the party proceeded to 1516 Wisconsin avenue northwest.

Among the board members who made the tour were Carrol C. Glover, jr., chairman of the board; Judge William H. DeLacy, Franklin H. Ellis, Arthur Hellen, Miss Helen Nicolay, Mrs. John L. Proctor, Mrs. E. K. Norris, Miss Florence P. Spofford, Arthur D. Call, chairman, third district conference; John J. O'Connor, John Joy Edson, George S. Wilson, Elwood street, and the secretary, Walter S. Ufford.

OFFICIAL KIDNAPED, LEFT TIED TO TREE

Lieutenant Governor of Idaho Seized by Bandits; Two Rescuers Captured.

ONE IS SHOT BY THIEVES

Orofino, Idaho, June 12 (A.P.).—W. B. Kinne, Idaho's lieutenant governor, abducted by four automobile bandits this morning and left tied to a tree in the mountains after his car had been wrecked in a wild dash about the countryside, returned home uninjured tonight.

Meanwhile, one or two men who attempted to rescue him from the robbers was in a hospital with a bullet in his leg and a badly battered head and the other was leading a large posse of sheriff's officers, Boy Scouts and citizens in a man hunt. The lieutenant governor said he was attacked shortly after leaving Lewiston, Idaho, where he stayed last night.

Halted by Bandits.

"I had driven about a half-mile past Arrow," Kinne said, "when four men, all brandishing pistols, stepped out from the side of the road and halted me.

"When I stopped they climbed into the car, forced me to get into the rear compartment and lie down on the floor. While one of them stood over me, another drove off at terrific speed.

"When we neared Orofino and the car was traveling about 60 miles, a tire went out and the car hurtled off the road and overturned. None of us was hurt badly in the crash, but the car was wrecked.

"The men forced me to walk out into a field, and as they did so another car pulled up. Two men, who, I learned, were W. L. Tribbey, of the Idaho Building and Loan Association, and Paul Kille, a lumber worker, got out of the car, and as they walked toward us the four men turned their guns on them. Both men resisted.

Trio Tied to Trees.

"In the battle several shots were fired. Kille was shot in the leg and clubbed on the head with guns until he went down. Tribbey was beaten badly."

After the bandits had overcome the two would-be rescuers, they ordered the three men into Tribbey's car and drove into the mountains near Greer, the lieutenant governor added. In an isolated spot, some distance from the road, the robbers tied their three victims to a tree, leaving one of their number on guard. They drove off in Tribby's car.

"After about four hours the men returned," Kinne continued. "They threatened us with death if we moved within four hours, and then all left.

"In about fifteen minutes Tribbey cut himself loose and freed the rest of us, and we walked into Greer, only a short distance away."

Garageman Saw Kinne.

The lieutenant governor, who lives here, was in Spokane, Wash., yesterday, and was returning home when the suspected attack occurred. The overturned car was found about noon 2 miles from Orofino. A garage man at Ahsahka, 4 miles from here, reported that he had seen Kinne in a car with two other men driving toward Kendrick. The lieutenant governor appeared all right, he said, so he made no attempt to stop the car or to report the incident immediately.

The disappearance of Kinne was known at his home here, but no information as to his whereabouts or about the possible motive for an attack was divulged.

Sheriff's officers at Lewiston reported they thought the lieutenant governor had been kidnaped and prepared to institute an airplane search for him.

Man Who Annoyed Girls Sent to Jail

Prisoner, Released on Bail in One Case, Rearrested as Second Offender.

The persistency of Chris Evans Popolous, of 1760 Q street northwest, in paying alleged unwelcome attention to young women yesterday landed him in Police Court for the second time in as many days. His second appearance resulted in imposition of a $250 fine, with a 90-day jail alternative, by Judge Robert E. Mattingly on a disorderly conduct charge.

Fourteen-year-old Catherine Riley complained that Popolous annoyed her by attempting to "pick her up" as she was waiting for a street car at Eleventh and M streets northwest on Tuesday. The offense was committed, according to police, a few hours after Popolous was arraigned in the court on a similar charge.

Miss Edna Myer, a pretty blonde, complained that Popolous annoyed her and grabbed her arm as she was walking with a friend on Q street near Seventeenth street northwest on Monday. Popolous was held in $300 bail for a jury trial on an assault charge and a charge of disorderly conduct was continued as a result of Miss Meyer's complaints.

July Fourth Fete To Be on Big Scale

Committee Plans Fireworks Display at Monument and Exercises.

The Capital is to have the most impressive Fourth of July celebration in its history, if plans now being formulated by the citizens committee appointed by the Commissioners and headed by E. F. Colladay are carried out.

At a meeting held by the committee Tuesday at the District Building, it was decided to follow last year's program as presented on Independence Day, particularly at the Sylvan Theater, but to present this year's celebration on an even larger scale.

The general committee is to be enlarged. The executive committee for the celebration is composed of the chairman, E. F. Colladay, executive vice chairman, Miss Sibyl Baker; vice chairmen, Charles W. Darr, Dr. George C. Havenner, E. J. Murphy, and Maj. Gen. Anton Stephan; treasurer, Victor Deyber; and the following subcommittee chairmen: W. E. Johnson, Mrs. Virginia White Speel, E. C. Snyder, Gen. Charles P. Summerall, Harlan Wood and Capt. Ray C. Montgomery.

Woman Critically Hurt In Fall Down Stairway

Mrs. Dorothy C. Harper, 53 years old, of the Portland Hotel, Fourteenth street and Vermont avenue northwest, was seriously injured last night in a fall down a flight of stairs under repair at the hotel, according to a police report.

Picked up in an unconscious condition, Mrs. Harper was taken to Emergency Hospital. She was treated by Dr. Leon Gordon for a fractured skull, broken wrists, lacerations on her forehead and both legs. She later recovered consciousness. Her condition was regarded as serious.

Suicide Is Ascribed To Financial Worries

Financial worries were reported to be the cause of the suicidal death yesterday of Edward A. Creecy, 69 years old, of 760 Newton place northwest. Creecy shot himself in the right temple at the Liberty Gasoline Station, 200 Florida avenue northwest, which he owned.

Creecy left a note for his son, J. R. Creecy, of 2230 Minnesota avenue southeast, giving details of his financial troubles, it was reported by police. Creecy is said to have started his gasoline station recently, and it is reported that he lost money in the business. Coroner Ramsey Nevitt rendered a verdict of suicide.

Woman Is Arrested On Charge of Murder

Mary Edna Middleton, 22 years old, colored, of 1615 Kramer street northeast, was arrested yesterday on a charge of murder in connection with the death of her husband, Joseph Middleton, colored 19 years old, whom she is alleged to have stabbed during an altercation Tuesday night at their home.

Police said that the man was stabbed in the base of the neck with a pocket knife. He died yesterday at Emergency Hospital.

Man, Running for Car, Is Injured by Truck

Struck down by a truck when he was running for a street car, John Robert, 53 years old, of 1353 Oak street northwest, received a possible fracture of the skull yesterday afternoon. He was taken to Emergency Hospital where his condition was reported as serious.

The truck, according to police, was operated by Elmo C. Durkin, of 704 Q street northwest. The accident occurred at Fourteenth street and Pennsylvania avenue northwest.

Mallon Threatens Wider Secrecy War

(United Press.)

Paul R. Mallon, United Press staff correspondent, who recently obtained the secret roll call on the confirmation of Customs Judge Lenroot, which was first printed in The Washington Post, declared in a radio address over the National Broadcasting network last night that if the Senate continues its practice of considering presidential nominees in secret session its next roll call will be made available for public scrutiny in the same way the Lenroot roll call was made public.

In discussing the current political situation Mallon said there apparently is no senator now opposed to abandonment of the 140-year-old secret session practice.

A resolution to abandon the practice has been sanctioned by the rules committee and now is pending before the Senate.

Georgetown's 1899 Law Class Meets

Men Who Have Been Elevated to High Posts in 30-Year Interim Attend.

The thirtieth anniversary reunion of the Class of '99 of the School of Law of Georgetown University was held yesterday at the Carlton Hotel. Many members of the class came from distant parts of the United States to join after 30 years had elapsed, for this was the first reunion of the class since graduation.

Among the many men who held high official positions were noted James Higgins, of this class, deceased, who was Governor of Rhode Island; Representative A. Frank Lever, of South Carolina, author of the Lever Act; Jessie C. Adkins, Leslie C. Garnett, W. Gwynn Gardiner, Patrick S. Cunniff, Judge Ralph Given, Julius I. Peyser, Daniel W. O'Donohue, Alexander Heron and Patrick E. Kilcullen.

The class organized and will hold annual reunions. The following were elected officers for this year: Julius I. Peyser, of Washington, president; Ralph Given, of Washington, vice president; Lloyd M. Tillman, of Philadelphia, vice president; Patrick E. Kilcullen, of Scranton, Pa., vice president, and Harry H. Hollander, of Washington, secretary.

Others present were Gibbs L. Baker, W. Gwynn Gardiner, Leslie C. Garnett, J. A. Hicks, Frederick W. Krichelt, Charles A. Obenchain, Rutherford B. H. Lyon, William F. Columbus, Joseph D. Sullivan, William C. Sullivan, Leo P. Harlow, Alexander Heron, Michael O'Hanlon and George E. Edelin.

THREE ARE INDICTED IN WOOD PLOT CASE

WIFE IS AWAITING TRIAL

Detroit, Mich., June 12 (A.P.).—Ralph A. Wood, Wyandotte real estate dealer; Cecil W. Holt, and Herbert L. Sullivan today stood indicted for the slaying of Ambrose L. Hagerty January 9 in a police ambush arranged to catch the alleged plotters against Wood's life.

The indictments were returned by Circuit Judge Harry J. Dingeman after a one-man grand jury investigation into the shooting occupying more than four months.

Holt and Sullivan were arrested immediately after the indictments were filed. Wood, who was in Lansing at the time, had not appeared tonight, although his attorney promised to produce him. Arraigned before Justice of the Peace Arthur E Gordon this afternoon, Holt and Sullivan stood mute and pleas of not guilty were entered for them.

The slaying of Hagerty was the outgrowth of an alleged plot against Wood's life in which his wife, Mrs. Grace M. Wood, William Thompson, Hagerty and Taylor Pierce were involved. The three living are now awaiting trial in Circuit Court on charges of assault with intent to kill.

It was Cecil Holt, associate of the alleged plotters and acquaintance of Wood, who revealed the alleged plot. An ambush of 14 policemen and other officers was arranged for the night the attack on Wood was expected to be made. During a gun fight in front of Wood's office, Hagerty was slain. The grand jury investigation ensued.

It was alleged the attack on Wood was for the purpose of collecting his $50,000 insurance policy.

During the examination of Mrs. Wood and her codefendants it was revealed Wood had served a term in the Idaho Reformatory for "simple larceny." Mrs. Wood, Taylor and Pierce, arraigned yesterday, stood mute and a plea of not guilty was entered.

James E. Chenot, prosecuting attorney, said today he would prosecute both cases.

Capper Introduces Bill To Bar Alley Dwellings

A new bill to abolish alley dwellings in the District was introduced yesterday by Senator Capper (Republican), of Kansas, chairman of the Senate District committee. It is expected that hearings on the measure will be held at the regular session beginning in December.

The purpose of the bill is to eliminate disputed and complicated provisions in the existing law, provisions which have caused so many legal snarls as to make the law virtually impossible of enforcement.

The Listening Post

By CARLISLE BARGERON

THE real reason for the presence in the Senate of Henry J. Allen is now quite apparent. Known the country over as the more discreet member of that celebrated firm composed of himself and William Allen White—"Me and Bill," it is called—his appointment some time ago caused more than ordinary interest.

It was generally explained at the time that he was being appointed by a friendly governor to support the President, but that did not completely explain his presence, because senators are frequently being appointed and being elected to "support the President." That may mean something, and it may mean nothing at all.

It is very plain now, however, after his first two Senate performances, that he is the answer to the prayer of Senator Fess for a baby brother. That is the real significance of the most recent evolution of him.

For years the Ohio senator has been alone in the Senate. He has been in the august membership, but not of it, so to speak. He has had nobody to play with at all.

* * * *

THIS is not because the other boys will not play with him. He is not disliked. There is no reason, so far as they are concerned, why he should not rip and romp with them any time he should see fit.

But the senator was not brought up that way. Before he moved to Washington, there is the suggestion that his was a too-cloistered existence. Maybe he played too much with girls.

Whatever the reason, it is not within his mental make-up to understand those he is now among. For the life of him, he can not appreciate the bit of deviltry that is in all of them.

* * * *

FREQUENTLY, he has wandered shyly out to join them, and the indications are that he has had many a delightful time for awhile. But no sooner would he warm up and let himself loose than that diabolical streak in some senator would manifest itself in such form as a disagreement with the President or, perhaps, it is horrifying to suggest, an open break with him.

Involuntarily, the senator would draw back into his inner shell. He could not, simply could not bring himself to the point of countenancing such sacrilege. It is against his every teaching; every political thought that he has.

* * * *

AND so many mischievous fellows have come to the Senate of late that the senator gradually came to find himself alone, with not a soul to play with in the world.

Is it any wonder, then, that he prayed fervently day after day that the political gods send him a companion, some one with whom he, too, could romp and frolic, and have mutual understanding? Senator Allen is it. There is no question of that.

And no one could have looked upon the tender eyes that Fess fastened upon the Kansan as he performed the other day, without a touch of genuine sentiment.

Yes, there is a Santa Claus.

FORMER DRY RAIDER SLAIN FROM AMBUSH

Extensive Search Started in Alabama After Body Is Found in Woods.

ENEMY OF MOONSHINERS

Huntsville, Ala., June 12 (A.P.).—An extensive search was being made tonight for the slayers of R. Hugh Craft, former prohibition enforcement agent and Madison County deputy sheriff. The former officer was shot from ambush as he drove from his farm home, near Gurley, to Huntsville early today.

Craft's body was found slumped over the steering wheel of his car in a thickly wooded section at a spot about halfway between Gurley and Huntsville. The left side of his head had been almost torn away by a charge of birdshot fired from a shotgun. In addition, a pistol bullet had been fired into his forehead between the eyes at close range.

Footprints of two persons were found in the soft ground at the place from where the shotgun is believed to have been fired. Bloodhounds traced the tracks from Craft's automobile, which was wrecked against a tree trunk when its driver was shot, to a roadway across a mountain. The officers believed the slayers entered an automobile where the trail was lost.

During the several years he served as a prohibition agent and until his retirement a few weeks ago from the county forces, Craft waged an active campaign against moonshiners. Sheriff Riddick said Craft was known to have many enemies among liquor dealers.

The widow, one son and a daughter survive Craft.

Hepburn Nomination Is Protested.

(Associate Press.)

Senator Sackett (Reublican), Kentucky, said yesterday he had received a telegram from H. Green Garrett, of Louisville, protesting against the nomination of Emil S. Hepburn, of Kentucky, to be collector of internal revenue at Louisville. Sackett said he had filed the telegram with the Senate finance committee, to which the nomination was referred, and could not recall the basis for the protest.

MRS. C. C. RUMSEY'S BAGGAGE IS DETAINED

RICH WOMEN PAY FINES

New York, June 12 (U.P.).—Mrs. Charles Carey Rumsey, daughter of the late E. H. Harriman, joined the increasing ranks of wealthy American women whose baggage has recently stirred the curiosity of customs agents when she stepped off the French liner Ile de France today and was detained for three hours.

Almost simultaneously, a group of four Chicago women who arrived on the Leviathan last week were paying the largest noncommercial penalties on record—$27,036.58. The group brought in 32 pieces of luggage and swore to only $560 worth of dutiable articles.

One of them was Mrs. A. H. Loeb, mother of Richard Loeb, now serving a life sentence for the kidnaping and slaying of Bobby Franks. She was fined $9,837 penalties on undeclared apparel. The other Chicago women in the party were Mrs. Rose Loeb, Miss Virginia E. Bohnen and Miss Anna M. Katholing. They had been touring Europe since March.

Had Presented Statue.

Mrs. Rumsey was returning from Spain, where she presented to the town of Trujillo a statue of Pizarro, sculptured by her late husband, a polo player and artist who was killed in a match on Long Island several years ago. Federal officials said they believed Mrs. Rumsey had brought back more than $1,500 in undeclared wearing apparel and jewels.

Mrs. Rumsey seemed undisturbed by the long quizzing and inspection. She attributed her troubles to a jeweled handbag which she presented to Lucrezia Bori, Metropolitan Opera star and a fellow passenger, on the second day out.

Mme. Bori was also detained for a while. The diva objected to seizure of the jeweled bag, claiming that as a resident of a foreign country she is entitled to bring personal belongings into the United States. But customs agents held the bag and also sealed Mrs. Rumsey's luggage—four trunks and five small pieces—for further scrutiny.

A flood of tips from undercover Treasury agents in Europe is said to be responsible for the recent seizures. Jewelry dealers and other caterers to rich Americans—particularly in Paris—are being watched, it is said, and sales reported back to New York before the tourist returns.

Others Pay Fines.

Only yesterday a representative of Mrs. Estor Orr Munn, of New York, presented a check for $10,496.06 to retrieve undeclared frocks and other articles brought in last week on the French liner, Paris. The payment released six trunks and a strong box containing $450,008 in jewelry.

Another Chicagoan caught in the finely drawn customs mesh was Robert Lederer, who arrived Monday on the Hamburg American liner Albert Ballin. Lederer obtained return of his wife's and daughter's trunks by paying the collector of the port a $5,286 penalty.

traffic at the intersection in planned, however, Brown said. The number of men available in the Fourteenth Precinct and the Traffic Bureau, Brown said, would not permit the assignment of men permanently to the Albemarle intersection solely for traffic regulation.

Repeated complaints concerning conditions at the intersection have been made, according to the official file of correspondence forwarded to the Commissioners by Harland. Among those who called attention to the danger are Maj. Gen. Anton Stephan, Avon M. Nevius, vice president of the Riggs National Bank, and Hugo Worch, a music dealer.

The Forest Hill Citizens Association condemned conditions at the intersection at a recent meeting and named a committee to make every effort to bring about relief. This committee is scheduled to report to the association tonight.

Hoover Shakes Hands Of 1,091 at White House

President Hoover shook hands with 1,091 callers at the White House yesterday and posed for pictures with four different delegations. This midday activity set a record for exertion since the rush of inauguration week. It also required a slightly longer rest by the President after his belated luncheon.

Despite the physical strain, the White House gave no indication of eliminating this contact with public callers.

MOSS FUNERAL RITES TO BE HELD IN SOUTH

Court of Claims Judge Will Be Buried Tomorrow in Lafayette, Ky.

LONG IN FEDERAL SERVICE

Funeral services for Judge McKenzie Moss, of the United States Court of Claims, who died at the Emergency Hospital late Tuesday night, will be held at the First Presbyterian Church at Bowling Green, Ky., his old home, at 4 o'clock tomorrow afternoon. The body will be taken to Kentucky at 2:40 o'clock this afternoon. Burial will be at Lafayette, Ky.

Judge Moss was born in Christian County, Ky., January 3, 1868. He studied in public and private schools of his own State and at the Kent Law School in Chicago. He was admitted to the bar in 1893, and after practicing law at Bowling Green for several years, was elected to the Fifty-seventh Congress, serving one term.

In 1909 he was elected a circuit judge in Kentucky, and was reelected for a second term of six years in 1915, after which, in 1921, he was appointed assistant general counsel to the Alien Property Custodian, serving until January, 1922, when he was named general counsel.

He resigned from the latter post February 6, 1922, to become Deputy Commissioner of Public Revenue, in charge of estate and capital tax. After a little more than a year at this post he was made Assistant Secretary of the Treasury, resigning this post in July, 1926, to become an associate justice of the Court of Claims.

Judge Moss is survived by a son, McElroy Moss, with whom he made his home at 2410 Newark street, and by two daughters, Mrs. Eugene Semonun and Mrs. Arthur Howe, both of Philadelphia.

WILBUR MITCHELL'S RITES.

Members of Boy Scout Troop to Act as Pallbearers at Funeral.

Members of Boy Scout Troop, No. 52, will act as pallbearers this afternoon at the funeral of Wilbur Mitchell, 14 years old, senior patrol leader of the troop, who died Tuesday afternoon at the Episcopal Eye, Ear and Throat Hospital. Services will be held at 3 o' clock from the home of the parents, Mr. and Mrs. Rossel Edwin Mitchell, 7 East Melrose street, Chevy Chase, Md., with burial in Rock Creek Cemetery.

The boy was taken to the hospital six weeks ago for a mastoid operation and apparently was recovering when spinal meningitis set in, causing his death.

11 Capital Men Accept Reserve Appointments

Eleven Washingtonians have accepted appointments as second lieutenants in the Reserve Corps, the War Department announced yesterday.

They are Warren Britton Hughes, 232 Sixth street southeast; Richard Fenton Husband, 3456 Macomb street; Charles Vinton Koons, 419 Fourth street northeast; John Meredith Leach, 1219 Franklin street northeast; John Bernard Parsons, 3719 Van Ness street northwest; Edward Attilio Pisapal, 1820 Park road; Milton Monroe Price, 2804 Fourteenth street northwest; William Irvine Russell, 4349 Klingle road northwest; Louis Morgan Swingle, 923 Farragut street northwest; Ralph Charles Van Allen, 1511 Allison street northwest; Arthur John Wondrack, 224 C street northeast.

Filene Scoffs at Report.

Boston, June 12 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—Edward A. Filene refused to attach serious consideration to the report from Washington tonight that President Hoover would appoint him Secretary of Labor, after James J. Davis, the present incumbent, resigns.

Filene pointed out that he was a Democrat, that he openly supported former Gov. Smith in the campaign and that Mr. Hoover could find countless Republicans for the post.

"Although I am a Democrat and voted against Mr. Hoover," he said, "I am a very great admirer of what he is doing since he became President. The country ought to be congratulated, that at a time when economic questions are the ones that are deciding the prosperity and peace of the world we have a man of engineering mind as President, a man who evidently decides and acts on facts and not on his or any other person's opinions.

"If Mr. Hoover continues in the same way, he is likely to get a Democratic vote next time he runs for every Republican vote he loses.

"I am not, never have been, and never intend to be a candidate for any political office."

Day in Congress

SENATE.

Met at noon and recessed at 3 p. m. to noon today.

Majority Leader Watson declared that general revision of the tariff seemed inevitable.

Senator Borah (Republican), Idaho, said that if there were to be general revision the Senate should adjourn at once.

Adopted a resolution authorizing the sergeant-at-arms to release Thomas W. Cunningham, former sheriff of Philadelphia, in $1,000 bond if the Senate is in recess at the time he is turned over by the courts for questioning.

Adopted the Bingham-Simmons resolution appropriating $3,000,000 for Washington's municipal center.

Senator Brookhart (Republican), Iowa, said he favored the selection of a Progressive candidate for President and the formation of a Progressive party unless the debenture plan of farm relief is approved by Congress.

Chairman Norris, of the judiciary committee, proposed an investigation of the Federal court proceedings by which the Chicago Railway Co was placed in the hands of receivers in 1926.

Senator Dill (Democrat), Washington, demanded legislation to clear up the "uncertainty" caused by the Supreme Court decision in the O'Fallon case.

HOUSE.

Met at noon and adjourned at 12:10 to noon today.

House leaders warned that there would be no summer recess except for periods of three days at a time unless the Senate agrees to vote on the tariff bill in the fall.

Representative Florence P. Kahn (Republican), California, introduced a bill to authorize the payment of $25,000 to dependents of persons killed without justification by prohibition agents.

fired upon by Cox while they were on a fishing trip. Eugster's dying statement to authorities was that he knew nothing of liquor smuggling and was getting worms for fish bait when he was shot. Eugster died shortly before noon today.

Chenot gave out a statement exonerating Cox after Frank Cooper, one of Eugster's companions the night of the shooting, admitted that he, Eugster and others were running 35 cases of liquor across the Detroit River from Canada.

Representative Clancy talked with Walter S. Petty, assistant collector of customs, and afterward declared this was not another instance of the slaying of an innocent man.

John (Peajack) Wozniak, known to officers as one of the "big four" among downriver rum runners was quizzed by Chenot before Cooper confessed and was understood to have given the prosecutor "vital information." After 48 hours of grilling Cooper made the following statement:

"Four of us went over to Canada at 9 o'clock on Monday night and purchased 35 cases of liquor, paying $1,258 in cash for it. We ran it across the river and were pulling into the mouth of the River Rouge when the customs boat gave chase.

Liquor Thrown Over.

"Eugster threw ten cases of liquor into the path of the guard boat and they fired ten shots over our heads.

"We were losing ground in the chase when we struck a log under the bridge near the mouth of the river. The boat started to leak, so we beached it. We started along the shore on foot and ran into Cox. It was then that Eugster was shot, after Cox ordered us to halt. After Eugster fell Cox shouted at us to stop or he would shoot us too."

The Detroit Free Press tomorrow will say a giant combine of Great Lakes run runners was formed today to challenge the antismuggling agencies of the Federal Government from Buffalo to Mackinaw.

The Free Press will say a secret meeting of big operators from all points of entry along the Canadian border was held at Ecorse. A shuttle system was worked out whereby the traffic will be diverted to Lake Erie or Lake Huron whenever enforcement units are concentrated in the Detroit River.

Headquarters have been established at strategic points along the border and equipment at these points will be held in readiness to go into operation whenever the locality is comparatively free from Federal interference.

New Virkkula Inquiry.

International Falls, Minn., June 12 (A.P.).—While funeral services were held at Eveleth today for Henry Virkkula, slain by a border patrolman on a hunt for liquor smugglers, another investgiation into the shooting was launched on orders from Washington.

Oscar Dahly, Federal customs collector at Duluth, reached here today to start his investigation, which he said, would be entirely independent of three others already under way, directed by the county attorney, a special agent for the Treasury Department and the chief customs inspector here.

His investigation, Dahly said, would take approximately a week. He expected to interview Mrs. Virkkula, widow of the slain man, who was riding in the automobile with her husband when the patrolman, Emmet J. White, fired a shotgun charge into their car.

He also expects to interview White, whose report of the shooting charged that Virkkula failed to halt as commanded before he opened fire. Mrs Virkkula said she heard no command and that the firing started while her husband was attempting to stop the car.

While White remained in jail in default of $1,500 bail on a charge of second degree manslaughter, County Attorney David Hurlbert declared today he would resist any effort by Federal officials to take the case out of his hands. White's preliminary hearing is set for next Monday.

Grand Jurors May Act.

Hurlbert said he was satisfied the evidence revealed White guilty of culpable negligence, adding the case is not only "against a customs agent who acted without any kind of justification but against an intolerable system employed by those men in the enforcement of prohibition." He said he would ask a grand jury investigation at the proper time.

A series of tests with the shotgun used in the slaying were conducted today by Henry A. Roberts, special agent of the Treasury Department, to determine the spread of shot at various distances. The tests revealed a spread of eight inches at a distance of 20 to 25 feet as compared with a spread of 6¾ inches from the first charge which struck Virkkula's car. From this officials believe the first shot was fired at a distance of about 15 feet from the machine.

DRY KILLERS' MOVE FOR RETRIAL FAILS

SHOT NINE TIMES IN BACK

Louisville, Ky., June 12 (A.P.).—Two officers who killed a man in a prohibition raid were held to have been rightfully convicted when they appeared before Judge Charles I. Dawson in Federal court here today and asked for a retrial of their case, in the first trial of which each was convicted and sentenced to two years imprisonment.

The officers, Roy Miller, prohibition agent, and Clarence Gossett, deputy sheriff, both of Hopkinsville, Ky., were said to be the first ever convicted of killing a citizen when a case of that nature was transferred from a State court to a Federal court.

District Attorney Thomas J. Sparks, appearing as counsel for the defendants who shot Frank Sears in a raid on his Christian County still in 1925, asked a new trial on grounds that jurors in the first hearing, in Paducah, Ky., in April of this year, had been allowed to read newspaper accounts of the trial while they were still in doubt as to a verdict. He also said that there was new evidence discovered to the effect that Sears was ambidextrous. One of the points made by the prosecution, which was conducted by Commonwealth's Attorney John L. Grayot, was that the victim was left-handed. The officers had said they shot because Sears had a pistol in his right hand.

After asserting that the newspaper accounts of the trial had been fair and impartial, Judge Dawson said he believed the jurors hesitated only because they disliked to imprison men of the defendants' good reputation for killing "the sort of man Sears appears to have been."

Points made by the court in overruling the motion were that Sears was not under arrest when he was shot, that he was not charged with a felony, and that he was shot nine times in the back according to the evidence.

Judge Dawson said his attitude in such cases was to give the officers every possible protection the law affords, but that in the case in point he could not see how a jury could fail to convict. Sparks announced he would take an appeal, and the officers were allowed to remain at liberty on bond pending the outcome.

Dawes May Hasten To See MacDonald

London Believes Ambassador Is to Visit Premier in Scotland.

London, June 12 (A.P.).—Gossip in political circles tonight on the disarmament question centered on the possibility of a trip by Gen. Charles G. Dawes, new United States Ambassador, to Lossiemouth, in Scotland after his arrival in England on Friday. Premier Ramsay MacDonald is passing a brief holiday at Lossiemouth preparatory to the opening of the new Parliament and it is thought that Gen. Dawes may interview the prime minister regarding the visit. Mr. MacDonald is expected to make to Washington to see President Hoover in connection with Anglo-American questions.

It was reported this evening, but still without official confirmation, that the prime minister had definitely decided to visit Washington in August or September. It also was asserted that Gen. Dawes is bringing a personal invitation from President Hoover.

after hiring a car on the Riviera to bring him to Paris without having any cash in the royal jeans to pay the fare.

The prince is now at San Remo, where his mother bought him a house. His relatives in Paris say his presence there has been objected to by Princess Beatrice of Battenberg, mother of the Queen of Spain, for San Remo is a small place and it is difficult for two royalties to avoid meeting one another.

Mrs. Corey lives in the Chateau de Villegenis, at Verrieresle-Buisson, southwest of Paris. Prince Louis would not have been able to live in the chateau in any case, for the French expulsion order bars him from France.

Mrs. Corey has known the erratic prince twenty years. One of the prince's relatives said she declared she wished to marry the prince "in order to save him."

"But now it seems that Louis doesn't care for redemption," this relative remarked, adding that the prince had written that he was "through with this affair."

As to his method of writing, Mr. Coolidge was informative. He writes longhand now, he said. Yes, he had heard of persons who couldn't write a word until they sat at their typewriters and then the theme grew under their fingers well-nigh mechanically.

"They always said President Wilson had that habit," he added. "He used to use just two or three fingers at his own machine. At least, that was the story about Washington. I don't know whether it was true or not."

"I have dictated a great deal," he said, "but when I first went into public life I found that I could write my speeches better in longhand, alone, and I have returned to that method for my memoirs. I am just about finished with them now."

UNITED STATES MAY NOT SIGN AGREEMENT ON REPARATIONS

were unwilling to have them submitted for their signatures.

Signature of the main report by an American representative would necessitate action by Congress. But a new agreement between the United States and Germany putting into effect the reduced payments might be handled in a direct and simple manner by the Congress, and approval by both houses would make the new plan of reduced payments an effectual and legal substitute for the plan of payments now prevailing under the treaty of Berlin.

Officials here, who are interested in seeing the reparations problem solved and who commend the work of the experts, are nevertheless ready to admit two important facts in connection with the experts' report. They first admit that this report was made to order on a pattern designed to make cancellation of debts to the United States an outstanding feature. Secondly, they admit that there is little or no chance of the Congress of the United States ever approving an agreement based upon such a pattern. The only defense so far advanced by officials here in connection with this report is that it is an excellent thing for Europe and does not directly or indirectly involve the United States in any debt cancellation program.

One feature of the debt cancellation program is so boldly set out that the experts have made it an annex or appendix to the main report. This was done because it was so evident that American opinion would be aroused against this feature that the experts sought to forestall anticipated criticism by excluding pointed reference to debt cancellation from the main body of the report. This excluded feature, which is just as effective as if it had been kept in the body of the report, provides that Germany and the allies shall have a stipulated division of such amounts as the United States may later agree to cancel with respect to the allied debts owed to the American taxpayers.

America is not specifically named, the experts having eliminated the word America and the words United States during the last week of their deliberations in response to suggestions said to have emanated from Washington. The allied debts to America are referred to as "outgoing payments," and the veiled references to cancellation are carefully and cautiously made and are coupled with the condition stipulating that they only apply if outgoing payments are canceled.

But no changes in wording negative the fact that the report contains a conditional program for cancellation of debts to the United States. The last 22 payments which Germany is to make to the allies are calculated, almost to the last dollar, to conform to the payments which the allied nations must make under their debt agreements to America. A German program of payments covering this period fits the allied program of payments to America like a glove. Even minor details incorporated in the allied debt agreements with America are transferred to the last 22 payments which Germany is called upon to make to the allies under the experts' report.

In short, the experts have for the first time put on record a program embodying the debt cancellation plan which Europe has all along been insisting on and which the United States Government has consistently refused to consider. Even if sentiment in Congress were favorable now to any plan to approve an agreement based on the experts' report, the attitude of the Congress after a detailed study of the agreement would be most uncertain. A refusal by Congress to sanction the report would admittedly have an unfortunate effect.

However, it is accepted as axiomatic that no program fashioned after a pattern of debt cancellation can win approval of the Congress. A separate agreement with Germany to cover the scaling down of payments to America now appears to offer the only chance of a necessary congressional approval.

FRENCH SEND HELP TO REBELS' VICTIMS

Troops in Morocco Hope to Rescue 83 Seized by Savage Horsemen.

THIRTEEN DIE IN BATTLE

Rabat, Morocco, June 12 (U.P.).—Strong forces of French troops pushed across the muddy upper plateaus towards the Atlas Mountains tonight in a desperate effort to rescue 83 officers and soldiers who were carried away by savage horsemen after a battle with troops in the region between El Bord and Ait Yacoub.

There was little hope of saving the prisoners from torture or death, authorities feared, but every effort was being made to punish the rebels, who ambushed a French reconnaisance patrol, killing thirteen, wounding ten and capturing many of the survivors.

Gens. Vidalon and Freydenberg, of the high command in Morocco, started for the scene at once to take charge of the counter attack.

The bloody encounter, in which the ambushed patrol fought valiantly against the wild-riding raiders from the hills, was the first serious engagement in Morocco since Abd el Krim surrendered in 1926.

The attack was such as can befall only those troops of France's far-reaching military arm—the Foreign Legion. The fury with which the attackers swept down on the troops was prompted by a native hatred of Christians and of foreigners and the fate of the captives at the hands of the knife-swinging mountainers is precarious in the extreme.

A French force of 120 natives, commanded by Frenchmen, two companies of native machine gunners of 120 each, 30 mounted soldiers and a detachment of the Foreign Legion were victims of the attack, which was made by at least 400 horsemen and an unknown number of other natives.

The captured included 1 battalion chief, 5 officers, 11 noncommissioned officers and 66 native soldiers.

The thirteen dead included one officer.

The French patrol, which was ambushed by the mountain raiders, had started out recently on a series of maneuvers to complete pacification of the area.

Heavy rains hindered their progress through the upper plateau regions in inner Morocco, but they had advanced to a point between El Bord and Ait Yacoub. A number of friendly Moors had joined them.

Without warning the advancing troops were surrounded by the hard-riding rebels. The mountaineers rode through the smaller band of troops, firing muzzle-loading guns and swinging huge knives with great skill as they clashed at close quarters.

The French troops attempted to hold their positions and fight back the raiders, but without success. The only hope was to keep a semblance of order in their forces and retreat to the nearest fort.

The rebels were merciless in their assault and swept around the retreating troops, cutting off the force of 83 officers and men. The rest finally managed to reach safety, but only after a desperate fight.

Telegraph wires had been destroyed due to the current rainy season and the officers found it difficult to summon aid. Meanwhile the rebels had carried their prisoners away to the fastness of the Atlas Mountains, where they have every advantage in fighting the French troops.

Officials said the rebel movement appeared to be localized and probably would not develop in any other sections of the country.

HELD IN CHINESE MURDER

detectives stated last night that they had broken him of that habit.

Hung, it was further learned, was brought to this country as a small boy by a rich Chinese family. He was reared as a servant, but eventually drifted into the sideroads that led to the mirage of big money.

Had Summons in Pocket.

Hung had appeared seven times in Feedral court in Norfolk as a witness in narcotic cases, it was learned. At the time of his death he had a summons for Norfolk Federal court in his pocket.

In view of this information, the newest police theory is that the killing of King, alias Hung, was planned and carried out from Norfolk, and that it is possible that he was killed by men from Norfolk hired by narcotic interests in that place, and not by the two Chinese who were arrested yesterday and who are still being held. Through the arrest of the woman who ran the rooming house, police hope to learn if other Chinese, who might have been staying at her place, were connected with the killing.

Police point out that those who staged the killing made little effort to cover it up. They appeared openly at the man's house, it is pointed out, and made no attempt to disguise the fact that the victim went for his ride with Chinese. Police also point out that the automobile used for the ride was abandoned in a Chinese section of Washington.

The two Chinese arrested early yesterday were Ping Moy Ding, 32 years old, and Hume Bosing, 22 years old, both giving their address as 1101 Fourteenth street northwest. They were apprehended in a laundry on lower Pennsylvania avenue after police had used tear bombs to reach them, it was reported. Both Chinese attempted to resist arrest by brandishing guns, police said. Police learned that both Chinese under arrest had gained legal entry to the United States, Ding in 1922 and Bosing early this year.

The two under arrest will be held pending an autopsy over the body of Lee, alias Hung, to determine whether the bullet which killed him came from the gun found at the laundry where Ding and Bosing were arrested.

The murdered man lived at 1423 Eleventh street northwest, where he was summoned to take his last ride. Police expressed surprise last night that the Chinese underworld had not "gotten him" long before.

His body is at the District Morgue.

Announcement of the new service, on the line which had been giving night service between the points, was made by the National Air Transport Co. after Assistant Postmaster General Glover approved the extension.

PRINTS AT MURDER FLAT RADIO MAN'S

Marine Records Show Finger Marks Where Mrs. Patty Died Tallman's.

DATA SENT FROM HERE

Los Angeles, June 12 (U.P.).—Telltale fingerprints have positively identified William Tallman, handsome San Francisco radio operator and former marine, as an occupant of the apartment here in which Mrs. Virginia Patty, pretty banker's wife, was beaten to death with a brickbat, police announced today.

Some of the prints in the apartment were near a hole in the kitchen floor through which remnants of a woman's dress and miscellaneous articles of wearing apparel had been shoved, Chief of Detectives Herman Cline said.

Other marks were on a wine bottle, believed to have been emptied only a few hours before the apartment was vacated; on the wall of the kitchen, in which Mrs. Patty was beaten to death, and on furniture in the living room.

Through comparison of these marks with those of Tallman, sent here from the United States Marine Corps headquarters at Washington, Cline said he was convinced Tallman had lived in the apartment.

The missing radio operator's connection with the case previously had been almost entirely on circumstantial evidence.

The murder complaint against him was issued because of suspicion voiced by Frank Patty, the murdered woman's husband, and the landlady's identification of Tallman's pictures as that of the "Mr. Johnson" to whom she rented the apartment.

Tallman, questioned by newspaper men before he sailed for San Francisco o nthe steamer Admiral Benson and disappeared, denied connection with the murder.

Police obtained their first complete description of Tallman from marine headquarters. He enlisted in July, 1922, from Oakland, and was discharged in 1925. His discharge record listed him as undesirable because he was under age at enlistment. His character was given as fair.

New Raids Planned On Dog Race Tracks

Chicago Officials Are Undeterred by Court Petition to Halt Action.

Chicago, June 12 (A.P.).—A hearing in Circuit Court on a petition asking that State's Attorney John A. Swanson and Sheriff John E. Traeger be held in contempt of court for the raid on the Hawthorne, the Illinois and the Fairview kennel clubs, was postponed today until the question of the jurisdiction of the court on the injunction issued last year to prevent police from interfering with the dog racing tracks will be decided.

The tracks were raided and closed last night by police headed by Patrick Roche, chief investigator for the State's attorney's office. The fact that the injunction named Robert E. Crowe, then State's attorney, and Charles E. Graydon, then sheriff, and did not name their successors in office, was given by the State as a reason why the injunction should not be enforced.

Assistant State's Attorney John E. Northrup indicated the raids would be continued should an attempt be made to operate the tracks pending decision on the petition.

The Shield of Reliability

TOLMAN DRY CLEANING

DRY CLEANING is a part of our national economy. The cleanliness it affords makes for the longer life of the freshened garment or household article.

Dry Cleaning differs from laundering in that it is a process in which "dry" solvents are used instead of water in the cleansing of fabrics not suitable for laundering. It is called dry because the solvents used evaporate readily and contain no moisture.

Proper dry cleaning requires high-priced equipment, expert knowledge and the closest and most careful attention to detail.

As a symbol of the scientific thoroughness and up-to-dateness of Tolman Dry Cleaning Methods we have chosen "The Shield of Reliability." To it, in all confidence, you can entrust your most expensive garments.

OIL PARLEY CLOSES; NO POLICY ADOPTED

GOVERNORS DRAW PLANS

Colorado Springs, Colo., June 12 (A.P.). — Without having framed a policy for regulation of the oil industry, through an interstate pact, representatives of the country's leading oil producing States brought to an end today their preliminary conversations, to be resumed at the call of President Hoover. The meeting just ended was called by Mr. Hoover with a view to regulating production and eliminating waste in the industry.

As the meeting adjourned, the conference expressed its willingness to proceed with the question of conservation of the country's oil resources at the pleasure of the President.

Recess was taken on a motion of the representatives from the three largest producing States at the conference table—California, Oklahoma and Texas—which resolved that the main objective of the meeting could be be attained by further study of the problems involved.

Governors Urge Commission.

Four governors participating in the conversations read into the record a resolution suggesting the appointment of a commission by the executives of oil producing States and by President Hoover to consider the entire subject of conservation of the oil and gas resources of the Nation and report on their findings with recommendations for legislative and administrative action.

The governors who sat at the conference were: J. E. Erickson, Montana; W. H. Adams, Colorado; Clyde Reed, Kansas, and Frank C. Emerson, Wyoming, permanent secretary. The seven other oil producing States were represented by delegates appointed by their governors.

Immediately before recess the conference voted confidence in Chairman Mark L. Requa, of Los Angeles, appointed by Mr. Hoover, to preside over its deliberations and expresed its thanks to him for the efforts he had made to canvass the sentiment for and against the proposed interstate compact.

Executives Oppose Recess.

While the conference reached no conclusions, Chairman Requa observed that its nature was entirely preliminary to subsequent efforts to bring the oil-producing States into an agreement for the regulation of the petroleum industry so far as its production and economy were concerned.

The conference recessed on its third day after Chairman Requa had met with the four governors to consider a procedure proposal by Gov. Reed, and the immediate question of the compact had been turned over on a motion by Francis Wilson, of New Mexico, to the delegates from California, Oklahoma and Texas.

The four governors protested against recess and Gov. Reed said the three major producing States "dissented" from the views expresed in the governors' resolution. This drew from each of the three States a denial that they dissented.

5 Injured When Plane Nose-Dives Into River

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., June 12 (A.P.).—Five persons were injured, one seriously, as a passenger seaplane nose-dived into the Hudson River here late today. Observers said the plane's motor seemed to fail as it was flying low. The injured were identified as Clifford McMillan, Mineola, the plot; James Madison, of Blackwell, N. Y.; Arthur Syran, Blackwell; Harold Gibbs, New York, and a man identified only as Mr. Hess.

Madison was described at St. Francis Hospital here as probably fatally injured, while Gibbs' condition was said to be serious. The craft was believed operated by the Costal Airways, Inc., between New York City and Lake George.

Venezuela Sends Holland Regrets of Bandit Raid

The Hague, June 12 (A.P.).—The Venezuelan Legation here has been instructed to inform the Dutch government that the whole nation of the South American Republic greatly regrets the action of Venezeulan bandits who recently raided Curacca in the Dutch West Indies. The instructions came from the Venezuelan Minister, who is absent on a holiday, and the regrets were delivered to the Dutch foreign office today.

Screen Test Contest," full details of which will be announced in a full-page advertisement in next Sunday's Post.

This contest will offer an opportunity to every man, woman and child in the District of Columbia and nearby territory to have a screen test made, this screen test to determine whether or not those entered in the contest possess the personality and appearance necessary to enable them to enter the ranks of film players.

According to John E. Campbell, director-producer of the contest for The Washington Post, the problem on the part of the producer is how to discover new talent, and the problem on the part of the talent is how to get discovered. The hope of the producer lies in the ranks of the newcomers.

Beautiful girls of the Capital will have their chance to have screen tests submitted to the Fox Film Corporation and shown on the screen of the Fox Washington Theater. Men and women who may fit into character parts perfectly will have the opportunity of displaying their talent before the camera. Children of all ages and descriptions are needed by the film companies, and some Washington boy or girl may climb the ladder of fame through a screen test in The Post-Fox contest.

Any one is eligible for the contest. The rules which will be announced Sunday are not difficult to obey, and the contest is one which will attract persons of all ages.

There have been many stories of spectacular rise to glory in the motion picture industry. Many of the stars whose names adorn the billboards of the theaters at this time received their starts through contests similar to the one which The Post will present soon.

Washington's men and women, boys and girls, no doubt posses as much ability as many of those whose names are by-words when films are discussed. All they need is a "discovery," and that is what The Post and the Fox people want to give them.

Student Choir to Sail Today for Copenhagen

New York, June 12 (A.P.).—Traveling from Nebraska in a home-made motor bus to save money, 35 men and women of the Dana College Choir arrived today to take a steamer tomorrow to participate in the Second Lutheran World Conference at Copenhagen, Denmark, from June 26 to July 4.

The choristers, students at Dana College, a small Lutheran institution at Blair, Nebr., constructed their motor bus from spare parts and proved such successful manufacturers that they made the journey in just over two weeks. The bus was parked in a Brooklyn garage, pending the singers' return to this country.

INVITATION TO BISHOP TO SPEAK CANCELED

ACT FOLLOWED PROTESTS

Denver, Colo., June 12 (A.P.).—Protests filed by 19 ministers charging Bishop Francis J. McConnell, of the Methodist Church of Brooklyn, N. Y., with "modernism" led today to his removal from the program as keynote speaker of the annual meeting of the Northern Baptist Convention, which opens here Friday.

The majority of the protestants against Bishop McConnell's selection as the guest speaker of the convention are ministers of this city and State, many of whom were active in pastorates in this State when Bishop McConnell was a minister here.

The protesting ministers based their objections to McConnell on his "modernistic views" expressed in his book, "The Christlike God," published two years ago. The protest declared:

"We, as ministers, can not help feeling that the recognition by the Northern Baptist Convention of one who is widely known as holding these views (expressed on page 15 of "The Christlike God") would seem plainly to give approval to this position and erroneously represent what we find to be the unmistakable and unequivocal declarations of God's Word as properly held by the great Baptist denomination."

The protestants further declared that their protest was filed after adverse reports upon Bishop McConnell's selection had been received from all over the country.

Dr Avery A. Shaw, president of Denison University, at Granville, Ohio, has been selected to succeed Bishop McConnell as the guest speaker of the convention.

Employes of Restaurant See Snake, But He's Real

Chicago, June 12 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—The question whether the snake was real or just a moonshine vision was settled today.

Cooks and porters had seen it crawling around the basement of a restaurant near Adams and State streets. The police told them to quit drinking. But this morning a porter ran up from the basement of 31 West Adams and said the snake, 10 feet long, was taking the morning air. Traffic Policeman Goodenow ran down, and there, sure enough, was his snakeship, extended on the basement floor.

The policeman fired three times and killed the reptile. It measured 8 feet from tail to fang. It was a bull snake and is supposed to have escaped from some snake show.

As a ratter, it beats dogs and cats. All the basement rats not devoured moved out.

Havana, June 12 (A.P.).—The ten-passenger amphibian plane Washington en route from New York to Buenos Aires, made a forced landing on Chibo Beach, near Morro Castle, at the entrance of Havana Harbor, late his afternoon. There was a heavy rain when the landing was effected.

REBELLING STUDENTS STILL HOLD BUILDING

Mexicans Change Guards Every Eight Hours and Show No Evacuation Signs.

DIRECTING BODY FORMED

Mexico City, June 12 (A.P.).—The main building of the National University was still in the hands of striking students this afternoon. They took possession of it yesterday, locked the doors, hoisted a red flag and demanded the resignation of Antonio Castoleal, rector of the university.

No effort was made today to dislodge the strikers, and they gave no indication of any intent to evacuate the building. They change guards each eight hours, and have organized a directing council which sits in one of the class rooms.

The whereabouts of the university's rector is not known publicly. It was understood here that the students' demand for his resignation had not been communicated to him.

The student action was in protest against delay in putting into effect the measures giving autonomy to the university which were passed by the extra session of Congress a week ago. A committee has been drafting a decree to put this law into effect, but has thus far not reported to President Portes Gil.

Quebec Woman and Man Sentenced to Gallows

Hull, Quebec, June 12 (A.P.).—Philbert LeFevre and Mrs. Mary Viau, of Montpelier, Quebec, were convicted at the Hull assizes this afternoon of the murder of the woman's husband, Zephyr Viau, by poisoning.

They were sentenced to be hanged on August 23, at the Hull Jail. The jury was out only 25 minutes.

Facade of Leblanc's Salon at the Hotel Negresco—where Monsieur Albert attends fashionable women from all over the world.

"ERRONEOUS ideas on complexion care," according to Albert Leblanc, of Nice, "are very hard to correct. I am still occasionally asked: 'Shall I use soap on my face?' My answer is always a decided affirmative. It is quite wrong to suppose the skin can be thoroughly cleansed by other methods . . . And the soap I recommend is Palmolive!" So says Monsieur Leblanc, head of the Hotel Negresco Beauty Salon.

Monsieur Leblanc studied the art of cosmetics in Paris and practiced his profession there until 1912. He then came to Nice, where he has gained an excellent reputation in this smart Riviera resort.

All the experts agree

Leblanc is joined by an international group of authorities on skin care, all of whom advocate Palmolive as the best way to keep the skin healthfully radiant, glowing with under-the-surface color and life. Do this, they say: massage Palmolive lather tenderly into the skin for two minutes. Rinse, first with warm water, then with cold. And you're ready for make-up!

Enjoy it for the bath as well, since it costs no more than ordinary soap. Just one bar will assure you of its superiorities. Use it tonight!

MR. MACDONALD'S VISIT.

Ramsay MacDonald, temporary prime minister of Great Britain with a tenure of office dependent upon the support of parties that abhor his socialistic schemes, proposes to visit the United States soon to confer in person with President Hoover in the hope that a man-to-man talk will result in an agreement for freedom of the seas, reduction of naval armaments and a complete understanding between the two nations that will make for world peace.

Mr. MacDonald's intentions are the best in the world, and what he desires is desired with equal fervency by all Americans. But his proposed method of dealing with the problems at hand is impractical and can not but result in misfortune.

If Ramsay MacDonald and Herbert Hoover were autocrats who could make effective any agreement between them, with or without the consent of the political parties and peoples concerned, it would be wise for them to meet face to face, thrust away all differences, and make a treaty. But neither of them commands sufficient support to insure the ratification of any agreement they might reach. In the horizon looms a struggle between President Hoover and the Senate that will make farm relief and tariff disputes seem tame in comparison; that is the threatened attempt to force the United States into the League of Nations through its so-called world court. Great Britain recently claimed the right to have representatives of all its dominions as judges on the world court bench. Is it conceivable that two-thirds of the Senate would fail to object to an arrangement that would give seven British judges power to overrule one American judge in controversies vitally affecting the United States? If a Hoover-MacDonald treaty should appear simultaneously in the Senate with this world court project, would it stand any chance of ratification, when test votes have just shown that regular Republicans are a minority in the Senate?

The first criticism that would arise from any Hoover-MacDonald agreement would be that it was a personal and party matter, and political forces would immediately begin operations to rob both Mr. Hoover and Mr. MacDonald of any credit that would attach to a great peace-promoting treaty. Yesterday Mr. Brookhart, a so-called Republican in the Senate, declared for a third party composed of farmers and their sympathizers, and of course Mr. Brookhart hopes to become President himself as leader of the new party. Mr. Borah is as much opposed to American adherence to the world court protocol as Mr. Hoover is in favor of it, and then some. Mr. Hoover's mastery of the Republican party in actual administration is yet to be attained. The ambitious spirits in that party, who covet the Presidency even at Mr. Hoover's expense, and who are jealous of his popularity, would not hesitate to misrepresent a Hoover-MacDonald treaty as an "abject surrender to Great Britain," and not even the general approval of the treaty by the country would make its ratification sure.

On Mr. MacDonald's side the danger of misfortune in personally negotiating an understanding with the United States is even greater. His hold upon power is slighter than that of Mr. Hoover, who at least holds office until 1933. Mr. MacDonald may not remain prime minister longer than a test vote in the next Parliament. He stays on opposition sufferance only. His opponents have a common ground for action against him in their opposition to socialism. He might go home with the most admirable treaty, only to be overthrown on some extraneous question concocted for the purpose of robbing him and the Labor party of the credit for reaching an Anglo-American understanding.

The fundamental questions pending between Great Britain and the United States go deeply down into the roots of national feeling. Traditions on both sides stand in the way of an easy and offhand disposition of these questions. No agreement can be reached unless Great Britain actually abandons her ancient domination of the seas. Yet the new Parliament contains a majority of members who believe that control of the seas is the indispensable factor in Great Britain's existence. If Mr. MacDonald should make the glorious gesture of surrendering command of the seas for the sake of making friends with the United States, could he convert the majority of the people of the British Isles to his new gospel in the face of their conviction that their lives depend upon Britain's rule of the waves? The Labor party was outvoted by the Conservative party in the recent election, and Liberal support is necessary if Mr. MacDonald is to remain in power. All parties, it is true, laid stress upon the necessity of reaching an understanding with the United States, but none of them directed Ramsay MacDonald to come to Washington and hand over to the United States the abdication of Great Britain as mistress of the seas. Mr. MacDonald's party colleagues pledged themselves to work for revision of Great Britain's debt agreement with the United States, and Mr. MacDonald has announced that he will make debt revision one of his first objects. Does he indulge the hope that he can induce President Hoover to reduce the debt, and that Mr. Hoover will then add that extremely objectionable proposal to others that are already opposed by a quarrelsome and unmanageable Congress?

Unofficial assurances have gone forth that Mr. MacDonald would be most welcome if he should come to Washington to treat personally with President Hoover. Politeness forbids the utterance of any official intimation that his visit would be or could be unfortunate for both countries. Nevertheless the chances are a thousand to one against the consummation and ratification of an Anglo-American treaty on naval reduction and freedom of the seas as a result of a direct conference between the two heads of government.

If there were no other method of negotiating between Great Britain and the United States, it would be worth while to take all the risks that would attend a failure of the contemplated conference; but there are other and better methods, and a futile conference would make conditions much worse than they are now.

OIL INDUSTRY PROBLEMS.

The decision of the United States District Court in Chicago, holding that the Standard Oil Co. of Indiana and 51 associated companies are guilty of violating the antitrust laws by "pooling" oil cracking processes, will have far-reaching effect. The decision comes at a time when the oil industry is in turmoil, when overproduction has created economic chaos, and when the governors' oil conservation conference, called by President Hoover and in session at Colorado Springs, has broken up after hopeless wrangling. Something must be done to save the oil industry from economic ruin and to conserve the country's supply of oil. What can be done has not even been suggested, and along comes the court decision to further complicate the situation.

The decision will place the independent producer in a position of equality with the larger companies so far as his manufacturing costs are concerned. It will bring about a more comprehensive basis of competition and should result in lowered gasoline prices. But it probably will produce a situation in which the tendency will be toward increased production—a development that is not desirable in view of the fact that overproduction is already plaguing the industry.

In some respects the fact that Standard Oil of Indiana has monopolized the patent rights to the cracking process, and has allowed others to use them only upon the payment of heavy fees and with agreements to portion out marketing territory, has not been an unmixed evil. The company contended that the processes were of great benefit to the public in that they materially lowered the price of gasoline, and that the pool not only did not constitute a monopoly but that it saved large costs by eliminating litigation. Without considering the merit of this argument, it is obvious that the functioning of the pool kept nonmembers from producing on an equal basis with members. Hence, the pool served to keep down independent production.

On the other hand, increased production should bring about lowered prices, and the public is entitled to the lowest price that can be had through improved manufacturing and marketing methods and unrestrained competition. Possibly some of the independents who have been unable to produce at a profit because they could not obtain the use of the cracking patents will be found to be in a better economic position when they do obtain use of the process than others who are now marketing at a profit. With the demand for oil more or less stabilized, the weaker companies will be forced out of the picture. The immediate effect of the release of the patents will be a general realignment of the industry into weak and strong organizations.

The need for control of production, however, will be as great, if not greater, than before. In 1928 domestic production was 87,600,000 barrels in excess of demand, and the surplus on hand was further increased by the importation of 79,583,000 barrels. Until production is more closely adjusted to demand the oil industry can not become stabilized, and until the industry is organized on an evenly functioning economic basis there is no hope that prices will level off at a figure fair to producer and consumer alike.

CROWDING INTO APARTMENTS.

Residents of Washington, who have witnessed the rapid growth of apartment houses in the last few years, do not need to have pointed out for them the widespread tendency in America to desert one-family dwellings. A recent building report showed phenomenal growth of apartments here. The same tendency exists in every American city, much to the regret of many people.

A recent report of the Bureau of Labor Statistics, covering 257 cities in the United States, shows that in 1928 homes were provided in new buildings for 388,768 families. Nearly 54 per cent of these families were housed in apartments, 35 per cent in one-family dwellings, and 11 per cent in two-family houses. In 1921 only 24 per cent of the new homes provided were apartments, and 58 per cent were detached houses. In the single year 1928 the increase of apartments over one-family dwellings was almost 6 per cent. In the larger cities 67 per cent of all residential construction is in the apartment class, and in New York and Chicago the percentage runs as high as 80.

The automobile has made a considerable change in housing problems and stimulated development of suburban homes. It was widely predicted that when the American public had acquired a reasonable supply of automobiles attention would turn to suburban homes. But the prediction has not been fully carried out. Many beautiful suburban areas have been developed, but they are open only to the well-to-do class. A family with a moderate income can not afford to purchase a suburban home and drive an automobile to the city every day. But there are doubtless other reasons why persons are crowding in apartments.

Traffic conditions in the larger cities make it impractical for the motor-owning city dwellers to drive to their place of business each day. Those who pictured the cities of the future as expansive areas of detached homes failed to consider traffic congestion and parking difficulties. It appears that the tendency is in the opposite direction. More and more people are now living close to their business, and are using their automobiles to escape to the country and parks in spare moments.

There is much to be regretted in the relative decrease of single family homes, with their lawns, flowers, yards, gardens, their ampler air supply and room for play. Regardless of their convenience, apartment houses can hardly have the homely atmosphere or the sentiment that attaches to a separate dwelling. But the United States is becoming a land of cities, and with further concentration of population the tendency will be for continued development of apartments. The only hope of the millions that will inhabit these "cliff dwellings" is that they will be made as attractive and healthful as possible.

In Montreal, where international league baseball is played, the batteries are announced in both French and English. It wouldn't be a bad idea if the megaphone-wielder at Griffith Stadium would make his announcements also in English.

Des Moines court is debating whether bay rum is a shaving lotion or a beverage. Those who tried it in the early days of prohibition know that it's a shaving lotion.

THE CURSE OF NOISE

From the New York Times.

Pity the Board of Aldermen if the New York Antinoise Society succeeds in carrying out its plan to go before the city fathers and, for the space of two minutes, subject them to a select combination of New York's commonest noises! This particular form of direct evidence should impress the board with the fact that New York's din is not, as some of the poets would have it, a "muffled city roar." It is, rather, one long cacophony, an orchestra of percussion instruments in the form of gas engines, riveting machines and rattles; of wind instruments in the guise of automobile horns and factory and steamboat whistles, and of voices including everything from cats' meows, up or down, to amateur singers and boisterous children or their parents making "whoopee." The whole is bound together by the discordant tones of 500,000 loudspeakers.

What to do about it not even the Antinoise Society seems to know. Doubtless within a generation or more the public will have either gone mad or developed protective deafness, or have insisted that scientists devise ways of muffling the noises that are the by-products of machines of various sorts, from brakes and exhausts to squeaks and rattles. Present city dwellers in America—and rumor has it that the Londoners, though protesting, are much the same—seem to accept the city's din as inevitable. They seek to develop voices able to be heard above the roar. They work with a riveting machine at their elbows—or just across the street—and deplore the failure to substitute electric welding. They throw things at the alley cats engaged in what the mayor's committee politely terms "nocturnal seances," but one generation of alley cats passes and another comes in its place.

Political philosophers comfort us with the observation that it is not so long since "offenses to the nose" were as common in our cities as they still are in the remote regions of China, where there is no drainage or system of refuse disposal and the streets are filled with decaying litter. Yet these things, in the name of public health, are now under control. There are indications that "offenses to the eye" in the form, notably, of unsightly rural billboards, are coming within the police power. It may be that the public will in time educate lawmakers to suppress offenses to the ear as readily as offenses to the nose and the eye—including much more than unmuffled motors, excessively loud bells and gongs and other sounds which are at present covered by laws and codes.

If the Antinoise Society wishes to make its demonstration before the city fathers truly effective, it should announce beforehand that it has arranged for a "hearing" on such and such a day at a stated hour. If a few of the thousands who today suffer from the unnecessary noises of the city can manage to be present they will add their own voices to the din that is being prepared for the delectation—or terrorization—of the Board of Aldermen.

Delaying the Rescue.

PRESS COMMENT.

He'd Clean Up.

Akron Beacon-Journal: Some go-getter might do well in Hollywood with a mate-of-the-month club.

Can't You Guess?

Cincinnati Enquirer: If the campaign was on we would like to see the results of a straw vote in the wheat belt.

Lucky Man.

Watertown Times: A lucky man is one who, when he has one foot on a banana peel, has his other foot on a wad of gum.

Probably.

St. Louis Post-Dispatch: The Dawes plan was largely the work of Owen D. Young, so the new reparations agreement will probably be known as the Morgan plan.

How, Indeed?

Boston Transcript: Now one of the experts declares that juries should be composed of psychologists, but how, in that case, would it be possible to get a jury to agree?

Hangs Eternal.

Minneapolis Journal: A political writer says that "the fate of the Democratic Party is hanging in the balance." It must have been hanging there ever since President Buchanan left office.

Ha, Ha!

New York Evening Post: This is the beginning of the season during which almost every fellow who goes to Europe thinks it excruciatingly funny to send back a wine list to some one he knows must stay here.

Come on, John.

Detroit News: The British candidate for Parliament who set out to kiss 28,000 fair constituents during the campaign was reelected, it develops, and John Gilbert can begin at any time now to run for President.

Proof Conclusive.

Rochester Democrat and Chronicle: They have arrested a speeder in Detroit who turns out to be deaf and dumb and has never had an accident. Maybe this is evidence that the greater danger to motor drivers comes from the back seat.

What to Do?

Ohio State Journal: One of the great problems now confronting Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh is what in the world to do with that huge oil painting of four life-sized girls and a lot of other scenery that President Gil of Mexico gave her for a wedding present, but maybe she'll have a good big attic and we don't suppose there's much danger of Mexican visitors.

The New Idea.

Baltimore Sun: With all its cultural values, ancient Greek civilization lacked the practical quality of the modern which is shown in the report that a movement is on foot to convert Mount Olympus into a national park of the American type. The idea is that foreign tourists will invade this abode of the ancient gods by the thousands when they are assured that rest houses and dining facilities are adequate. Greece once used to try to propitiate the Olympians with elaborate sacrifices and without much profit; but if it can get tourists to go there, the sacrifice can be omitted and the profit will be sure.

The Biggest Building.

New Orleans Times-Picayune: A building is now going up in Akron, Ohio, so huge that therein fourteen football gridirons might be laid out and played on simultaneously, and all on a single floor. The doors to this structure are so large that when one is thrown open it is as though one were turning aside the entire facade of the big bank skyscraper at Common and Baronne streets. We are even told that because this edifice is a vast hollow it develops cyclonic windstorms in its interior. And what is this mastodon of structures? It is the new factory in which two dirigibles for the United States Navy will be constructed, those and other big gasbag airships.

A Hick Is One Who Feels Superior to a Stranger.

By ROBERT QUILLEN

YEARS ago a little Western town employed a school teacher who was a gentleman. He used correct grammar; he bathed regularly; he was uniformly courteous and modest; his clothes were clean and pressed.

At once he became a topic of conversation, for the natives of the little town were unlike him. They chewed tobacco and splashed the by-product on sidewalks and floors; they washed infrequently and were sour with stale sweat; they smelled of the stables; their speech was full of vile epithets and they told lewd stories and guffawed in appreciation of their own wit; they were ignorant and nasty and provincial.

Do you suppose these natives welcomed the opportunity to follow a good example and make themselves more civilized? Indeed they did not.

They saw in the stranger nothing more than a queer foreigner. They mocked his correct speech. They laughed at his cleanliness. They ridiculed and hooted and guffawed, and if any one had told them they were not superior to the stranger by every standard used to measure manhood, they would have been genuinely astonished. "Not better'n him!" they would have cried. "Why, the danged little dude can't even cuss."

Perhaps you think the natives of this village too provincial to be typical of America, but wait. What happens when a Spaniard or Frenchman or Englishman enters any American village that is far from tidewater? The community is amused. Small boys and coarse young men ridicule him openly, and adults are scornfully condescending or frankly hostile.

He is a stranger—a foreigner—and therefore an inferior. He deserves no courtesy because his speech and dress are unusual. He is a suspicious character.

You think that an exaggeration. You think none but the ignorant and the ill-bred are so intolerant.

Observe, then, the attitude of more civilized people who can forgive a stranger's unusual speech and dress. They still find cause to think him inferior, and either scorn or hate him because his religion is unlike theirs or because men of his land have two wives or because he believes in communism.

The world traveler finds gentlemen in every land and learns to respect the wisdom and honor of men who are unlike him in color, creed or custom.

The provincial is intolerant because he is ignorant. He is like Anderson's hen that despised the cat because it did not lay eggs. Content in the muck of his barnyard, he scorns eagles because they fly.

The outlander fares badly because now as always it is unprofitable to cast pearls before swine.

(Copyright, 1929.)

THE WOMAN BUYS.

America's purchasing agent—the woman—buys 85 per cent of everything that is sold in this country; and her buying wisdom and buying whims decide the fate of the gigantic industries which have made our prosperity. This is the conclusion of Helen Christine Bennett after talking with some of the nation's greatest business leaders, set forth in McCall's for June.

Eighty-five per cent of the buying in this country is done by women. Our national income for 1928 totaled somewhere between 90 and 100 billion dollars! In the spending of this 90 billions women have by far the larger part. Women control almost all American industry. Not quite, but almost. Not only that, but I found the governmental departments of our country very anxious, that every last one of us women should know the extent of our powers. I found every leader of the industrial world whom I visited equally anxious. Beyond this they asked me eagerly, those heads of governmental departments and grand moguls of industry alike, to please try to secure your active cooperation with them for the building of all industry for the future!

Women decide the kind of autos that are made, the style of radios, the construction of the new kind of telephone receivers, the kind of furniture used not only in homes but in hotels and public buildings, the way clothes are washed in laundries, the kinds of goods carried by all stores, their styles and colors and the method by which they are sold.

Economic experts, merchants, advertising analysts and the heads of the great industries are fairly agreed that women buy at least:

98 per cent of all silk sold in the country.

98 per cent of furniture and home furnishings.

90 per cent of all jewelry.

82 per cent of all groceries.

82 per cent of all goods sold in department stores.

90 per cent of all laundry service.

67 per cent of all leather goods.

CANNONBALLS.

A specimen of one of nature's most curious rock formations, a "cannonball," almost perfectly spherical, weighing 1,150 pounds and measuring about 33 inches in diameter, has been placed on exhibition in the department of geology at Field Museum of Natural History in Chicago, Stephen C. Simms, director of the museum, announced recently, says the New York Times.

The specimen comes from Mobridge, S. Dak., on the Cannonball River, so named because of the frequency with which sand concretions of this type unreported from any other locality, occur along the banks of the river. It is a gift to the museum from the Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul & Pacific Railway and is an especially large specimen.

From Dr. Joseph P. Connelly, professor of mineralogy at the South Dakota State School of Mines, Rapid City, the museum has received the following explanation:

"The sand concretions known as 'cannonballs' come from the Laramie formation, belonging to the Cretaceous system of rocks." (The Cretaceous period is estimated to date back to between 95,000,000 and 115,000,000 years ago.) "They are weathered out of the sandstone along the course of the Cannonball River. They are merely those parts of the general sandstone formation which are richer in iron oxide, this enrichment in iron taking place through the segregating action of ground waters depositing about a nucleus of some sort. They are nearly spherical because deposited in a nearly homogeneous sandstone formation. They retain the original stratification of the sandstone bed, but they weather more slowly than the sandstone because of their superior hardness."

No Doubt.

New Orleans Times-Picayune: "Tears contain a chemical, lydozime, said to be one of the strongest germicides known to science." No doubt someone will now undertake to produce the stuff commercially from the sap of the weeping willow.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Henry Ford's Suggestion That Doctors Advertise Is Dissected and Condemned.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In a series of newspaper articles, Henry Ford is giving his impressions of the problems that face the country and his suggestions as to how they may be solved.

In the first article, Mr. Ford took up the medical profession. Originally, he believes, there was good reason for surrounding the practice of medicine with secrecy, but today the need for reticence has been outgrown. Doctors should advertise, says Mr. Ford. Like any other business man, they should tell the public of their achievements and their abilities.

In suggesting that doctors advertise Mr. Ford strikes at one of the fundamental principles of the code of medical ethics. The medical profession frowns upon advertising and self-exploitation in the belief that once countenanced it would lead to quackery and fraud.

There is, perhaps, a more important reason why doctors should not advertise. Several years ago, when the "etiquette" books were flooding the country, Americans generally were affected by a severe attack of "manner consciousness." Those whose conduct in society was irreproachable were led by publicity into believing that they were boors; they purchased "etiquette" books to improve their manners and ended by becoming only self-conscious. Were the medical profession to embark upon an advertising campaign, the damage that is being done by advertising doctors today and patent medicine venders would be magnified. The public would be led to believe that it suffered all the ailments that would be luridly described. Business for doctors would be increased, but it would be increased at the expense of the well-being of the public.

Mr. Ford, in suggesting that doctors should advertise, shows that he has given the matter only superficial consideration and that his mind is not of a type fitted to cope with problems outside the field of mechanics.

C. P. RHODES.

Public Should Have Free Insurance to Indemnify Families of Victims Murdered by Government Officials.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The Treasury has been stirred to action by the criticism arising as a result of the two recent killings by prohibition agents. Assistant Secretary Lowman, in charge of prohibition enforcement, has ordered comprehensive investigations of both the Virkkula and Eugster cases, and he promises, if it develops that the agents under investigation fired otherwise than in self-defense or to prevent commission of a felony, the Government will make no defense. The Treasury will not countenance careless use of firearms, he says, adding that "overzealous agents" will not be permitted to remain in Government service. In view of the fact that the damage has been done, there is little more the Treasury can do in these specific cases.

But what of the families of the victims? Virkkula leaves a wife and two little children. Eugster was only a boy, but he was a bread-winner. The survivors of these victims of official murder are entitled to compensation at least in the amount contemplated in bills introduced by Representative Schafer and Florence Kahn. Mr. Schafer's bill would authorize the payment of $25,000 to Mrs. Virkkula. Mrs. Kahn's bill directs the Treasury to pay $25,000 to the dependents of every person "wantonly or negligently killed by any prohibition officer not acting in self-defense," making it the duty of the House claims committee to review each case to determine whether or not it comes within the scope of the law. The measure, says Mrs. Kahn, is neither wet nor dry, but is designed merely to relieve the want and suffering of those upon whom the Government agents have brought disaster.

Citizens of the United States are entitled to free insurance against violence done by dry agents. Every one's life is in danger when he so much as ventures forth on the public highways. The universal insurance plan as provided for in the Kahn bill should be put into effect.

HENRY G. PAYNE.

Traffic Should Be Staggered During Rush Hours of Office Employes.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: An army of approximately 65,000 Government clerks and business employes simultaneously, afoot and in vehicles, must twice daily course through the main business section of Washington, officeward and homeward bound. A movement of an army this size at one and the same time, each integral unit having its own individual course to pursue, makes a most unusual and unnecessary congestion. Each group spends valuable time waiting for other streams of individuals or cars to have right of way.

It is estimated each Government employe loses from fifteen minutes to a half hour daily due to this congestion. Walking to work these days is no longer a healthful pursuit, as the air is polluted at these hours from monoxide gas, some cars emitting smoke and gas enough to pollute the air for half a block.

The jam, the waits, the dangers and the noise and gases are a burden to the physical and mental makeup of human flesh.

Could not the various departments, the Traffic Bureau, the business men, the transportation companies and the Health Department arrange some better regulation for these thousands, some of whom find this their only hour out of doors?

Could not the movement of this army of people be staggered so that units could start moving at intervals of every five minutes from 8:30 to 9 and from 4 to 4:30 daily? F. M. D.

Italian Weather Raises Alarm—What Is Mussolini Up to?

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I was amazed just now when told by a man in the street that "this is Italian weather." Can nothing be done to protect our home weather industry? Is Mussolini working our export debenture on Italian weather? ALARMED.

EVENTS OF INTEREST IN SOCIETY CIRCLES OF CAPITAL

Society Steps To Strains Of Bridal March

By JEAN ELIOT.

SOCIETY nowadays seems to be timing its steps to the familiar strains of the wedding march. There were several marriages of special interest here yesterday and one or two out of town, with groups of Washingtonians "among those present."

Mrs. Elliott Strauss and Mlle. Helen Heilmann went to Philadelphia to be present yesterday afternoon at the wedding of the former's cousin, Mr. Archbold Van Bueren, son of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Van Bueren, of New York, to Miss Margaret Plummer Ziegler, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Carl A. Ziegler.

In Harrisburg, Pa., there was the wedding of Miss Jane Olmsted, daughter of Mrs. Vance McCormick, to Mr. Arthur Amory Houghton, jr., son of Mrs. Arthur Amory Houghton, formely of Washington, and nephew of Mr. Alanson B. Houghton, one time U. S. Ambassador to Great Britain. Mr. and Mrs. Alan G. Rinehart, son of Dr. and Mrs. Stanley Rinehart, were members of the bridal party. The latter, formerly Miss Gratia Houghton, is a sister of the bridegroom. Miss Olmsted's father was the late Representative Olmsted, of Pennsylvania.

Miss LeFevre Married To Mr. Gordon L. Luke.

One of the sweetest brides of yesterday's grist was Miss Hester Ann LeFevre, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Howell LeFevre. She made her debut in the winter of 1927-28 when she was one of the most popular of the season's debutantes. Her marriage to Mr. Gordon Lindsay Luke, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Kieth Luke, of Irvington-on-Hudson, N. Y., took place at 4 o'clock in St. Margaret's Episcopal Church. Afterward there was a reception at the home of Mr. and Mrs. LeFevre on Tracy place.

The picturesque little church was decorated with pink rambler roses and peonies. The rector, the Rev. Dr. Herbert Scott Smith, officiated. There was soft violin music during the ceremony and for the wedding marches the organ was augmented by the violin.

The slim young bride wore the gown in which her mother was married. It was fashioned of ivory satin, with a deep yoke of rare old rose point lace and there were cuffs of the same lace on the long, tight sleeves, with the train cut in one with the skirt. She wore a veil of exquisite Limerick lace, mounted on tulle, which fell from a Juliet cap of pearls, and carried an ivory prayer book, with a shower of lilies of the valley. Her father gave her in marriage.

A bit too young to be maid of honor, her sister, Miss Sally Mitchell LeFevre, was present as a "special attendant." Mrs. Sidney Stillman Blake, of Philadelphia, was matron of honor, and there were two maids of honor, Miss Exilona Hamilton and Miss Florence Wetherill. The other attendants were Mrs. Gustavo Bustamante, of Havana, sister of the bridegroom; Mrs. Allen Rushton, and Miss Adelaide Henry.

They wore gowns of green tulle, with trains and graceful cape draperies falling from the shoulders—the maids and matrons of honor wearing a slightly lighter shade than the other attendants. Their hats were of natural colored Neapolitan straw, turned up off the face. Little Miss Mitchell wore a miniature copy of the same model in chartreuse tulle. All carried bouquets of yellow daisies and delphiniums.

Mr. Adam Kieth Luke, jr., of New York, was best man for his brother, and the ushers were Mr. Barton Sayles, Mr. J. Kermit Birchfield, of Roanoke; Mr. Herbert S. Van Kirk, jr.; Mr. Sidney S. Blake, Mr. Oliver M. Walker and Mr. Walter W. Hatch.

Among the guests from other cities here for the wedding were Mr. and Mrs. D. E. Fisher, of Swarthmore, Pa.; Mrs. William C. Lenhart, of New York, and Miss Elizabeth Ransley, of Philadelphia, the guest for a few days of Miss Dorothea Lane.

Mr. Luke is in business with his father, who owns large mills at Tyrone, Pa., and the young couple will make their home in the little town for the next two years. They will spend their honeymoon abroad. For her traveling costume the bride is wearing a beige and chartreuse ensemble, with smart accessories to match.

Mr. Percy McCoy 2d Marries Miss Maury.

The marriage of Miss Marguerite Louise Maury, daughter of Mr. John Franklin Maury, to Mr. Percy Beach McCoy 2d, son of the chief justice of the District Supreme Court and Mrs. Walter I. McCoy, took place at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon at All Saints' Church, in Chevy Chase, the Rev. Dr. Henry Cocke and the Rev. Dr. George Dudley officiating. The church was decorated with cybodium palms, ferns and standards of spring flowers. Mr. William E. Taylor, organist, played and Miss Gretchen Hood sang.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of ivory satin on modified princess lines. Her cap of rose point lace had been worn by her great-grandmother. Her veil was of tulle. She carried orchids and lillies of the valley.

Mrs. Oscar A. Troup was matron of honor and the bride's only attendant, wearing a gown of Nile green lace, a horsehair picture hat and a corsage of marguerites.

Mr. William Bayne 3d, of Boston, was best man. The ushers included Mr. Oscar A. Thorup, Mr. Victor Cahili, Mr. Robert B. Cummings and Mr. William M. Woodward, of Baltimore.

A reception was given after the ceremony at the home of the bride's father. Mrs. Maury wore a gown of ecru lace and Mrs. McCoy, mother of the bridegroom, was in gray georgette.

Mr. McCoy and his bride will be at home after September 1 at 3509 Morrison street, in Chevy Chase. Mrs. McCoy wore for traveling a black and white flat crepe ensemble and a black bakou hat.

Among the out-of-town guests pres-

Chevalier, Secretary of the Legation of Panama; Senor Dr. George de la Barra, First Secretary of the Legation of Bolivia; the Director General of the Pan-American Union, Dr. L. S. Rowe, and Dr. William Manger, of the staff of the union.

They will be met in New York by a special committee, who will escort them to the Pan-American Hospital, where an inspection will be made. Immediately after the visit to the hospital the trustees will tender a luncheon for them. The party will return to Washington this afternoon.

President Has Several Guests at White House

The President and Mrs. Hoover have as their guests Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Fisher, of Detroit, and Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Sloan, of New York. Mrs. Hoover's sister, Mrs. J. H. Large, is again at the White House, accompanied by her son, a student at Mercersburg Academy.

The President and Mrs. Hoover had as their guests at dinner at the White House last night the Speaker of the House and Mrs. Nicholas Longworth, Secretary of the Treasury Andrew W. Mellon, the Secretary of Commerce and Mrs. Robert Patterson Lamont, Senator Reed Smoot, Senator and Mrs. George H. Moses, Mrs. Ruth Hanna McCormick, Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Fisher, Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Sloan, Mr. and Mrs. William Hardy and Mrs. J. H. Large.

Mrs. Hoover entertained at tea at the White House yesterday afternoon, when her guests were again ladies of the congressional circle.

Mrs. Edward Everett Gann was the ranking guest at a luncheon given yesterday by Mrs. Royal McKenna at the Mayflower for Mrs. Alfred Sloan and Mrs. Frederick Fisher, of Detroit, who are guests at the White House. Others in the little company were Mrs. Mark Sullivan and Mrs. Harold Reed Smoot.

Siamese Trophy Captured With Record Score

Playing the final round of the handicap tournament for the Siamese trophy of the Chevy Chase Club, Mrs. L. O. Cameron defeated Mrs. Frank R. Keefer yesterday, and so has the first leg on the "cup." Incidentally, Mrs. Cameron's score of 78 for the eighteen holes is the lowest score made by a woman over the course in recent years and perhaps in the existence of the club. The contest was warm and many of the best feminine players of Chevy Chase were involved in the elimination rounds earlier this week.

The "cup," presented to the club by the former Siamese Minister, Lieut. Gen. Phya Vijitavongs, last autumn, is a lovely silver coffee service—urn, sugar bowl and cream pitcher—beautifully carved after the manner of the Siamese silversmiths. The set will become the property of the player who wins it twice in succession. Otherwise it must be won three times.

The French High Commission Cup tournament was played at the club several weeks ago and was won by Miss Susan Hacker, who was defeated Tuesday by Mrs. Keefer in the semifinals for the Siamese trophy.

Mrs. Keefer, wife of Gen. Keefer, will go Monday to York, Pa., to enter the Central Pennsylvania Golf Association tournament for women, beginning June 18, which brings together many of the country's well-known players. She is chairman of the women's golf committee of the Chevy Chase Club.

The Tired and the Athletic

THE PLACE best for the tired is also best for the athletic. That is, if it is equipped for their pleasure.

For tennis and golf are best in the silence of the wooded hills, and the finest bridle paths are only walks extended. The amenities of social life are cheeriest where the climate is kind, just as active life in the open is best there too. And quiet sleep is important for the huntsman in from a hard run with the hounds just as it is for the jaded business man down from the city.

So The Homestead is the best of resorts and the best of havens. Nor is that all. The famous Hot Springs mineral waters are a reason why so many physicians from all over the United States send people here who are not ill but who are benefited measurably by them, especially persons of gouty or rheumatic tendencies. At hand, too, for those who want them, are hydro-therapeutic treatments, hot spring-water baths and massage; as well as the services of capable physicians, for examination or treatment.

Those who are tired or ill are aided on the way to vigor and renewed participation in the more strenuous life—at The Homestead or abroad.

LENIENCY IS ASKED FOR TORCH SLAYER

PRISONER NEAR COLLAPSE

Elizabeth, N. J., June 12 (A.P.).—A plea for a verdict of second degree murder concluded the third day of the trial of Henry Colin Campbell for the slaying of Mrs. Mildred Mowry, his bigamously married wife.

"No appeal is made that the prisoner go from this court a free man," said Francis A. Gordon, counsel for the man who, it is alleged, shot Mrs. Mowry as she rode in his automobile beside him, and then dragged her body to the roadside, soaked it with gasoline and set it afire.

Gordon asserted that the State had not proved premeditated murder and that the testimony of numerous alienists showed Campbell was in such a mental state as the result of continued use and use of narcotics that he was unable to judge the consequences of his act.

Prosecutor Abe L. David will sum up the case for the State tomorrow. He said he would ask for a first degree murder verdict.

Campbell was near a state of collapse at the close of today's court session. He was led back to the witness stand this morning for questioning by Prosecutor David after enduring a hard two-hours on the stand under direct questioning yesterday.

Parries Questions Adroitly.

Today he parried David's questions adroitly.

All attempts by the State to break through his testimony that he recalls nothing that occurred immediately preceding or after the crime failed. As he resumed his seat, he groaned as if in pain. He was assisted to his place.

Dr. Guy Peyne, superintendent of the Overbrook Hospital for the Insane, testified that Campbell was a "psychopathic case." This was due to the continued ill fortune that followed him through life and to his use of drugs, he said.

Testimony was taken for the State that no morphine nor needle was found on Campbell after he was arrested April 11 and that he had made the statement to county physicians that he did not use morphine.

New Details Elicited.

Questioning by Prosecutor David brought further details of Campbell's strange life, after a rise to fortune, during which he supported his young wife in luxury, he lost heavily when a development scheme failed. Since then he had lived in comparative poverty.

He testified that he became acquainted with Mrs. Mowry, a Greenville, Pa., widow, through a matrimonial agency. He married her, he said, for her savings—$1,000. He made several attempts to repay her through sale of real estate, and the couple were on such a mission when the shooting occurred.

Insistent demands by Mrs. Mowry that her husband take her to the home he was to prepare for her brought them together in Baltimore. They rode north together on February 23, Campbell wondering more and more how he was to escape from his strange predicament. They reached Cranford, N. J., about 4 a. m. It was then, police said Campbell confessed, he shot the woman and burned her body.

Wife Asks Separate Maintenance.

Separate maintenance from Louis Morganstein, employe of the Corby Bakery, was asked of the District Supreme Court yesterday in a suit filed on behalf of Mrs. Sarah Morganstein, of 2326 Georgia avenue northwest. The parties were married April 26, 1926, according to the complaint, and have one child. The wife charged that her husband abandoned her and their child on May 26 and has not contributed to their support since. Attorney William B. Wright appeared for the wife.

MISS LISL GOLDARBEITER, of Austria, crowned "Miss Universe" at the international pageant of pulchritude at Galveston, Tex. Girls from various sections of the United States and foreign countries competed.

She Entered 1927 Contest as Houston's Choice, Rival Says.

Galveston, Tex., June 12 (A.P.).—Miss Tulsa, a brown-haired girl, entered under the name of Theda Delrey, was the storm center tonight as the fourth annual international pageant of pulchritude here was brought to a close.

Miss Houston, Jeanne Lott, and Mrs. L. Q. Hall, of Houston, today made affidavits that the Tulsa entrant was Miss Houston of 1927, who was entered under the name of Alberta McKellop. Under the pageant rules a former contestant is ineligible to compete.

In the international competition last night Miss Tulsa was selected for ninth place in the money.

The principal of the high school which Miss Houston of two years ago attended and the manager of the theater which sponsored her selection were expected here before the awarding of prizes tonight to view the long-haired Tulsa girl. Willett L. Roe, manager of the pageant, said he would place all the evidence in the hands of the executive committee and let that group decide whether the girl should be disqualified.

Miss Delrey had continually denied the reports that she was the same girl who represented Houston in 1927. She asserted that Miss McKellop was a distant cousin, and last night signed an affidavit to the effect that she was not the former Houston beauty.

The admiring public paid official homage to the 44 domestic and foreign beauties and especially to the wistful Miss Universe tonight at a testimonial banquet. Miss Lisl Goldarbeiter, of Vienna, Austria, was awarded $2,000 and a silver plaque bearing the inscription, "Miss Universe." Miss Irene Ahlberg, of New York, Miss United States, received $1,000 in prize money and one prize of $500, while seven awards of $100 were bestowed upon the other contestants in the "Big Ten."

One beauty contest is enough for Fraulein Goldarbeiter, but the reserved brunette will not overlook any screen opportunities which may be afforded her as a result of her success in the pageant.

She was so excited over being named "Miss Universe" last night that she could not sleep, but that did not affect her courtesy today, as she acknowledged telegrams of congratulation from places as far away as Vienna, posed for photographers, talked to reporters, and accepted the best wishes of her friendly rivals.

The daughter of a Vienna leather goods shop proprietor does not know where she is going from Galveston, but her admirers insist it will be Hollywood.

BALTIMORE MOTHER HELD IN SON'S DEATH

OTHER CASES SUSPECTED

Baltimore, Md., June 12 (A.P.).—Mrs. Hattie Stone was arrested today and held for investigation following the report of Baltimore chemists that evidences of poison had been found in the organs of her 15-year-old son, George, who died June 4, the fourth victim of a strange cycle of death which has visited the Stone family during the last three years. Mrs. Stone was taken to Belair, the county seat of Harford County, by police and State's Attorney W. Worthington Hopkins, who ordered her arrest.

Authorities previously had announced that the bodies of George's elder brother, Elmer; their father, Edward, and their grandmother, Mrs. Emma Stone, all of whom died under circumstances similar to these which surrounded the death of George, would be exhumed and examined if traces of poison were found in the organs of the fourth victim.

George Stone died after but a few hours' illness, after returning home from a moving picture show. Suspicions of the doctor who attended him were aroused, and he called in another physician, who recalled the death of Elmer.

No formal charge has been placed against the woman, pending completion of the analysis, exhumation of the bodies of the other three, and the investigation being conducted by Hopkins.

No motive for murder was given by the State's attorney.

Women's Advancement In China Subject Today

Miss Mary Jen, of China, advocate of economic independence for women of her country, will discuss her work as founder and president of Girls' Technical Academy, in Canton, this afternoon at 4:30 at the National Woman's Party headquarters, on Capitol Hill. Mrs. Su Ying Kiang, also of China, will tell of her observations on women's participation in the economic life of China.

Mrs. Paul Linebarger and Mrs. Charles Sumner Lobingier, wives of former judges in China, will be other speakers of the afternoon.

Legion Welfare, Relief Work to Be Combined

American Legion welfare and relief work will be centralized and combined, it was announced last night, under a new plan worked out by the District of Columbia Department officials and a subcommittee of the budget committee of the Community Chest.

Under the new plan, a tentative budget of $1,500 a month has been allotted the legion for welfare and relief work here.

Annexation Pact Made in Arlington

Lawyers Agree Alexandria Shall Pay $620,000 for Territory.

Agreement on the amount to be paid by the City of Alexandria, Va., to Arlington County for territory recently annexed was reached as a conference of attorneys in court yesterday. The total to be paid is $620,000.

Of this amount $500,000 is for the territory; and $120,000 is for the bonded indebtedness of the town of Potomac, within the annexed area and for which Alexandria assumes responsibility. The city must also pay $30,000 to replace Potomac fire and school equipment, which the court ruled could not be annexed by Alexandria.

Commonwealth Attorney William C. Gloth, of Arlington County, announced that regardless of the action taken, he would appeal the case.

MOTHERS now learn value of MAGNESIA

Because it is so helpful in keeping babies and children healthy and happy, every mother should know about Phillips Milk of Magnesia.

This harmless, almost tasteless preparation is most effective in relieving those symptoms of babies and children generally caused by souring food in the little digestive tract, such as sour-belching, frequent vomiting, feverishness, colic. As a mild laxative, it acts gently, but certainly, to open the little bowels in constipation, colds, children's diseases.

A teaspoonful of Phillips Milk of Magnesia does the work of half a pint of lime water in neutralizing cow's milk for infant feeding, and preventing hard curds. Its many uses for mother and child are fully explained in the interesting book "Useful Information." It will be sent you, FREE. Write The Phillips Co., 117 Hudson St., New York, N. Y.

In buying, be sure to get genuine Phillips Milk of Magnesia. Doctors have prescribed it for over 50 years.

"Milk of Magnesia" has been the U. S. Registered Trade Mark of The Chas. H. Phillips Chemical Co., and its predecessor, Chas. H. Phillips, since 1875.

Anniversary Program on Air Tonight

May Singhi Breen and Peter de Rose Will Give Revue of Radio Celebrities—Bandit Figures in WMAL Detective Story.

May Singhi Breen and Peter de Rose, the "ukulele lady" and her pianistic partner in the song-writing team of Breen and De Rose, celebrate their sixth anniversary on the air in a revue of radio celebrities which will be broadcast as the National Broadcasting and Concert Bureau hour at 9:30 o'clock tonight.

Besides the anniversary program of the veteran team of Breen and De Rose, Andy Sanella, saxophone and guitar virtuoso; Muriel Pollock, pianist, and a symphonic jazz orchestra under the baton of Hugo Mariana, head the list of attractions.

Other highlights of the program include Robert Simmons, tenor; Gitla Erstinn, soprano, and Enrique Madriguera, violinist. The entire group will perform in solo and unusual combination with the patter of Jules Brazil, impresario and master of ceremonies, who makes his radio debut over the network of the National Broadcasting Co.

"Big City Blues" and a program of familiar favorites will be broadcast by the Hoover Sentinels as their weekly offering at 7:30 o'clock from WRC. Featuring Jessica Dragonette and the Sentinels' male quartet, assisted by a concert orchestra, under the direction of Louis Katzman, the complete program follows:

"Big City Blues;" "Softly as in Morning Sunrise," soprano solo, Jessica Dragonette; "Silver Lining of Love," orchestra; "The Land of Sleepy Water," male quartet; "Evangeline," orchestra; "If You Could Care for Me," soprano solo; "Old Folks at Home," soprano and quartet, and "Louise," orchestra.

Of increasing interest on the Seiberling program are the piano improvisations of Frank Black, the director. Another of them is scheduled for tonight. The singers have chosen Nevin's "Venetian Love Song," "Carolina Moon" and a negro spiritual, "De Gospel Train." James Melton, tenor, will sing "Who Knows?" and "Love Sends a Little Gift of Roses." The presentation is completed by a Frank Black arrangement of "La Paloma" for the Singing Violins.

Further financial suggestions by Halsey-Stuart's "Old Counselor" will be broadcast by WRC at 9 o'clock. The musical interludes will present "Song of the Flame," and "Only a Rose," Friml; selections from "La Fille De Madame Angot," Lecocq; "I Kiss Your Hand, Madame," Erwin, and "Bunch of Roses," Chapl.

The Lotus Orchestra will be heard between 11 o'clock and midnight.

Capt. Taylor Branson will conduct the Marine Band in a concert from the Sylvan Theater, broadcast by WMAL, at 7:30 o'clock.

The Phantom of the Coal Fields will give the story of a most thrilling and dangerous bandit, when True Detective Mysteries presents its broadcast at 8 o'clock. This drama will depict the career of Paul Jawarski, bandit of the Pennsylvania coal fields, who less than a year ago forfeited his own life to the State in payment for the more than a score of deaths for which he was responsible.

Vincent Lopez and his orchestra will be heard from WMAL at 9 o'clock tonight, during the period regularly occupied by George Olsen and his orchestra.

Three more dance orchestras will contribute to the evening entertainment from WMAL.

WOL will broadcast the finals of the first annual flag contest of the United States Flag Association at the G. A. R. Flag Day exercises, on the East steps of the Capitol, from 8:15 to 9:15 o'clock tonight.

A varied program will be offered by WJSV, with a short play by the Theater Arts School. The Columbia Trio will be broadcast at 9:30 o'clock for an hour.

Use of Motorcycles Is Forbidden at Yale

New Haven, Conn., June 12 (U.P.).—The roar of the untamed motorcycle, which normally reverberates from one end of New Haven to the other during the "student season," soon will be heard no more.

The motorcycle, which had done so much to make the native New Havener alert and quick to jump, will be almost extinct as the dodo when Yale reconvenes in September. Effective September 24, operation of motorcycles in or about New Haven by students is forbidden. Forbidden to drive automobiles, hundreds of students had operated motorcycles.

Ton Shark in Trap.

Newport, R. I., June 12 (U.P.).—A nurse shark, 25 feet long and weighing nearly a ton, was caught recently in a fish trap which had been set for much smaller fry off Block Island.

Silk for Suit

THIS ensemble is in excellent taste and extremely smart, and it has the possibility of being striking in a way that is denied some of its more drab cousins. If tailored clothes are beautifully cut and made of handsome materials, they are apt to be distinguished, yet a woman to whom severe lines are becoming often requires something gayer than the usual run of suits and two-piece dresses. This coat and skirt of crepe faille, with its silk crepe blouse, fulfills these requirements superbly. The unusual seven-eighths length blouse, buttoned to its full length, and the chic double jabot lend a formal tone to the whole costume. If the ensemble were carried out in black and white or beige and brown the effect would be unusual, dignified and correct for all sorts of semiformal occasions in town. In these materials and colors, this ensemble, with its yoked skirt, pleated at the front and sides, would be most practical for hot weather in the city. Chic accessories, carefully chosen, should accompany it.

BROTHERHOOD.

Is it not strange, oh brother o' mine,
How for the same ends daily we're bearing
Different burdens, and each of us faring
On highways that meet not? You and I, flesh of our father and mother, Alike, and yet always so far from each other.

You selling instruments, brother o' mine,
I putting words every morning together.
Thus do we labor in fair or foul weather.
You thinking violins, I thinking verses,
Each at the business of filling our purses.

What does it matter here, brother o' mine,
On which road we travel, at which task we labor?
You and I hope we shall be a good neighbor.
Be a true father, a fair friend, deserving
The pride and the love of the ones we are serving.

You at your counter, oh brother o' mine,
And I at my desk the same goal are pursuing.
As different our thoughts as the tasks we are doing,
And different our pathways—but still we are brothers.
If of us this be true—it is true of all others.

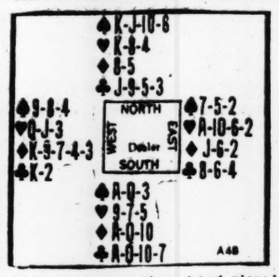
MISPLAYED HANDS I HAVE MET.



When I saw the above hand played, South was the Declarer and the contract was No Trump; at Auction Bridge it would be one No Trump, at Contract Bridge Three No Trumps.

West started by leading the Four of Diamonds, Dummy played small, East the Jack, and South the Queen. South then led a Spade, putting Dummy in the lead, and tried the Club finesse. When it lost, West, in the lead, could place South with the Ace and Ten of Diamonds (East's play of the Jack on the first trick had denied both of these cards), so West led his Queen of Hearts. It made no difference whether North covered with the King or not; the adversaries won four Heart tricks and consequently saved game.

What should Declarer have done?

THE CORRECT PLAY.

This is another case in which the play advocated does not insure the desired result. It might be that in spite of it, West would lead Hearts at trick 4 instead of continuing his Diamonds, and if he did, the recommended play would cost a trick; but the chances are that it would deceive even the most astute adversary and accomplish its purpose.

Playing to trick 1, Declarer should appreciate that he is assured four Spades, two Diamonds and one Club. If the obvious Club finesse should be tried and fail, a Heart lead from West would be dangerous; if East have the Ace, probably fatal. Consequently the Declarer should take the Jack of Diamonds with the Ace, not the Queen, to draw another Diamond lead from West, should West have the King of Clubs. The play of the Ace of Diamonds would be very apt to cause West to place the Queen of Diamonds in East's hand and to induce him to continue Diamonds after he wins with his King of Clubs. Should he do this, game would be easy for the Declarer.

Myths of Olden Times.

IX. The Sun Goddess Returns.

THE Japanese used to tell stories about gods and goddesses, and some of their tales have come down from olden times.

One of the Japanese gods was called Isanagi. It was said that he had made Japan by driving a spear into the sea bottom and drawing it up again. The sand which stuck to the spear-head fell and made the islands.

The sun goddess sees her own image.

The sun was supposed to be ruled by a goddess. She was of great beauty, and lighted the whole world. Happy was her heart except for one thing—the mischief of her brother, who was destined to become the god of darkness.

One day the mischief-bent god frightened his sister so badly that she ran to hide in a cave. This caused the end of daylight and the beginning of darkness. Gloom spread over the world, and all living beings were in fear.

The rest of the gods and goddesses learned of the event, and gathered in front of the cave where the sun-goddess was hidden. They begged her to come forth, but she would not do so.

A wee bit of light came from the cave and fell on a god who began to dance, with many funny jumps and capers. The others looked on, and roared with laughter.

Wondering what was the cause of the laughter, the sun-goddess tiptoed toward the mouth of the cave.

"What are you laughing about?" she called.

"We are jolly because we have found a goddess who is much more beautiful than you are!"

This made the sun-goddess both jealous and curious. She came forward to see whether it could be true. One of the gods held a mirror in front of her and she gazed at the image of herself. Suddenly she was caught up and carried to a palace in the sky.

Thus sunshine once more blessed the earth.

Dare Interprets the Mode

"L'Enjoleuse," a frilly and feminine frock fashioned of red crepe romaine with matching taffeta bows. (Courtesy of J. Suzanne Talbot, Paris).

THE role played by incrustations this season shows more of novelty and originality tan ever before and is responsible for the success of many a dress which otherwise would be entirely plain and simple.

One of the most charming uses of these incrustations we have seen is a youthful effect in the form of a fichu or neckerchief, which really is such in front, but which is incrusted as part of the dress over the shoulders and forms a yoke in the back.

If the dress is of plain, solid color, this incrusted neckerchief is likely to be of polka-dots or Scotch plaid or, again, of a brilliant contrasting color—yellow on white, red on navy blue, and so on.

• • • •

Not infrequently the same idea is repeated on the sleeves, the cuffs forming a sort of loose knot at the wrist, but actually being incrusted as part of the sleeve. These are of the same material as the neckerchief.

Equally charming is the effect of the false bolero in the form of a contrasting incrustation, which is likewise repeated on the sleeves, but somewhat differently, the entire foresleeve being incrusted in the same fabric as the bolero.

• • • •

Why look like every one else on the beach? Why, indeed, when you can be conservatively and discreetly individual? And at not such a much expense either!

You see, this weke's illustrated leaflet tells you how to make the smartest ever tailored bathing suit—you know what we mean, not necessarily intricate nor fussy, but not of the just ordinary, every-day, knitted suit type you will see on every female figger on the sands.

Just send your stamped, self-addressed envelope to the Dare Department of The Washington Post for the leaflet, which also tells you how to make a smart and practical beach hat and a practical and really good-looking beach bag. Hurry!

• • • •

Coin de Couleur.

Grayish blues are an important color note in the summer mode. And becoming to every type except the brunette or dark skin.

If your gloves and handbag match, you have possibilities! Or if your shoes and handbag match—but if your shoes, handbag and gloves match, then, alas, it is too, too much, and you do not belong!

• • • •

Incidentally, handbags with a capacity are not only extremely chic and insouciant for sports wear and street wear in general, but they are so delightfully "allable."

• • • •

The wekely fashion letter by Mme. Dare in The Sunday Post will be found of much interest.

Au Revoir!

What Today Means to You

JUNE 13, 1929.

By MARY BLAKE.

"GEMINI."

IF June 13 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 7 a. m. to 9 a. m., and from 2:30 p. m. to 3:30 p. m., and from 6:30 p. m. to 7:30 p. m. The danger periods are from 4:30 a. m. to 6:30 a. m., and from 9 p. m. to 10 p. m.

The influences for June 13 will be stimulating, but also irritating in their effects. The temptation to hurt, to score a little point, to give bitter and pent-up feelings relief in speech, will make for unpleasantness and unhappiness.

Reliability will be a marked trait of the child born on this date. It may be depended upon to do things properly, and at the right time. It will desire to be good, but not "geody." Its temperament will be very even.

You were born with a very good mind, which you have not failed to develop. You have become extremely clever and quick in its use. Whatever you do, has the earmarks of thought and of definite plans, properly executed. But it is with you, as with many others of ability. You believe that if a thing is to be done well, it must be done by yourself. There is no greater fallacy. It is a foolish policy, and one that invariably keeps success at arm's length. Men and women of big affairs must work through others. Neither you nor anyone else can sing the leading role and play the trombone at the same time.

"Create and then designate," should be the watchword of those determined on any success. There are few leaders, who are not in a position to subordinate the drudgery to others. It is a pity for one, like you, whose thoughts are priceless, to waste your energy upon useless details. Knock that vain and jealous streak out of your system! Do not try to monopolize all the credit in your firm, your profession, or home! Do not try to dim the lesser satellites. Let their feebler lights make yours the brighter! Stop being all sufficient, and be blessed by the ability and help of others.

Successful people born June 13:
Francis Dana, statesman.
Winfield Scott, soldier.
Gustavus V. Fox, naval officer.
Mary L. B. Branch, author and poet.
Frederic W. Root, composer.
Fitz-John Porter, soldier in Mexican and Civil Wars.

TODAY'S WOMEN

By EARL MINDERMAN

JUNE 13.

MME. FRANCES D'ARBLAY, better known as Fanny Burney, the famous English novelist, was born this day, 1753. Her first novel, "Evelina," depicting fashionable life of London, was hailed with wide enthusiasm and had an enormous sale. Among those who read the novel and praised it were Burke, Reynolds and Johnson. In 1786, the author was honored by being appointed second keeper of the robes to Queen Charlotte. She resigned five years later to marry Gen. D'Arblay.

Mary Alden, the famous motion picture star, born this day, was formerly a newspaper reporter. She is one of the best educated women on the screen and has a large library.

Maria Gay, Spanish opera star, was born this day, 1880.

Julia Brace, American blind deaf mute, who pioneered the way in education for persons of her handicaps, was born this day, 1808. The study of educational methods for blind deaf mutes was in its infancy when her own efforts pointed the way.

Julia Nellson, English actress, was born this day, 1869.

Orchards Fertilized By Fig Tree Prunings

Unlike most fig tree growers, who destroy their prunings, Altemus drives a tractor between rows of trees where pruned limbs have been stacked. They are thrown into a silage cutter attached to the front of the tractor and sliced into small bits.

EVENTS OF INTEREST TO SOCIETY

ent at the wedding were Miss Dorothy Kidd, of New York City; Commander and Mrs. H. T. Dickinson, Mr. and Mrs. William S. Godwin, of Baltimore; Mrs. A. L. Alexander and Miss Eleanor Alexander, of Savannah, Ga.; Capt. William Waters, of Paris, France, and Mr. Maury Reyburn, of Connecticut.

The Minister of Colombia, Dr. Olaya, has gone to New York to remain a few days and will be at the Savoy-Plaza.

The Minister of Greece and Mme. Simopoulos will go to Newport today for the season.

The Minister of China, Dr. Wu, left yesterday to visit West Chester and Harrisburg, Pa. He will lecture under auspices of the Swarthmore Chautauqua Association and will return Friday.

Dr. Emmett G. Coiner Weds Miss Persis Conrad.

Miss Persis Conrad, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Fairfax Conrad, was married yesterday afternoon to Dr. Emmett Grayson Coiner, son of Mr. and Mrs. Emmett Gordon Coiner, of Berryville, Va. The ceremony took place at 5 o'clock in All Soul's Episcopal Church, the Rev. Dr. H. H. D. Sterrett officiating. The church was decorated with palms and lilies.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. She wore a gown of white satin, the sleeeveless bodice having a lace yoke and pearl and crystal trimming. The skirt was full and had a deep lace flounce. The bride's tulle veil fell from a lace cap arranged with orange blossoms.

Mrs. Lawrence Lafayette Gourley was matron of honor and Miss Virginia Conrad maid of honor. They wore frocks of point d'esprit, fashioned along bouffant lines, the former in blue and the latter in yellow, and carried tea roses and delphinium. Anne Bruce Gallagher was flower girl.

Mr. Lawrence C. Hollis, of Winchester, Va., was best man, and the ushers were Dr. Ernest A. N. Seyfreid, of Nazareth, Pa.; Mr. Lawrence L. Gourley and Mr. Robert Bruce Moorman.

Following the ceremony there was a reception at the home of the bride's parents. Mrs. Conrad, the bride's mother, wore a gown of sand-colored georgette, with a hat to match, and the bridegroom's mother, Mrs. Coiner, was in rose beige georgette, with a matching hat.

After a wedding trip through the South, Dr. Coiner and his bride will live in Washington.

Miss Marie Louise Albers Bride at Naval Wedding.

The crisp white uniforms of the bridegroom and his attendants gave a picturesque touch to the wedding of Miss Marie Louise Albers, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Albers, to Ensign Laurence H. Frost, which took place at 8 o'clock last evening at the home of the bride's parents on Rhode Island avenue. And all the pretty ceremony of the typical Navy wedding was observed. Ensign Frost is the son of Mrs. James B. Frost, of Vinita, Okla.

The house was decorated with palms lilies and baskets of garden flowers. The Rev. H. B. Wenchel officiated. Mrs. Gramms sang the wedding music, the familiar marches being played by Prof. Anton Kaspar, violinist, and Miss Friska Kaspar, pianist.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. She wore a white satin gown, trimmed in rose point lace, the drapery of the skirt being held by orange blossoms. The bride's veil was a family heirloom of rose point and duchess lace which had been worn by her two sisters when they were married. She carried a shower bouquet of white roses and lilies of the valley.

Mrs. Joe Earman, sister of the bride, was matron of honor. She wore a green organdie frock, tied with a ribbon shaded in pastel colors, and carried spring flowers. The bridesmaids were Miss Marian Fulton, Miss Mari Morhart, Miss Katherine Brown and Miss Katherine Sater, of Columbus, Ohio. They wore crisp organdie frocks made alike, but each in a different pastel shade—lavender, green, yellow and pink—and carried spring flowers.

Ensign B. N. Rittenhouse was best man and the ushers were Ensign O. L. McDonald, Ensign W. M. Halloran, Ensign H. C. Blinn and Ensign John Quinn.

There was a reception after the ceremony for relatives and friends. Mrs. Albers wore a gown of beige lace with chiffon.

After a wedding trip through the West, Ensign Frost and his bride will live in San Pedro, Calif. The latter's traveling costume was a dark blue ensemble with a figured blouse, a dark blue cloche hat and red fox furs.

Mr. and Mrs. Albers entertained the members of the bridal party at a dinner on the eve of the wedding.

Among the out-of-town guests at the wedding were Mr. J. A. Morhart, of Middleport, Ohio; Mrs. Jessie Emerson Moffat, of New York; Mrs. Joe Earman, jr., of West Palm Beach, Fla., and the Misses Hawksworth, of Philadelphia.

Miss Eleanor Sappey Wed To Mr. John F. C. Potoka.

Miss Eleanor Katherine Sappey, daughter of Mrs. M. A. Sappey, was married to Mr. John Frederick Charles Potoka, of Duryea, Pa., yesterday morning at the Holy Comforter Church, the Rev. Joseph F. Denges officiating. The ceremony, at 9 o'clock, was followed by a breakfast at the Grace Dodge Hotel.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her uncle, Mr. John P. Maher, of New York, wore a chic gown of biege chiffon, with a short jacket of brown panne velvet and brown velvet shoes. Her hat was a picture model of biege, and she carried an arm bouquet of tea roses.

Her only attendant was her sister, Miss Ethel Marie Sappey, whose costume was a gown of green chiffon and a large hat of the same shade. She carried an old-fashioned bouquet. Mr. William Kelley was best man, and the bride's brother, Mr. Henri J. Sappey, was the only usher.

IDEAL for an APARTMENT

NEW ALL-STEEL REFRIGERATOR

Quiet—individual control worry-proof—small—spacious

THE apartment with a General Electric Refrigerator is always considered a "find." Every prospective tenant wants the convenience, the freedom from worry that this most dependable of all refrigerators guarantees.

Each tenant has complete control over his own machine. He defrosts it when it suits his convenience. He regulates the temperature to suit his requirement. No action of another tenant, or of the superintendent, interferes with his service. This individual control assures worry-proof refrigeration.

The mechanism of every General Electric Refrigerator is simple in operation and trouble-free. Being hermetically sealed, it is dust-proof. It requires no oiling. It operates most quietly. It does not create radio interference. Maximum storage space is provided in the cabinet because the mechanism is mounted on top.

To install merely plug into any electric outlet. An accessible control enables accurate temperature regulation. Every General Electric Refrigerator bears an unqualified two-year guarantee.

Now, in addition to its proved electrical and mechanical superiorities, General Electric offers the latest advancement . . . all-steel cabinets! Beautiful, non-warping . . . strong as a safe! No other refrigerator combines such a superior cabinet with such trouble-proof mechanism. It's the greatest value ever offered.

Building owners throughout the country have found that these matchless refrigerators speed up renting, attract more desirable tenants and add greater value to every apartment building.

See the all-steel apartment house model at our display rooms or telephone our apartment specialist and ask him to call on you.

Be sure to listen in on the General Electric Hour broadcast every Saturday Evening from 8 to 9 Eastern Standard Time over the N. B. C. network of forty-two stations.

MAN'S KILLING TOLD BY MOUNTAIN GIRL

Slew Him With Wagon Spoke After Being Insulted, She Asserts.

LOST HER REASON, CLAIM

Chattanooga, Tenn., June 12 (A.P.). Eva Cofer, 21-year-old mountain girl, today took the stand in her trial on charges of murdering Lee Atchley, a 25-year-old merchant at Georgetown, Tenn., with a wagon spoke to avenge an insult. She declared, "I didn't know what I was a-doing," and broke into hysterical sobbing.

The mountain girl had sat calmly through the day as the trial progressed rapidly, but broke down on the stand. Her testimony was followed by a few character witnesses and the defense. The court was then recessed until tomorrow, when argument will begin.

Describing how Atchley, whom his widow had previously testified was "drinking heavily" the day of the tragedy, had embraced her, the girl said, "After he treated me that way, I was all nervous and did'nt know what I was a-doing. I wouldn't have done it for anything."

Says She Lost Memory.

The girl said she didn't know anything from the time the merchant embraced her until after she struck him. She said Mrs. Atchley was standing outside when the merchant grasped her and told her to "flail thunder out of him." After first embracing her, Miss Cofer said, Atchley advanced on her again and she then picked up the wagon spoke and struck him four or five times. "I was just trying to protect myself," she added. "I'd just as soon be dead as to lose my character."

Through cross-examination of Dr. J T. Smith, a State witness, the defense brought out that Miss Cofer was a "nervous type" and had been under a physician's care for two years. He said he had advised her to avoid all noise and excitement because "her nerves were shattered."

The physician in direct examination had described Atchley's wounds, and in reply to a question as to what caused his death, said, "I believe the lick killed him."

Wife Tells of Affair.

Mrs. Atchley, the first witness called, said her husband "had been drinking heavily" the day of the tragedy. Miss Cofer came to the store to pay for 5 cents' worth of candy, and her husband "hugged" her and the girl slapped his face, but she thought nothing of it, she said, as they "were always laughing and joking with each other."

The widow, dressed in deep mourning, said half an hour later she saw the girl standing near the store with a "cornstalk" in her hand, and then Atchley was led in, with blood streaming down his face. She said she bathed his wounds and put him to bed, not thinking he was seriously hurt. Atchley died a few hours later. Mrs. Atchley denied telling Miss Cofer to "frail thunder" out of her husband.

Mrs. Susie Parker, the last witness called by the State, said she witnessed the attack on Atchley by the defendant. Mrs. Parker said the girl came up behind the merchant and struck him over the head "five or six times."

The abruptness with which the State closed its case was a surprise to the crowd that jammed the courtroom to capacity.

Ill Luck Continues To Hold Up Swedes

Further Repairs and Bad Weather Keep Aviators in Iceland.

Reykjavik, Iceland, June 12 (A.P.).—Ill luck continued today to dog the attempt of Capt. Albin Ahrenberg to pilot the seaplane Sverige to America by way of the Arctic route. Following upon several vain attempts to get away from Reykjavik yesterday, all frustrated by small mechanical defects, the aviators made a fresh flight early this morning but it turned out to be only a trial.

The main trouble today was with a defective radiator. Mehcanics had repaired it after yesterday's failures, but the repairs failed to hold. This time the radiator was removed from the plane and brought ashore.

Mechanics said they could complete repairs to the radiator in a few hours. But meanwhile the reports showed that the weatehr around Ivigtut, Greenland, the next scheduled stop, was becoming unfavorable. This factor made it unlikely that any further attempt to cover the more than 800 miles over ice and water on the next leg would be made until the weather clears.

Marshal Joffre Aging Rapidly.

Louveciennes, Seine-et-Oise, France, June 12 (A.P.).—Marshal Joffre complains of being "very tired" these days and blames the extreme heat. The marshal's aids say that it is nothing serious, but the famous old soldier, who is now 77, is aging rapidly.

AUBURN IS UP 23 POINTS

New York, June 12 (A.P.).—Stock prices drifted irregularly in another quiet market today, with the volume of trading falling still nearer the 2,000,000-share mark, and setting still another low record for the past ten months.

A somewhat easier tone in both call and time money prompted resumption of professional operations for the advance for a time, but traders were quick to take profits at the higher levels. Bullish activity again centered in the utilities, and the Associated Press price index of 20 representative issues of this group was sent up about 2 points to still another record high level.

Call money held at 8 per cent at the money desk, but was available outside at 7½. In time money, some 30 to 90 day maturities were loaning at 8¼ per cent, against a flat rate of 8½ yesterday. The outlook for money during the remainder of the month, however, appeared highly uncertain, but the fact that the new short-term Treasury notes were heavily oversubscribed, and were being bought today at a slight premium, were regarded as good signs.

Advices Are Confused.

Commission house advices were confused and rather uncertain. While some were inclined to believe that the market had reached bottom, the majority were inclined to regard the outlook as still clouded. Some regarded the bidding up of the utilities as having reached rather hazardous levels.

The day's news was meager, but remained favorable. Car loadings for the week ended June 1 fell below the 1,000,000 mark for the first time in about two months, but this was attributed to the emorial Day holiday. The steel trade reviews again stressed the unseasonably high rate of production. Iron Age stating that little reduction from the record-breaking rate of May has appeared. Iron Age's composite price of pig iron dropped 8 cents to $18.63 a ton, but finished steel remained unchanged.

Merger gossip regarding the utilities gained ground, and American Water Works, Standard Gas & Electric and Public Service of New Jersey were sent up to new record prices, the first named making an extreme gain of over 8 points.

Commonwealth Power Rallies.

Commonwealth Power continued to rally, selling up 7 points, Federal Light & Traction, however, lost 5½ points, and American & Foreign Power and American Power & Light lost about 2 points each.

Auburn Auto was the high flier of the session, soaring 23 points to a record price at 275. Midland Steel Products preferred jumped 12 points to a new top at 250 on declaration of $1.50 extra dividend. National Distillers preferred advanced nearly 11 points to a new peak on continued talk of redemption. Hahn Department Stores common was in brisk demand on rumors of dividend inauguration.

Allis Chalmers, Air Reduction, F. G. Shattuck and Timken Roller Bearing reached new high territory. General Electric and Electric Auto Lite were sent up about 9 and 7 points, respectively. Crucible Steel reached a new peak on increased dividend prospects, but reacted and closed lower.

Recent Favorites React.

A number of recent favorites encountered profit-taking. Commercial Solvents fell back 11 points. Fleischmann, which has been mounting steadily in reflection of merger talk, dropped 2 points, and Warren Brothers lost 3 of yesterday's 11-point gain. Such shares as American Can, New York Central, Otis Elevator dropped 9 points and Sloss-Sheffield preferred, a comparatively inactive issue, dropped 11 points to a new low at 95. Other issues reaching new lows included Willys-Overland and Universal Leaf Tobacco.

Grains broke sharply in the commodity markets on the Senate's refusal to accept the conference report on the farm relief measure, but regained much of their losses. Wheat dropped 4 cents, then rallied about 2½ cents from the bottom on dry weather in Canada and better export buying. Corn lost 3 cents, but rallied on reports of floods in Illinois and bearish weather forecasts, reducing losses to about 1 cent a bushel. Cotton closed 45 to 75 cents a bale higher on large domestic consumption figures for May and reiterated reports of boll weevil damage.

Foreign exchanges were dull, with sterling cables still holding at $4.84 1-2. German marks sagged a couple of points to 23.79 cents.

BADGES PRESENTED TO CAPITAL BANKERS

STOCK MARKET IS ACTIVE

By THOMAS M. CAHILL.

President Robert V. Fleming, Riggs National Bank, retiring president of the District of Columbia Bankers Association, and his predecessors in office were honored for their services to the association yesterday at the weekly meeting of its luncheon group at the Willard Hotel.

President Fleming presented the newly adopted gold badges of office for past presidents to eleven of them, and was in turn given a badge by W. W. Spaid, of W. B. Hibbs & Co., his immediate predecessor in the office. Badges for past presidents who were unable to attend because of illness, absence from the city and other reasons were given to representatives of their institutions to be conveyed to them or forwarded to their present addresses.

Following award of the insignia, Vice President Wilmer J. Waller, Federal-American National Bank, and first vice president of the association, made a brief talk, praising President Fleming's work, and presented him with a framed set of engrossed resolutions signed by 30 members of the luncheon group, and reading as follows:

"Whereas, the administration of Mr. Robert V. Fleming as president of the District of Columbia Bankers Association during the past year has been marked by many notable achievements, among which were the creation of three new sections of the association, the fiduciaries, the auditors and the safe deposit; the installation of a credit bureau and the winning of the tax case in the Supreme Court of the United States; and

"Whereas, all his efforts in behalf of the association have involved an enormous amount of time and labor, willingly and generously given; and

"Whereas, he has further endeared himself to every member of the association by his unfailing courtesy and fairness as a presiding officer,

"Now, therefore, be it resolved, that the members of the luncheon group of the District of Columbia Bankers Association whose signatures appear below express to Mr. Fleming their sincere appreciation of his labors in behalf of the association and wish him many more years of usefulness to the banking and other civic interests of Washington."

A resolution, presented by President H. H. McKee, of the National Capital Bank, expressing the gathering's sympathy for Charles J. Bell, chairman of the board of directors of the American Security & Trust Co., in his present illness and its hope for his speedy recovery, was passed.

Past presidents of the association who were present to receive their badges and the dates of their terms of office were Albion K. Parris, Crane, Parris & Co., 1904; H. H. McKee, National Capital Bank, 1913; George E. Fleming, Union Trust Co., 1915; W. T. Galliher, Federal-American National Bank, 1916; John Poole, Federal-American National Bank, 1917; Corcoran Thom, American Security & Trust Co., 1918; Robert N. Harper, District National Bank, 1920; Victor B. Deyber, Second National Bank, 1924; Francis G. Addison, jr., Security Savings & Commercial Bank, 1925; Howard Moran, American Security & Trust Co., 1926; W. W. Spaid, 1927.

Other past presidents to whom badges were forwarded are Charles J. Bell, American Security & Trust Co., 1903; John Joy Edson, Washington Loan & Trust Co., 1905; C. F. Norment, National Bank of Washington, 1906; E. J. Stellwagen, Union Trust Co., 1908-1909; George W. White, National Metropolitan Bank, 1912; Maurice D. Rosenberg, Bank of Commerce & Savings, 1919; John B. Larner, Washington Loan & Trust Co., 1921; Joshua Evans, jr., District National Bank, 1922.

The luncheon meeting, the last of the present administration, was attended by 60. Vice President Waller, E. J. McQuade, Liberty National Bank and secretary of the association, and Albert S. Gatley, Lincoln National Bank and association treasurer, were in charge of its arrangements. Guests included Comptroller of the Currency John W. Poole, F. G. Awalt, First Deputy Comptroller, both of whom spoke; C. C. Glover, jr., chairman of the board of directors, Riggs National Bank; E. C. Graham, representing the Fifth Federal Reserve District, and S. J. Prescott, chairman, board of directors, Second National Bank.

Gas Light Stock Again Active.

Recent rise of Washington Gas Light stock has caused interest in this issue as indicated by sale of 117 shares at 124, point recession, on the Washington Stock Exchange yesterday. Sales were made in three blocks, the first of 100 shares, the other two of eight and nine. This was the largest sale recorded at the session and the market closed with 123¾ bid and 124¼ asked for the stock.

Mergenthaler Linotype was second in trading volume, 64 shares moving at fractional recessions from 105⅛, last sale price, while Capital Traction stock closed higher than Tuesday, selling at 94 after opening at 93⅞, fractional advance. Heaviest bond selling was in Washington Gas 6s of the B series, $500 changing hands at a fractional decline from 103¾, and a $1,000 and $2,000 lot at that last sale figure. Improvement was shown in both divisions, bond sales totalling $8,500 and the stock aggregate being 283, increases of $6,200 and 43 respectively over Tuesday.

Bituminous Coal Production.

Total production of bituminous coal in the United States for the week ended June 8, as estimated by the National Coal Association from preliminary car loading reports, was about 9,250,000 net tons.

The tonnage reported by the United States Bureau of Mines for the weeks ended May 25 and June 1 was 9,164,000 net tons and 8,430,000 net tons, respectively.

Declaration of Dividends.

Declaration of dividends by three concerns were announced yesterday. Directors of the Federal Storage Co. declared their regular quarterly dividend of $2 a share on the preferred stock, payable June 15 to stockholders of record at close of business June 29, President E. K. Morris announced.

The board of directors of the Continental Trust Co. declared the regular quarterly dividend of 1½ per cent, payable June 29, to shareholders of record at close of business June 24.

The Maryland Cash Credit Corporation announced an extra dividend of 15 cents a share on the preferred and also the regular quarterly payment of 15 cents a share.

Offering of a new issue of 250,000 shares of 6 per cent cumulative convertible preferred stock of General Gas & Electric Corp., priced at 95 and accrued dividend to yield 6.30 per cent is being made today by a banking group headed by The Harris Forbes Corp. and including Lee, Higginson & Co., Kidder, Peabody & Co., Brown Brothers & Co., E. H. Rollins & Sons.

Properties behind Smith Offerings.
No. 9, The Hamilton Hotel.

For the information of the public at large and particularly those who may be interested in the Hamilton Hotel of Washington, D. C., we invite attention to the following statement relative to this property and to certain securities offered by this House.

STRONG SECURITY BEHIND BONDS....

A First Mortgage Issue

THE Hamilton Hotel occupies a prominent downtown location at the Northeast corner of Fourteenth and K Streets, N. W., Washington, D. C. It is immediately opposite Franklin Square park, an excellent location for a high class hotel. At this time there are being erected on opposite corners a new 12-story office building and a new 12-story hotel. The Hamilton Hotel is an 11-story, steel and concrete, fireproof structure, and is furnished and decorated so as to compare favorably with the best modern hotels.

In July, 1927, The F. H. Smith Company offered, as and when issued, $1,550,000 6½% bonds to be secured by a first mortgage on the Hamilton Hotel (land, building, furniture, fixtures and equipment). At that time there was an existing first mortgage on this property, dated July 1, 1921, securing an issue of $1,200,000 8% bonds. Provision was made for retiring the outstanding bonds of said prior issue and interim receipts of The F. H. Smith Company for the new issue, were sold until the deed of trust securing the prior issue was released. The bonds of the new issue are in serial maturities ranging from 3 to 15 years, so as to reduce the issue to $1,160,000 before final maturity.

3% Premium Paid On Original First Mortgage Bonds

Provision was made for retiring the outstanding bonds of the $1,200,000 8% bond issue at par and accrued interest, plus a premium of 3% and the deed of trust securing this issue was released of record on January 3, 1928.

A Collateral Trust Issue

In December, 1928, The F. H. Smith Company offered $1,050,000 7% Collateral Trust Sinking Fund Coupon Bonds, maturing December 1, 1940, issued by Properties Investment Corporation, present owner of the Hamilton Hotel. These bonds are secured by deposit and pledge under a trust indenture, and the guarantee thereof, of the following securities:

1. An issue of 6½% General Mortgage Coupon Bonds totalling $1,250,000 secured by a general mortgage on the Hamilton Hotel, which is a subordinate lien to the first mortgage of $1,550,000.

2. 52% of the Capital Stock of Arco Hotel Company, lessee and operator of the Arlington Hotel and the Cairo Hotel, Washington, D. C.

3. The entire Capital Stock of Properties Investment Corporation. H. C. Maddux, owner of said Capital Stock of Properties Investment Corporation, unconditionally guaranteed payment of the bonds of this collateral trust issue and pledged said stock as additional security therefor.

Valuation of Property—$3,015,470

The property was appraised as of April 25, 1927, by Ford, Bacon & Davis, Inc., nationally known engineers and appraisers, and their certificate of valuation follows:

"Based upon our inspection of the Hotel Hamilton, erected 1921, located at Fourteenth and K Streets, Washington, D. C., we hereby certify that the Estimated Cost of Reproduction New and the Estimated Cost of Reproduction New Less Depreciation of this Physical property, comprising the land, hotel building, equipment and furniture and fixtures contained therein, as existing April 25, 1927, based upon prices of materials and labor prevailing in the above locality at that date, are as follows:

Estimated Reproduction Cost as of April 25, 1927

	New	Less Depreciation
Land	$821,975	$821,975
Building and Mechanical Equipment	1,809,246	1,730,050
Furniture and Fixtures and Misc. Equipment	487,837	463,445
Total	$3,119,058	$3,015,470

"The value of land shown above was appraised by W. H. West Company, Inc., of Washington, D. C.

"The allowance made for depreciation represents the loss due to accrued physical deterioration, as observed by our engineer. Supersession, due to obsolescence, changes in business conditions, or to any other cause, has not been considered.

"To the estimated cost of materials and labor, we have added an allowance to cover such overhead costs as organization and legal expenses, engineering and architectural supervision, interest, taxes and insurance during the period of construction.

"Our inventory does not include miscellaneous supplies chargeable to expense, or stationery.

"No allowance has been included in the above amounts shown for building and mechanical equipment, furniture and fixtures and miscellaneous equipment, for any value attaching to good will, advantage in location, going concern, or any other elements of intangible value.

(Signed) "FORD, BACON & DAVIS, INC.,
"New York, June 24, 1927."

The land alone was appraised by the Wardman Construction Company, Inc., a well-informed organization on land values in the District of Columbia, and a prominent member of the Washington Real Estate Board, as follows:

"May 25, 1927.

"Regarding the land on which the Hamilton Hotel is located at the corner of Fourteenth and K Streets, N. W., Washington, D. C., fronting on Fourteenth Street and on K Street, with wide alley on the north, we would appraise this lot, containing 14,945 square feet, at $55.00 per foot, or a total of $821,975.00.

(Signed) "WARDMAN CONSTRUCTION CO., INC.
"James D. Hobbs, Treasurer."

Earnings of The Hamilton Hotel

According to the owner's report, the total gross income from this property for the first five months of this year amounted to $303,433.16, and the total operating expenses (estimated for May), including taxes and insurance for that period, were $185,558.59, leaving a net income for the period of $117,874.57. The owner estimates that the gross earnings for the entire year 1929 will be $686,957.16 and the net earnings will be $267,998.57, which is approximately 9% of the valuation of $3,015,470 made by Ford, Bacon & Davis, Inc.

SOME CONVERTIBLES AND RAIL BONDS GAIN

Market Generally, However, Remains Sluggish as Prices Move Narrowly.

FOREIGN LIST IRREGULAR

New York, June 12 (A.P.).—Convertibles and seondary rails made a little progress in today's sluggish bond market. Factors which would stimulate general interest in fixed return securities were lacking, however, and the absence of confidence was reflected in the small gains shown by the issues that did advance. Price movements over the entire list were narrow.

Bonds carrying stock options or warrants led the market, as usual, but with the exception of American Telephone 4½s and Southern Pacific 4½s, the transactions were light. Improvement in this group was fractional.

A few high grade rails moved up with the others, notably Chesapeake & Ohio general 4s which gained 1½. Smaller advances were made by Denver & Rio Grande consolidated 4s, Kansas City Southern refunding 5s, and Virginian 5s. The popular St. Paul adjustment 5s advanced on moderate buying, while St. Louis & Southwestern 5s were marked up two points on good demand.

Utilities and industrials showed irregularity. Columbia Gas & Electric 5s and North American Edison 5½s found somewhat stronger markets and improved fractionally, but Consolidated Gas of New York 5½s, Utilities Power & Light 5½s and United Electric Light & Power 5½s ran into selling for small losses.

The New United States Treasury 5½ per cent certificates commanded a slight premium on the over-the-counter market. A $700,000,000 oversubscription for this issue resulted in the announcement that large bidders would receive only 20 per cent of their subscription, and so the big dealers have been forced into the market, to fill their orders. The asked price for the short term obligations was par and one thirty-second.

Other United States Government issues lost ground, but only the Fourth Liberty 4¼s and the Treasury 4s showed any volume. Both sold off. The foreign list was uninteresting and irregular.

HUFTY AND SPICER LEAD QUALIFIERS AT COLUMBIA

125 Athletes Entered in S.A. Meet

Baltimore Police Have Largest Group in Saturday's Games.

AN added entry for the special 100-yard dash, feature of the South Atlantic senior field and track games Saturday at Central Stadium, was received yesterday by meet officials from "Flash" Farmer, University of North Carolina runner.

"Flash," whose right to the title can not be explained by any one here, but who nevertheless signed himself thus in two letters, offered to pay his own expenses to the meet in order that he could compete against the crack field composed of George Simpson, Ohio State University's star, who ran the century in 9.4 seconds last Saturday at Chicago; Claude Bracey, the "Houston Express" from Rice Institute, Tex., and Reginald "Pete" Bowen, sensational University of Pittsburgh sprinter.

This North Carolina youth, judging from the tone of his letters to A. A. U. Commissioner Spitzer, vice chairman of the games committee, has not the slightest fear of being beaten despite the high caliber of the opposition he will find. However, the meet officials were not inclined to take seriously Farmer's chances of winning and explained that he was granted permission to compete merely because of his enthusiasm.

Baltimore Police Have Large Team Entry.

The complete entry list for the sixteen championship events and the special races was released by Commissioner Spitzer last night. More than 125 athletes from the District, Virginia and Maryland have signified their intention of competing.

The Baltimore Police Department, with sixteen, has entered the largest team, and will strive to retain its South Atlantic Team championship. The Baltimore bluecoats boast of Don C. Foote, one of the outstanding amateur athletes of this section of the country. In five years Foote has gained 395 points in 29 meets and has placed at least fourth in all but 9 of 120 events. This record alone is sufficient to stamp him as one of the stars to watch Saturday afternoon.

Foote will enter the high jump, shot put, discus, pole vault and hop step and jump. Along with Alan Chandler, John Spites, Herbert Kelly, Edmund McGee, Frank Miller and Ralph Amrein, the celebrated Baltimore copper will shoulder the task of keeping the team laurels won last year.

Adelman, G. U. Star, Competes in Shot Put.

Maryland University, Georgetown University, the Naval Academy and the D. C. Knights of Columbus will be represented in the meet by some of their most valuable performers. Maryland will have Urban Linzey in the half-mile; Dick White in the broad jump, and Henry McDonald in the pole vault. White has consistently done 22 feet in the broad jump.

Dave Adelman, Georgetown's leading contender for intercollegiate shot put honors, will be seen in his specialty, while the Naval Academy will have A. Donald Fraser in the low hurdles; L. T. Miles and A. P. Stewart in the pole vault; D. G. Dwight in the shot put; Fraser in the low hurdles; R. P. Fiala in the 440-yard dash, and G. K. McKenzie and C. C. Tyson in the 100-yard dash.

Bill Wimsatt, giant Georgetown post-graduate student, will represent the Knights of Columbus in the discus throw and javelin. Wimsatt should be closely watched, according to his friends.

Haskell Clark and Jerry Looney, veteran distance runners, will carry Casey colors in the six-mile run, while Clark also will attempt to gain the one-mile championship.

The one-mile race may develop into a duel between Clark and Tom Nase, bespectacled Chester High star, of Centralia, Va. Nase was the "C" Club mile titleholder in 1928 but lost the championship this year to Frank Miles, of Eastern High School.

Woodberry Forest School, of Orange, Va., will be represented by W. Jett

Landis Reports, Yanks Deny, Signing Nekola, College Ace

By GEORGE KIRKSEY
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

NEW YORK, June 12. (U.P.).—Unprecedented bidding for the services of a college baseball player has involved Frank Nekola, Holy Cross College's southpaw ace, in a unique situation.

An official bulletin issued in Chicago today by Commissioner K. M. Landis, announced that Nekola had signed to play with the New York Yankees and would join the world champions at once.

Ed Barrow, secretary of the Yankees, denied here that Nekola had signed with the Yanks, saying that he had no knowledge of any such deal.

Up at Worchester, Mass., Nekola himself wondered whether he remains a college player with two more years in collegiate circles ahead of him or a member of the world champions on the brink of a professional career.

Shut Out Brown, Yale, Boston College and Georgetown.

Two other clubs—the Philadelphia Athletics and Chicago White Sox—have been bidding for Nekola's services and it is said that the White Sox offered the Holy Cross star a bonus of $20,000 for signing a contract, but he refused.

In his first year in college baseball, Nekola has hung up an enviable record, winning every game he has pitched. He has scored 5 shut-outs over Georgetown, Brown, Providence, Yale and Boston College. He pitched one-hit games against Yale and Boston College.

Big Ed Walsh, White Sox coach and scout, who was one of the star pitchers of the American League when in his prime, is said to have discovered Nekola when the latter was pitching for the Evander Childs High School in the Bronx.

After following Nekola's pitching record for several years, Walsh is confident that Nekola has the makings of one of the greatest southpaws the major leagues have seen since the days of Eddie Plank and Rube Marquard.

Since Jack Barry, who played shortstop for the Athletics in 1910, 1911 and 1913, is coaching the Holy Cross Baseball team, it was thought that Connie Mack would have the inside track in acquiring Nekola's services.

Holy Cross Authorities May Influence His Decision.

From today's developments, however, it would seem that the Yankees have grabbed the Holy Cross ace right out from under the Athletics and White Sox.

When once the Yanks decide they want a player, it's dollars to doughnuts that they will get him, for they have the financial backing to outbid any other major league team but the Cubs, and are willing to spend money to get what they want.

The attitude of the Holy Cross athletic authorities may settle the whole situation. If they decide that Nekola has not signed a contract with the Yanks, the Holy Cross pitcher may decide to play his remaining years in college baseball.

Even so, it takes something more than nerve to turn down a tempting offer of, say, $25,000, just for signing your name on a scrap of paper, two years of college baseball notwithstanding.

The logical place to look for Nekola soon, therefore, is in a uniform of the world champion Yankees, and if he's the kind of a pitcher they say he is, the American League race may not be over yet.

Cubs Conquer Phils, 7-3, With Malone on Mound

Chicago, June 12 (A.P.).—Pat Malone scored his eighth victory of the season today as the Cubs defeated Philadelphia, 7 to 3, in the series opener here.

Except for spots in the third and fourth innings, Malone pitched effectively throughout. He fanned twelve. The Cubs got nine hits off Phil Collins, while Malone yielded eight.

Johnny Moore hit a home run with none on in the eighth. English, Cub shortstop, hurt his leg in a collision with Hurst and may be lost for several days.

Pirates' Two-Run Rally In 9th Beats Giants, 7-6

Pittsburgh, June 12 (A.P.).—A thrilling rally for two runs after two were out in the ninth enabled the Pirates to defeat the Giants, 7 to 6, here today in the first game of their semicrucial series. The Pirates drove Carl Hubbell, their no-hit nemesis of a month ago, from the box with four early runs, but Burleigh Grimes himself exploded in the sixth when the Giants scored five times.

Salo Cuts Gavuzzi's Lead to 20 Minutes

Jacumba, Calif., June 12 (A.P.).—Johnny Salo, of Passaic, N. J., reduced Pete Gavuzzi's lead in the transcontinental bunion derby to 19 minutes and 56 seconds by winning today's lap, 58 miles of gruelling uphill running, from the Italian.

The Passaic policeman, who until yesterday had been ailing with stomach trouble, sliced 35 minutes and 50 seconds from Gavuzzi's elapsed time lead in the stretch between Calexico and Jacumba, partly over desert and partly over mountainous grades. His time for the 58 miles was nine hours 9 minutes and 5 seconds.

New York, June 12 (A.P.).—Victorio Campolo, giant Argentine boxer, arrived here today from Buenos Aires to join the heavyweight scramble for gold and glory.

Victorio measured 6 feet 6 inches and weighs 225 in fighting trim. His ambitions are of similar dimensions and he sees no reason why he should not be even more successful than was his countryman, Luis Angel Firpo.

"I believe that I could have beaten Firpo at his best," he said. "I am stronger than Luis and I know how to box."

Nats' 4 Errors Aid Tribe to Win, 9-5

Burke Pounded; Brown and Beall Prove Ineffective.

By FRANK H. YOUNG.

THE Nats, who this season have experienced more ups and downs than an elevator conductor, yesterday were distinctly on the downward grade, and as a result the Indians turned in a 9-to-5 victory and thus evened the count for the series.

This was just another of the many games, which the Nats simply refused to win. They packed all of their eggs in one basket when they scored five runs in the fourth canto to become 3 up and then, aided and abetted by some mediocre pitching, proceeded to "boot" the game away, no less than four of the Tribe's runs, its margin of victory, directly resulting from errors, while slow fielding by Sam Rice let a puny fly from Morgan's bat go for a triple in the second, and this netted another alien marker.

Bob Burke started on the hill for the home team and, although he was knocked out, he can not be blamed for faltering in view of the manner in which his mates threw him down afield. Had his supporting cast performed up to par, the young southpaw might have gone the route and turned in a victory. After he was excused Walter Beall and Lloyd Brown tried their hands, but neither was effective.

The Indians scored in six of the nine innings and had the sacks loaded when the final out was registered in round eight. Their first marker came from Morgan's poorly played triple and Lind's one-baser in the second, while an error by Myer and singles by Fonseca and Averill netted another in the next frame.

Burke Sets Tribe Down In Order in Fourth.

Burke set the Tribe down in order for the first and only time in the fourth and then the Nats came in from the field and pounded Willis Hudlin, the Indians' pitching ace, off the hill. They were credited with but eight hits during the contest, and half of this number—singles by West, Barnes, Ruel and Burke—were inserted in this frame, in which the Nats also benefited from an error by Hudlin, two sacrifices and two bases on balls. Joe Shaute, the left-hander, whom the Nats drove to the showers early in Sunday's game, then rushed to the hill and, after stopping this onslaught, finished out in fine style.

This rally was good for five juicy markers, more than double the number credited to the Clevelanders, who immediately proceeded to "two" the Nats to death, ringing the run-bell twice in each of the fifth, sixth and seventh cantos. Just to keep in practice after threatening in the eighth, they moulded another counter as a parting shot in the final canto.

Round five would have been a wasted one for the Tribe but for Barnes dropping Jamieson's easy fly as a starter for a two-base error and Myer then following with a wild peg to first which let Jamieson take third. Fonseca, the batter, carried on to second. Averill's single scored one runner and the other registered while J. Sewell's tap was being turned into a double play.

Fonseca and Morgan Lead Indians With 3 Hits Each.

Lind's opening triple, Pinch-Hitter Hartley's single, a suicide, a useful out and a sacrifice fly were used to make the pair hung up in the sixth, while two bases on balls, two sacrifices, Luke Sewell's hit and West's error were good for two more in the

Bobby Jones Would Accept Invitation to Tour Japan

ATLANTA, June 11 (A.P.).—Back in Atlanta from a brief business trip Bobby Jones, America's premier golfer, today had received and was earnestly considering an invitation to visit Japan.

The invitation was cabled from Tokyo by Hirosi Saito, chief of the information department of the Japanese foreign office, asking him to visit Japan and assuring him that "all Japanese golfers are anxious to welcome him."

"I appreciate with all my heart the high compliment of this suggestion," said Bobby, "but before deciding anything I want first to talk with Findlay Douglas, president of the United States Golf Association, and Herbert Ramsay, vice president. I will be in New York the first of next week and will see them then. Of course, I would do nothing of this sort unless they were in perfect accord with the idea.

Hopes to Arrange Absence From Office for Trip.

"I should love to go to Japan. That is certain. I can't see at present how I could be away from the office that long, for the amateur championship in California will take the best part of a month after more than two weeks off for the open. Still, the leave of absence might be arranged. Anyway, I am going to think very hard about this matter and will talk it over with Mr. Douglas and Mr. Ramsay as soon as I see them."

Accompanied by Mrs. Jones, and a small party of friends, the Amateur champion will leave Atlanta for New York next Sunday afternoon, to practice for the open which gets under way June 27 at the Wingedfoot Club at Mamaroneck, Long Island.

After a few days in New York the party will move out to Rye, where they will occupy quarters during the tournament.

Increased Interest in Golf Noted in Japan.

New York, June 12 (A.P.).—The United States Golf Association has not yet been advised of a contemplated visit to Japan by Bobby Jones, following the amateur championship this year in California, H. H. Ramsay, vice president, said today.

"Japan has taken an increasing interest in golf for several years," said Mr Ramsay. "We have furnished much technical information to its representatives but this is the first I had heard about a visit there by Jones. We will be glad to discuss it with him, of course, but it would be a personal enterprise, any way."

Japanese newspaper men broached the subject to Jones when he won the amateur title at Brae Burn last September, but his reply was:

"I don't think I can swim that far yet."

MACKS LEAD BY 8 GAMES; WIN, 7-3

Lyons, Chisox, Routed; Simmons Hits His 14th Homer.

PHILADELPHIA, June 12 (A.P.).—The Philadelphia Athletics took their third straight from the Chicago White Sox today. The score was 7 to 3.

The Athletics extended their lead to eight games by their victory, while the second-place Yankees were losing to the Browns, 9 to 4.

Lyons, who started in the box for the Sox, was hit for five runs in the first two rounds. Simmons accounted for two of the runs in the first inning by hitting his fourteenth home run of the season with one on base.

Walberg, who registered his seventh victory of the year, only had one bad inning, the seventh, in which he was tapped for four hits and two runs. The Macks recovered these runs in the home half of the inning off Relief Pitcher Connally.

Browns Beat Yankees, 9-4; Gehrig Hits No. 15

New York, June 12 (A.P.).—The St. Louis Browns turned upon the Yankees in the final game of the series here today and pounded out a 9 to 4 victory after three straight defeats.

The path was made easier for the visitors by Myles Thomas and Fred Heimach, who gave up seven hits and eight runs in the fourth. George Blaeholder turned in a fair job against the champions, but permitted Lou Gehrig to hit his fifteenth homer in the eighth with Combs on base.

Gehrig retained the American League lead and entered into a tie with Chick Hafey and Chuck Klein for top place in the National League race. Blaeholder hit a homer with two on in the big St. Louis fourth.

Bryn Mawr, Pa., June 12 (A.P.).—The Bryn Mawr polo team today defeated the Yale team, intercollegiate champions, 9 to 4. Capt. Peter Folger, of Yale, was injured on the leg. He was taken to a hospital, but later returned to the field.

DAWSON WINS 2 MATCHES IN ENGLAND

Chicago Star Gains 4th Round After Hard Battles.

By FRANK H. KING
(Associated Press Staff Writer.)

SANDWICH, England, June 12 (A.P.).—The wheel of fortune in the British amateur golf championship which, with its week of eighteen-hole matches is the biggest lottery in major golf, turned through the third round of play today. The round brought disastrous results for some famous British golfers, but John Dawson, Bobby Baugh and Joshua Crane remained to represent America.

Dawson made an impressive start, beating John D McCormack, 2 and 1, and Guy Campbell, 1 up. He played several poor holes, but on the whole the Chicago player did very well indeed.

Among the other survivors in the now reduced field of 32, Cyril Tolley, Phil Perkins and Dr. William Tweddell are the best. Some of the experts think the draw seems shaping toward a 36-hole final Saturday between Tolley in the upper half and either Perkins or Dawson in the lower.

Slow Play of Perkins Draws Protests.

Defeats of Roger Wethered, T. A Torrance, Douglas Grant and J. A. Stout were sensations today. Perkins had a narrow escape. He was 1 down to C. Shankland, with 4 to go. The champion won the eighteenth to square the match and went on to victory at the twenty-second.

The defending titleholder is playing the steadiest golf of the championship, and perhaps the slowest. This morning protests were registered by pairs behind Perkins because of the delay while fairways ahead were clear.

Tie With 75s In First Day Of Play

13 Golfers Break 80 Aided by Lightning-Fast Course.

Scores of 78 Likely to Qualify in Championship Group.

By HENRY LITCHFIELD WEST.

WITH a course that after a long dry spell was almost as fast as lightning and with putting greens in perfect condition, it was not surprising that the cards submitted by more than 200 contestants in the qualifying round of the first day of the Columbia Country Club's spring invitation tournament were exceptionally low.

Last year there was a quintuple tie for the medal with scores of 76, but yesterday there were two cards of 75 and no less than thirteen of the entrants had scores under 80. Only five sixteens, a total of 80 players, are to qualify for match play, and when all the cards had been turned in last night there were 50 contestants who were 86 and under.

The probability is, therefore, with the field of approximately 150 additional players today, including some of the leading golfers in the District, that it will take a card of 78 or lower to qualify in the championship flight, and that 86 or 87 will be the lowest score that will be eligible for match play in the fifth and last sixteen.

Leaders Have Identical Scores of 37—38—75.

The field yesterday was led by Page Hufty, champion of the Congressional Club, and Elliott Spicer, former champion of the Argyle Club, each with identical scores of 37—38—75. Hufty played his usual consistent golf, although he started with a 6 on the first hole, when his drive landed his ball behind a tree and his second shot became entangled in the branches. He also had a 6 on the ten

MORSUN NEVER HEADED IN AQUEDUCT FEATURE RACE

Winner Shows Return to 1928 Form in Taking Sprint.

George McCrann Beats Lord Braedalbane by Nose at Latonia.

AQUEDUCT RACE TRACK, June 12 (A.P.).—Benjamin Block's colt, Morsun, showing a return to his fine form of last year, captured the Rockaway Claiming Stakes which featured today's card. Coots was second, with Stretcher, backed from 10-to-1 down to 5-to-1, third. The winner ran the 6 furlongs in 1:13 3-5 over a fast track and by his victory earned $3,825.

Morsun and Mordrom were coupled in the betting and they had positions one and two at the barrier. McAtee broke Morsun on top and quickly shot the son of Morvich into a 3-length lead, followed by Coots and Stretcher. Extreme, which appears to have lost his good form, never was a threat. All the way down the long stretch Morsun showed unusual gameness in a hard drive with Coots. McAtee kept him going to win by three-parts of a length. Coots beat Stretcher a length for the place. The winner paid 7 to 5.

George McCrann Wins by Nose In Latonia Feature.

Latonia Race Track, June 12 (A.P.). The Cincinnati Rotary Club purse over the mile course was won by the Serenta Farm Stable's 4-year-old George McCrann. Lord Braedalbane from the D. Breckinridge string was second and Lion Heart, from the R. S. Clark Stable, was third. Seven horses faced the barrier.

George McCrann, away slowly and raced under slight restraint until the far turn, was brought over to the extreme outside through the stretch and taking the lead in the last few strides won in a hard drive by a nose. Lord Braedalbane, away fast and held under steadying restraint, was sent into the lead on the inside entering the stretch and his jockey, Pascuma, failed to see the onrushing winner and was unable to withstand the pace, finishing second by four lengths. Lion Heart was raced under hard urging throughout and held on well in the stretch drive to take the show money by four lengths. Uptima was sent into a good lead on the turn but tired badly at the end and was next best.

The race was run on a muddy track. The win by George McCrann enriched the Serenata Farm purse by an even $1,000, and he paid his backers the good price of $29.14 for a $2 ticket.

Blackwood Wins in Romp At Washington Park.

Washington Park Race Track, Ill., June 12 (A.P.).—The White City purse, for 4-year-olds and up over the mile and 70 yards out of the chute, the feature event here today, was won by Mrs. E. Denemark's 4-year-old Blackwood. King Nadi was second and Devon third. The race was run over a slow, drying-out track. Only four starters faced the barrier, Chicago and Beauregard having been withdrawn.

Blackwood, away well, was rated along in second position to the quarter pole, where he was sent into the lead and continued gaining ground at each furlong pole to win easily with four lengths to spare. King Nadi, away fast, set the pace for the first two furlongs, then hung in closest pursuit during the remainder of the race to take second place by a length and a half. Devon, always close up, held on well in the final drive to take the show money by eight lengths. Wacker Drive, the only other starter, failed to show any speed.

The win by Blackwood added $1,150 to the coffers of Mrs. E. Denemark. The winner paid $4.14 for a $2 mutuel.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—HERRICK, $9.23, $4.26 out; ESKIMO, $5.44, out; PIGEON HOLE, no show.

HERRICK was reserved closely behind ESKIMO to the main stretch and, when seemingly tiring, came again near end to outgame latter. ESKIMO saved all possible ground while setting pace, held on gamely when put to a drive and only faltered final seventy yards. PIGEON HOLE was rated wide on the turn by the veteran Pronk and finished courageously when straightened out. VIRADO was forced back midway of the stretch.

SECOND RACE—Five and one-half furlongs. Purse, $1,200. The Miami Valley. For maiden 2-year-olds. Start good. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 2:30. Off at 2:32. Winner, S. C. Lyne's ch. f. Two-dollar mutuels paid—SIS AGNES, $14.38, $6.96, $5.42; ZIRCON, $4.92, $4.24; TRULY MOVIN', $8.70.

SIS AGNES, away well and displaying a liking for the mud, was sent into a good lead on the turn and, increasing advantage through stretch, was never in danger. ZIRCON under pressure throughout, but forced slightly wide on the turn, held on stubbornly to outstay TRULY MOVIN'. Latter, outpaced to the stretch, closed resolutely, but faltered slightly when in full stride. MADCAP MARVIN, far in the rear, closed an immense rush in final eighth. SWEEPING WILLOW tired badly after reaching main stretch. DORITA was never a factor.

THIRD RACE—Mile and seventy yards. Purse, $1,200; claiming. For 3-year-olds. Start good. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 3:00. Winner, T. H. McCaffrey's ch. g. Two-dollar mutuels paid—BILLIE LEONARD, $5.16, $3.76, $2.84; EAGER PLAY, $4.06, $3.40; CHIZ, $8.28.

BILLIE LEONARD, under stout restraint first half mile, was forced wide while improving into third back stretch and, continuing gamely when straightened in stretch, easily held opposition safe thereafter. EAGER PLAY was sent into a contending position at the turn, made a determined effort midway of the stretch, but was held in close quarters by winner. CHIZ closed strongly on inside last quarter. MARY McCLAIN raced forward throughout, but tired badly when called upon for drive in stretch. SANDY RIVER had no mishaps. LAMKIN cut sharply across field soon after start, causing a jam and was weakly handled thereafter.

FOURTH RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,200; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 3:23. Off at 3:25. Winner, Audley Farm's br. g. Two-dollar mutuels paid—NICARABUA, $6.26, $4.76, $3.44; GOLD BET, $14.62, $6.18; ROYAL SON, $3.30.

NICARAGUA, displaying good early speed, was sent into a long lead first half mile and, holding on better than usual, lasted to hold GOLD BET safe. Latter was hustled into contention soon after start, moved up steadily when straightened out in stretch and just failed to get up. ROYAL SON, never far back, but forced wide into stretch, closed gamely under severe punishment. ALLEGIANCE was allowed to race far back most of the trip and would have been a formidable contender under better handling. The SOUTHERNER was always outrun.

FIFTH RACE—One mile. Purse, $1,300; allowances. The Cincinnati Rotary Club. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 3:52. Off at 3:53. Two-dollar mutuels paid—GEORGE McCRANN, $29.14, $7.28, $3.54; LORD BRAEDALBANE, $2.78. LION HEART, $3.52.

GEORGE McCRANN, under slight restraint until reaching far turn and taken to extreme outside through stretch, was lucky to get up final strides. LORD BRAEDALBANE, forward under steadying restraint, took command when sent through on the inside entering stretch and, it appeared as if Pascuma was unaware of GEORGE McCRANN'S move on outside. LION HEART was hard hustled throughout and held on gamely in the drive.

GALLANT KNIGHT, much the best, took command at start, shook off RING TRUE rounding far turn and, racing into a long lead on the turn, won well in hand. CORAL BEACH, forward from the start, was forced back on the turn, but came again when SPANISH JACK closed a good gap final eighth. SPANISH JACK made a determined bid, but faltered badly in the final drive. EILWEIR swerved badly when tiring through stretch.

LEGION NINES APPEAL TO NATIONAL SERIES DIRECTOR

Interpretation Of Rules Is Sought

Limiting of Scholastc Athletes Would Be Blow to Clubs.

THE task of untangling the most recent troubles of the local American Legion series will be turned over to Dan Sowers, national director of the Americanism Commission of the American Legion, who is in Washington arranging for the No. 10 regional series to be played in American League Park August 20, 21 and 22.

At a meeting last night of the managers of the seven teams involved in the local championship series it was decided to place before the national director personally the question as to whether teams shall be limited to drawing players from more than one high school.

Although a national ruling was made before the start of the series prohibiting teams from signing players from more than one high school, an agreement was made among the managers to disregard this ruling. W. W. Watt, manager of the local series, recently received instructions from the national commission to see that the rule relative to school players be enforced.

Teams May Withdraw If Rule Is Enforced

Several of the teams have threatened to withdraw from the series if the rule is now enforced. In several instances teams would be almost completely depleted of players if the ruling is now placed in effect.

The local officials are uncertain of the correct interpretation of the ruling. The rule states that players may be signed from one high school only. Whether the rule means boys who have played on school teams or who merely attend school is the point in dispute.

Managers of the teams are awaiting anxiously the ruling of the national director. The games played to date will stand as played, it was decided at last night's meeting. The decision given by Sowers will be forwarded to the team managers tonight and a meeting will likely be called before Sunday, Watt stated, to determine what effect the ruling will have on the various teams.

Saturday and Sunday Games to Be Played.

The games scheduled for Saturday and Sunday will be played without regard to the high school regulation, Manager Watt announced last night.

A ruling, prohibiting managers and coaches from coaching base runners on the field unless in uniform was also handed down last night. Umpires will be instructed to carry out this rule.

An attempt to exempt four of the five Washington high schools from the ruling concerning high school players was made when the issue was raised that under the original corporate limits of the City of Washington only Business High School comes within that area.

Allen, Reds Outfielder, To Get College Degree

Cincinnati, June 12 (A.P.).—Ethan Allen, Cincinnati National League outfielder, will receive a bachelor of arts degree in physical education at the University of Cincinnati commencement exercises here Saturday.

It took Allen seven years to earn his degree because he was absent from classes while playing with the Reds. He is 25 years old.

seventh. The final effort resulted from one-basers off the bats of Gardner and Jamieson, with Shaute's third sacrifice of the game separating the blows.

Barnes and Ruel, who has been hitting hard and timely of late, accounted for half of Washington's hits, getting two safeties apiece. Fonseca and Morgan were nigh guns for the visitors. The latter cracked out a triple, double and single, while Fonseca had a double and two one-basers to show for his sticking efforts.

WILL REORGANIZE

All former Brown and Wood players are requested to meet tomorrow night at 9 o'clock at the home of Manager Fenwich. Unversagt, Thompson and Berger are also asked to attend.

DAWSON REACHES 4TH ROUND IN ENGLAND

One favorite had to pass out of the picture when Tolley and Grant met. The big Englishman held the advantage from the tee, and finished with an eagle 3 at the 457-yard fifteenth with a drive, mashie and long putt.

With haze thick over the English Channel and ships bellowing fog signals Dawson started his match against MacCormack, long and supple Irishman, who drives tremendous distances. MacCormack, holder of many Irish honors, was wounded in the spine during the World War and for years wore a steel jacket to support his body.

Dawson and Foe Alternate In Holding Long Putts.

The Chicago player's victim in the afternoon was a golfer of the old Scottish school. Guy Campbell, sturdily built veteran, who used a huge, old-fashioned wooden putter with a face big enough to hit four balls at one time. Campbell handled this relic with deadly precision at times. He started by winning the first two holes, but later it failed him and Dawson took five straight.

After the turn the players alternated in holing long putts. Dawson seemed likely to win 2 up and 1 to play, but Campbell rolled a long putt down to stretch the match to the home green.

The visitor from the United States had a chance to observe British sartorial individuality. MacCormack played in close-fitting riding breeches and a tight leather jacket, making his tall form appear as thin as a rail. Campbell was garbed in baggy, old trousers and a loose-fitting sweater, which he kept pinned up in tucks with large safety pins to prevent flopping like a loose sail.

Wales' Own Game Prevents Attendance at Match.

The Prince of Wales was in the gallery at St. George's today, but did not see Dawson play. The prince was too busy playing himself before and after watching Tolley and Grant, but he did stop Joshua Crane and asked to be permitted to see the Boston veteran's baby putter. Lord and Lady Astor came over, however, from "Millionaires' Corner" and followed the young American to victory.

Late in the evening the prince took Roger Wethered out for a round over St. George's. The suggestion was made that the prince was about to pass on to Wethered some of the tips he gained from Walter Hagen in his recent match with the American pro as a partner. In his championship match today Wethered needed the prince. Hagen and his sister, Joyce, for he played about the wildest round of golf ever seen in the championship. He hit shots everywhere but in the channel.

Baugh and Crane meet tomorrow morning.

Dawson's opponent tomorrow morning will be Edward P. Kyle, whose address is Kuala Lumpur, Malay States, a native of St. Andrews. Kyle was a semifinalist in the amateur championship in 1913.

Almost the Naked Truth

By JAMES S. COLLINS

NEW YORK, June 12 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—Claude Bracey, the Rice Institute sprinting star, who was beaten by George Simpson in Chicago Saturday, when Simpson stuck out his tongue at the finish of a record-breaking 100-yard dash, is one man who does not share the belief that Simpson's time of 9.4 seconds represents the limit of human speed. Bracey thinks the century can be reeled off in 9.3 seconds and possibly in 9 1-5. Furthermore, he believes that he, himself, is the man who can do it. The tall Texan, who is here to compete in the Wingate memorial fund games at the Yankee Stadium next Monday, said today that he would go after the record in the A. A. U. national championships at Denver next month.

"I had an idea that I was going to break the record in Chicago Saturday," said Bracey. "For that reason I refrained from using the starting blocks so that there could be no question of accepting the record if I made one. Simpson ran a great race. I think I was gaining on him at the finish, but just failed to catch him. Well, we'll meet again."

"If you think it's easy to beat men like Eddie Tolan, of Michigan; Frank Wykoff and Russell Sweet, of California; Percy Williams, of Canada, and Karl Wildermuth, of Georgetown, just try to do it some time," said Mr. Bracey.

No. Mr. Bracey; you try it.

Mike Brady's Elimination Irony of Open Trials.

Casualties of qualifying play for the national open championship include some distinguished golfers, such as Chick Evans, Jess Sweetser, Jess Guilford and Watts Gunn, but the most tragic case of all is that of the veteran Mike Brady, who fell by the wayside at Salisbury. The open championship will be played on Brady's home course, Winged Foot, and he had high hopes of winning there a title that twice eluded him by slender margins. His dismal failure at Salisbury was the more surprising because he had been playing in splendid form lately, equaling the course record at the Mamaroneck (N. Y.) Club only last week. Now Mike will have to stand by as some other golfer goes on to glory on the course he knows so well. Truly, golf is a cruel mistress.

Eddie Driggs, of Lakeville, is one young man who will bear a lot of watching when the big doings start at Winged Foot. Recently he has copped the Cherry Valley invitation tournament, defeated George Voigt for the Long Island title and turned in a very creditable performance in qualifying for the national open. Driggs will not be among those present when play for the Metropolitan open championship starts at the Montclair Golf Club, choosing to conserve his energies for the big event at Mamaroneck.

Democratic Plan of Selection Shocks Tennis Circles.

The tennis world, which is always in the throes of great excitement over something or other, is deeply stirred by a revolutionary proposal made by P. Schuyler Van Bloem, president of the Eastern Lawn Tennis Association. Mr. Van Bloem wants to make open tournaments the sole basis of ranking players and determining their eligibility for membership on Davis Cup, Wightman Cup and sectional teams.

Since this policy would dim the luster of the big invitation meets, such as Longwood, Newport, Southampton, Sea Bright, East Hampton and Essex County, Mr. Bloem may as well realize right now that he will have to climb over a large number of inanimate bodies before he can put his plan into effect. Democratic theories are all right in their place, but their place does not seem to be lawn tennis.

National League Club in Detroit Proposed.

The Fisher brothers, of Detroit, are said to be interested in a project to put a National League club in that city. The St. Louis Cardinals are said to be the club they hope to acquire. Although the Cards have been in the thick of the fight for the league leadership, the patronage has been very poor and the league would welcome a shift to Detroit.

A lot of heavy negotiating will have to be done before the franchise can be transferred, however, since the consent of all the magnates in both leagues would have to be obtained. Frank J. Navin, principal owner of the Detroit Tigers, who now enjoys a big league baseball monopoly in the populous motor city, is reported to be favorably disposed toward the plan.

U. S. Racqueters Win Five Matches in Holland

Noordwyk, Holland, June 12 (A.P.)—The three American entries again provided most of the interest in the Dutch tennis championships today. Big Bill Tilden, Frank Hunter and Junior Coen swept through five matches in fine style.

In the men's singles Hunter and Coen each scored an easy victory to go into the quarter final round. Playing with too much speed and power for his opponent, Hunter defeated Daniel Nielsen, 6—2, 6—3, 6—2. His famous drive was good for many aces and seldom gave Nielsen a chance to score. The Kansas City youngster played an impressive game to dispose of Karnebeek, of Holland, in another straight set match. The scores were 6—3, 6—1, 6—0. Tilden still has to meet the young French Davis Cup reserve, Pierre Landry, before he can reach the last eight.

Big Bill's matches today were in the men's doubles paired with his old running mate, Hunter, and in the mixed doubles with Kea Bouman, the Dutch women's champion. The veteran American partners easily beat the Dutch team of Feith and Eilers, 6—2, 6—3, 6—2. With Miss Bouman, Tilden defeated the Hungarians, Kirchmayer and Mrs. Baitrock, 6—2, 6—2.

Coen and his partner, Hans Timmer, of Holland, eliminated Patterson, captain of the Egyptian Davis Cup Team, and Broese van Groenom, president of the Dutch Tennis Association, 6—3, 6—2, 6—3, in the doubles.

BUSMEN TO PRACTICE.

The A. B. & W. Bus Nine, which meets the St. Mary's Celtics at Alexandria Sunday, will stage a practice session at 5 p. m. today on the Arlington field.

DRILL FOR NAT CIRCLES.

The Nat Circles, scheduled to play the Indianhead Cards at Waldorf Sunday at 2:30, will practice on the Plaza tomorrow at 5 o'clock. All players are requested to report.

CRONINS CHALLENGE.

The Cronin Insects would like to arrange a game for Saturday or Sunday with some team having a diamond. Phone Manager Chewning at Adams 8995 between 5:30 and 6:30 p. m.

EDMONDS CALLED OUT.

Edmonds players not reporting for practice on the College Park diamond tomorrow at 5 o'clock will not be allowed to play in Sunday's game, Manager Boehman announces.

NATS RETURN CAMPBELL TO SAINTS

White Sox Here Today; Barons Return Big Jim Weaver.

By FRANK H. YOUNG.

PITCHER ARCHIE CAMPBELL was returned to the St. Paul American Association Club by the Nationals yesterday, his departure bringing the Nats' player list down to the required 25, which limit must be reached by all big league clubs by Saturday.

Campbell was obtained in the draft last fall and the Nats were compelled to return him to that club in view of its claim for his return in case he failed to make good here. President Griffith, however, took advantage of the Saints' anxiety to get the flinger by sending him back provided St. Paul turns over Pitcher Joe Giard, former St. Louis southpaw, to the Washington-owned Atlanta Crackers.

Manager Russell (Lena) Blackburne leads his Chicago White Stocking brigade into town for a four-game series which starts this afternoon and which concludes the stand against Western invaders. Manager Walter Johnson held over Garland Braxton to do the mound-work in the hope of getting the Nats off to a flying start.

While the Chisox appear to have no color as a team, Art Shires, young first sacker, is full of it. After losing the captaincy of the team by cutting up at the spring training camp, Shires a month or so ago showed how colorful he is by appearing on the diamond wearnig a red fedora. He then decorated his boss' eye with a black-and-blue effect in an argument which followed orders to remove the "lid."

Shires, who chews the largest cud of tobacco in baseball, if not in the world, is now back in good standing with the White Sox and will be seen in action at first base here this afternoon.

"Big Jim" Weaver, the largest pitcher in captivity, has been returned to the Nationals by the Birmingham Southern Association Club. President Griffith, however, has wired the Barons to keep the "man mountain" there while he finds a spot in which to place him, as Manager Johnson is satisfied that he would be of no help to the Washington Club.

The Return of OLD KING BRADY

Revived by MERLE W. HERSEY

(Copyright Protected Reproduction in Whole or in Part Prohibited.)

In the fourth chapter Harry is taken to an old hut where he discovers the father of Tom to be one of a gang of outlaws. He hates Big Bart Brown and seeks revenge. Meanwhile Old King Brady sat beside the hamper until dawn. Then ex-Sheriff Braxton wanders out of the forest; he has been wounded in the fight to protect the banker's money.

TRAPPING THE "TERROR" OF TODDLETON.

CHAPTER V.

Old King Brady Heads for Toddleton.

WHEN the sheriff sank unconscious at his feet Old King Brady pulled out his whisky flask and soon had Braxton sitting up.

After a few minutes' conversation the old detective was assured that Braxton was all he claimed to be and then he told him all that had occurred.

The sheriff then explained that his cousin, Mr. Turner, had feared that he would be robbed and, there being no express company to trust the money to, had adopted the plan to bluff Big Bart Brown, which has already been told. The attack had been made on the sheriff between Gunyon and the old house. He had no idea who the men were as they wore masks. The man in the buggy with him was killed, but Braxton managed to give the outlaws the slip. He was not as badly hurt as they had supposed.

"Wandering down the Blueburg road he met Old King Brady as has been told.

"And now what are we to do?" he asked. "My cousin is wandering around here in the forest mad; poor Ellen in the hands of Big Bart Brown. What shall we do?"

"We must trap this fellow if we can," replied the detective. He spoke confidently, but as a matter of fact he doubted being able to get into Blueburg without being overtaken by the outlaw band.

But in that he was mistaken. They made the journey safely and before noon Braxton was in his home, and Old King Brady had delivered the hamper to the superintendent of the Comet Lead Mine, who was to be Turner's associate in the bank.

Mr. Jasper was greatly excited on hearing the story. "It's an outrage; something definite ought to be done at once to put down this band."

"Leave it to me," replied Old King Brady. He left the mine office and went directly to see Braxton and had a long talk with him. The sheriff was quite comfortable and found his injuries were slight.

"If you can trust me, Mr. Brady, I'll do my best to spring the trap on the Terror of Toddleton after you have led him into it."

"Settled," said the old detective, and he withdrew.

Half an hour later he was on his way to the foothills of the Ozarks again. Many saw him leave town, but did not connect him with the man who came in with the sheriff. No one is more clever at disguising himself than Old King Brady.

Now he was gotten up with particular care, thanks to certain articles which he carried concealed in the secret pockets of the wonderful blue coat and certain other articles contained in a paintbox. He closely resembled an old German peddler.

Meanwhile Mr. Jasper was pursuing other methods. Blueburg was in a state of alarm and the streets were full of excited men rushing about here and there getting ready for the raid.

Old King Brady had secured a horse and pushed on to the old house in the forest. Before reaching the ruin he carefully concealed his horse, and went forward cautiously on foot. Big Bart had evidently been there for the bodies of his followers had been removed. The others were still there. He hurried upstairs and found the peddler's pack; returned to the horse and took the narrow wood trail behind the tavern.

He felt certain this trail led to Toddleton. The detective soon came on rising ground and after ascending a steep slope came to a place where there was a break about 4 feet wide and then the trail plainly visible on the other side. Old King Brady made a detour and coming back on a gallop the horse took the break easily, and he was soon riding through a dense mass of undergrowth. After covering about 2 miles the old detective came out upon a set of bars reaching from tree to tree and standing higher than his head. No horse could possibly penetrate the undergrowth on either side.

Upon the topmost bar were three human skulls stuck on sharp sticks and beneath them the words rudely scrawled:

"Strangers beware. To advance means death."

"Well, what am I to do?" thought Old King Brady. For a time he sat there watching. In a short while he heard horses coming along the trail in his rear.

"I'm in for it now!" he thought. As quickly as possible he dismounted and prepared to receive the enemy.

"Ah, how you vas, schentlemen?" he called, cutting off a big piece of sausage. "Fine day. Mebbe you can tell me vedder dis road didn't lead novere or schust py de negst town." He eyed them serenely. He felt sure he was face to face with Big Bart Brown at last.

Harry Rescues Ellen Turner.

"There, you Brady, that's Toddleton. If yew want to back out, now's yer time."

Jed Hurley and Harry stood on a flat rock looking down at a collection of a dozen or more rude log huts some 500 feet below. Slovenly women and half-naked children were moving about. It was as snug a holdout for outlaws as Young King Brady had ever seen.

"I've no notion of going back, Jed," said Harry.

"You're a slick one. But it's death to a stranger to go into Toddleton. They'll kill you sure." He glanced at Harry's suit—one of Tom's. "You look yer part, but Bart Brown is hard to fool."

Young King Brady did not stop for more but hurried down the steep path which was to take him to Toddleton. As he drew near the bottom of the steep descent he saw several horses feeding at the edge of the woods. He sat down and looked toward the village. It was yet early in the morning. He wondered where all the men were. As he was watching a party of eight men came riding into the clearing from the forest on the other side.

One was a man of enormous stature and Harry knew him to be Big Bart Brown.

"Now is my time," thought Young King Brady. "It's a bold bluff, but nothing else is going to suit my play this deal."

He ran swiftly out from among the trees. He caught one of the horses and threw himself on his back, holding on by the mane he went galloping toward the huts. At the same time he whipped out a harmonica and began to play. He cut a wild figure as he dashed on.

"Git off that hoss!" shouted a man as he rode in among the huts, and Young King Brady slipped to the ground. His face wore a broad smile and he kept right on playing until he had finished his tune.

"Howdy! How do you like my tune?" he cried with a silly laugh, and broke out with the "Suwanee River." He soon had the impression firmly fixed in the minds of the outlaws that he was little better than an idiot.

"Whoever he is he must be kept in here," said Big Bart Brown. "We must get back to the old house and bury the boys." Soon after he rode away with five or six of his fellows.

The men who remained paid little attention to him. It was not long before he found himself with the run of the camp. It did not take him long to discover the hiding place of Ellen. This was a small hut at the end of the settlement.

After dinner was over Harry wandered away in the direction of the solitary hut and threw himself down on the grass nearby, where he lay for a long time apparently asleep. At last, when everything was as quiet as it was likely to be, Young King Brady began to creep cautiously up behind the hut. No one noticed him.

There was a window in the back and Harry ventured to look in. Stretched upon an old mattress lay Ellen Turner. She seemed to be sleeping, her hands tied behind her.

"It's now or never," thought Harry and he climbed boldly through the window. The girl wakened with a sudden start.

"Hush!" breathed Harry. "I am here to save you. Listen to me and follow me."

"Anywhere! My poor father—have you seen him?"

"He is all right. Don't worry." He cut her hands free and helped her through the window. He kept close to the hut until she had gained the cover of the woods.

He was about to make the start himself when all at once a clatter of hoofs was heard, accompanied by loud shouts. His heart sank. He crept to the end of the hut and peered around the corner. It was Big Bart back again with five of his men.

"Up! Up! All hands make ready!" he shouted. "I've located the banker's money. We are off for Blueburg right now!"

Young King Brady decided that it was now or never, and dropping to his knees he crawled into the woods. In a moment he came up with Ellen at the foot of the hill.

THE MAN WHO KNOWS
608 12th St. N.W.
Over Woolworth's 5c & 10c Store

Do You Want to Know?
He Tells You the Truth, Good or Bad

Without asking any questions, this remarkably gifted man reveals your entire life from infancy to old age, giving dates, facts and figures, and guides you to success, health and happiness; settles lovers' quarrels; enables you to win the esteem and affection of any one you desire, causes speedy and happy marriages, tells if the one you love is true, restores lost affection, peace and confidence to lovers and discordant families, gives you the full secret how to control the thoughts and actions of any you desire.

Something tells you this is the man. You feel the impulse to call. Do not delay.

With NELSON B. BELL

A small and excessively select group of the intelligentsia were regaled by a preview showing of "The Valiant" at the Fox Theater last Tuesday midnight and, considering the limited number in the audience, a large number of tears were shed. Bishop Rothafel, who recently ran this picture at his cathedral in New York, emphasized the lachrymose qualities of the subject in his newspaper ads by remarking that "it will bring a tear—but it is worth a tear." Although I have no intention of reviewing "The Valiant" in this issue of The Post, I am inclined to the opinion that the bishop was correct.

The picture and its star, Paul Muni, both are of interesting history. "The Valiant" was written by Holworthy Hall—whose baptismal name happens to be Harold Everett Porter—and Robert Middlemass, and was first presented in one-act form at one of the Lambs' Gambols. There was an immediate scramble among the members of the club for acting rights to what was at once recognized as an unusually forceful playlet. Bert Lytell was the lucky one and appeared in the sketch from time to time—whenever other engagements were not forthcoming, as a matter of fact—and two or three times was seen in it here at Keith's before that worthy institution became defunct.

In course of time the property was acquired by Winfield Sheehan, vice president and general manager of Fox, and was adapted to the uses of the screen, as a feature-length talkie, by Tom Barry and John Hunter Booth, two experienced playwrights. It is this version that will be publicly displayed at the Fox, come Saturday.

The star of the picture is Paul Muni, little known to picture fans, but a young actor, nevertheless, with an intensely naturalistic method and an ample equipment, at least, for his present role. Mr. Muni is an Austrian by birth, whose real name is Muni Weisenfried. He began his public career as a boy violinist at the age of 6, when he went on tour with his parents.

His first American engagement, as I understand it, was with a Boston stock company, after which he became active in "arty" movements of various obscure sorts and guild productions. It was through this latter activity that he came to the attention of Sam Harris, who engaged him for a part in "We Americans," after which he was seen in "Four Walls." He is now under long-term contract to Fox for talking pictures, of which "The Valiant" is the first.

And that, believe it or not, is how I came to know your grandmother!

Incidentally, word has just come from New York that all silent pictures have been eliminated from the schedule of bookings for the local Fox House. The new alignment begins with "The Valiant" on Saturday, and then includes in the order named, "Father and Son," with Jack Holt; Victor McLaglen in "The Black Watch," now playing the Astor in New York at $2 top, and "Behind That Curtain," an articulate screen version of the Earl Derr Biggers story, costarring Warner Baxter and Lois Moran.

It occurs to me that Frankie Darro and Marian Nixon both might wonder what has happened to their reputations were they to read that they are newcomers to the films, making their first important bids for public favor with Eddie Dowling in "The Rainbow Man" current at the Columbia.

Frankie Darro was born in Chicago in 1918 and has had a wide screen experience for one of his years, having been importantly cast in "Judgment of the Hills," "The Desert Pirate," "Little Mickey Grogan," "When the Law Rides," "Terror Mountain," "The Circus Kid," and various other releases of F. B. O. and other representative producing companies.

Miss Nixon has been in pictures since 1922, prior to which she was a dancer in vaudeville. Among the prominent films in which she has appeared are "Red Lips," "Geraldine," "Taxi, Taxi," "Out All Night," "Thoroughbreds" and "Out of the Ruins."

Oh, Mabelle, yoo-hoo! If John Irving Fisher is practically on the train for St. Louis, he hasn't heard anything about it yet and neither has the management of the Fox where he is continuing blithely as gabster of ceremonies, as this is written. Careful of those butter cakes that late at night!

I see by the papers that Tom Moore is in New York peddling eye-wash for the celluloids. The chemical solution he and Lawrence L. Steele, formerly of the Bureau of Standards, have perfected in their Essem Laboratories, out on Columbia road, makes the film more durable, unscratchable, non-shrinkable and self-supporting, not to mention the ease with which it removes all mechanical noises from sound-film made by the Movietone process—or any other which records directly on celluloid instead of on a disc. Not to be taken internally!

By the way, how did your name get on that list they took away from the "big shot?"

COMING ATTRACTIONS

NATIONAL.

For the week beginning next Monday, June 17, the National Theater Players will present Sam Janney's satirical comedy, "Loose Ankles," a play that has a Broadway record behind it and which captivated the country on its Nation-wide tour. This marks its first appearance as part of the National Theater Players' repertoire. The usual matinees will be given on Wednesday and Saturday.

A farce-comedy, really, "Loose Ankles" is a laugh-provoking vehicle from beginning to end. It has no object other than sheer entertainment. A gentle satire on a certain type of young man prevalent in some of the more modish dance halls, "Loose Ankles" tells the story of a fellow who hires himself out to ladies much older than himself, the ostensible purpose being the art of terpsichore. There is a name for this sort of young man, and the French call him "gigilo." The play's action revolves about a young girl, an heiress, who inherits her fortune with the provision that she marry a man who has the approval of her immediate family. Rebellious by nature, this young lady seeks the disapproval of her relatives rather than their favor, and so starts out on a rampage. To throw consternation into the camp, she hires a young man to place her in what really amounts to a compromising situation. Thus the story starts.

Miss Edith King and Mr. Roger Pryor, playing the leads of the National Theater Players, will carry the important roles and other members of the company have sterling characterizations in the parts assigned them. "Loose Ankles" is the type of play with which the National Theater Players have made their greatest strides in Washington.

MARSHALL HALL

The steamer Charles Macalester carries crowds as usual this season to Washington's oldest and favorite down the river resort—Marshall Hall. Rich in romance and historical lore, Marshall Hall for many years has been the rendezvous for Washingtonians and natives of nearby States. There are many amusement devices to be enjoyed when one reaches the resort, such as the roller coaster, the dip, carrousel whip, aeroplane ride, &c. Dancing may be enjoyed in the large open air pavillion. The steamer makes three trips daily and Sunday. It leaves the Seventh street wharf at 10 a. m., 2:30 and 6:45 p. m. except Sunday, when the sailing is delayed until 10:30 o'clock.

GLEN ECHO PARK.

Washington has in Glen Echo Park an amusement resort that stands second to none in layout, recreational devices, and courteous efficient management. Brought conveniently near by cars of the Washington Railway & Electric Co., or by motor over excellent roads, the free admission resort is enjoying popularity. Here on the coaster dip, the derby racer, or the airplane swing may be found many thrills. Other amusements are the old mill, ever popular merry-go-round, better known in some sections as the carrousel, scooter, midway, and nearly half a hundred other devices. In the ballroom music is furnished by McWilliams' Orchestra nightly except Sunday, from 8:30 until 11:30 p.m.

SYLVAN THEATER.

"Sherwood," Alfred Noyes' forest drama relating the poetic life of "Robin Hood and the Three Kings," in Sherwood Forest, will be presented at the Sylvan Theater, in the Monument Grounds, on Thursday evening of next week, June 20, by the Community Drama Guild, of Washington, with a cast of local players, singers and dancers, under the direction of J. Milnor Dorey, formerly of the Beachwood Community Theater.

BALLOU ADVOCATES CHANGES IN 5-YEAR PLAN FOR SCHOOLS

Abandonment, Transfer and Modification Is Urged in Report to Board.

ABBOT AND PHILLIPS JOBS HELD NEEDLESS

Other Projects Necessary on Account of Shifting Population.

The abandonment, transfer and modification of a large number of projects authorized in the first five-year school building program, but for which appropriations have not yet been made, were recommended in a report on the status of the program submitted yesterday by Dr. Frank W. Ballou, superintendent of schools, to the Board of Education.

Projects recommended for abandonment included a site and eight-room addition for the Abbot School, an eight-room addition to the Phillips elementary School, additional land for the Smothers and Wilson Schools, and playground space for the Ludlow and Sumner-Magruder Schools.

In giving his reasons for the necessity of abandonment of these projects, Dr. Ballou pointed out that the Abbot building already has been abandoned for elementary school purposes, being used entirely for vocational school training; the opening and expansion of the Francis Junior High School and the shifting racial population make the contemplated addition to the Phillips School unnecessary and the amount of land originally purchased for the Smothers additions appears to be sufficient for the extension.

Transfers Recommended.

Projects recommended for transfer elsewhere include the authorization for a four-room addition to the Kenilworth School; site and four-room addition for the Lenox building; eight-room addition for the new Bell School; site and eight-room building for a new school in the vicinity of the Lovejoy; six-room addition at the Crummell; four-room addition at the Military Road and four-room addition at the Reno Schools.

Dr. Ballou stated that these projects can not be abandoned because the school children whom these buildings were designed to accommodate are attending the public schools in other sections of the city and are necessary in order to care for the rapidly shifting school population to the communities now being built up.

Modifications Urged.

Abandonment of the four rooms at the Truesdell and construction of eight rooms of modern type; purchase of a new site and construction of a modern eight-room building in lieu of the authorization of a four-room addition at the Keene; abandonment of plans for the construction of eight additional rooms above the present Bancroft School and purchase of a suitable site for an addition; abandonment of the twelve-room addition plan for the Fairbrother School until a later date, and abandonment of replacement plans for the old Bell-Cardozo School in lieu of a plan calling for the replacement of the Randall School.

Apartment Official Fined for Grocery

Director of Valley Vista Is Assessed $100 in Zone Violation Case.

Theodore Michaels, vice president of the fashionable Valley Vista Apartment Building, Belmont road and Ashmead place northeast, was fined $100 by Judge Gus A Schuldt yesterday in Police Court on a charge of violation of the District zoning rules by operation of a grocery store in the building, which is situated in a residential area.

The magistrate also ordered the store, which was adjudged a common nuisance by the verdict, abated. Michaels' personal recognizance was taken on a charge of operating an unlicensed grocery store.

Michaels was found guilty of the charges by a jury last Thursday. The defense contended that the store was a purchasing club maintained for the exclusive benefit of tenants of the apartment building. The prosecution, conducted by Assistant Corporation Counsel Chester Gray, contended the place was a grocery store operating under the guise of a supply room for the tenants and introduced evidence tending to show that nonresidents of the building had made purchases in the store on several occasions.

Chef Becomes Insane From Excessive Heat

Reported to have gone suddenly insane, Samuel Giles, colored, 39 years old, of 409 P street northwest, ran amuck in the New England Restaurant, at Ninth and F streets northwest, where he was employed as chef, shortly after noon yesterday. A crowd of several hundred persons gathered.

Four policemen from the First Precinct were needed to subdue him. He was taken to Gallinger Hospital in a patrol wagon. Giles had been employed as chef since 1924 at the restaurant. Yesterday's heat is said to have aggravated his mental disturbance.

Man Thrown From Auto Succumbs to Injuries

Injuries received when he was thrown from an automobile in front of 4976 Sheriff road northeast on June 8, yesterday proved fatal to Robert Houston, colored, 40 years old, 85 Fenton street northeast, who died yesterday morning at Walter Reed Hospital.

Houston was riding in an automobile said by police to have been operated by James A. Turner, colored, of 911 Fenton street northeast. The automobile skidded and struck a tree.

Child Slightly Hurt In Fall.

Doris Jean Kegloe, 6 years old, of Mount Rainier, Md., was treated at Emergency Hospital by Dr. Leon Gordon yesterday afternoon for injuries to her forehead and arm, received when she tripped while running down the stone steps at the Lincoln Memorial. Her injuries were not serious, and she was later taken to her home by her parents, with whom she had been sight-seeing.

"Y" DIRECTOR GETS HONORARY DEGREE

W. K. Cooper Receives Scroll at District of Columbia College Exercises.

DIPLOMAS ARE AWARDED

William Knowles Cooper, retiring general secretary of the Y. M. C. A., was awarded the honorary degree of doctor of laws at commencement ceremonies of the District of Columbia College last night in Memorial Continental Hal.

Forty-seven graduates of the college were given degrees in law or accountancy and graduates of the Washington Preparatory School and the Woodward School for Boys, affiliated with the Y. M. C. A. institution, were given diplomas.

Representative Clyde Kelly, of Pennsylvania, delivered the commencement address before a large audience of relatives and friends of the graduates Huston Thompson, president of the Y. M. C. A. and chairman of the board of trustees of the college, paid tribute to Dr. Cooper for his long service in the Y. M. C. A. movement. All the degrees and diplomas were bestowed by Dr. James A. Bell, director of education of the college. The combined faculty of the college and associated schools marched onto the platform in cap and gown.

For "Service to Youth."

The honorary award to Dr. Cooper was made in recognition of "distinguished service to youth and to society in general." He will retire next October 1, after 21 years as secretary of the Washington Y. M. C. A. and nearly 40 years with the Y. M. C. A. He will devote his time to lecturing on current events and other educational topics.

Born and educated in Philadelphia Dr. Cooper fortook an early business career to enter Y. M. C. A. work at Norristown, Pa. Later he served in Brooklyn, N. Y., and Springfield, Mass. He was awarded the honorary degree of master of humanics by the Springfield College. He is nationally known in educational, philanthropic and religious fields.

The Rev. Dr. Homer J. Councilor opened the ceremonies with prayer. A musical program was rendered by Fritz Maile, violinist; Martin Dowd, pianist, and Roland Jones, cellist.

Rumrunners Who Killed Lutich Get New Trial

A new trial yesterday was granted Robert D. Dixon and William A. Rollins, negro rum runners, recently convicted on a manslaughter charge in connection with the death of John P. Lutich, 57 years old, last January 4, yesterday by Justice Frederick Siddons in criminal branch of the District Supreme Court.

Attorney James Cunningham, counsel for the prisoners, obtained the new trial with complaint that a member of the jury panel had failed to answer a question asked by the court concerning whether he had sat on the jury in a previous case where a verdict had been set aside. The magistrate held that if the juryman answered the question he would have been subject to a challenge from counsel in the trial.

Man Hurt as Car Overturns.

C. J. Sword, 27 years old, 309 Rock Creek Church road northwest, escaped fatal injury last night when the automobile which he was operating left a roadway in the Soldiers Home Grounds and rolled down an embankment near the Park road northwest entrance. Sword was treated at Garfield Hospital for a broken knee.

Capital Lawyer Plans to Marry.

Herschel E. Smith, 25 years old, a lawyer, of 1748 Q street northwest, and Miss Margaret Lamkin, 21 years old, 1025 South Twenty-sixth street, Birmingham, Ala., yesterday obtained a license to wed in New York City, and announced they would be married at once.

Park Sitters Imperiled by Falling Limb of Tree

Several persons escaped possible serious injury early last night when the branch of a giant tree in Lafayette Square crashed to the ground.

Warning was given to those near the tree by a loud crackling, similar to the discharge of firecrackers. The huge branch crashed into another branch, and both fell on several benches. M. E. Flynn, of Kansas City, and his wife and daughter were approaching one of the benches at the time. The collapse of the branch was caused by rotting, police said.

PROMINENT GUESTS AT MARRIAGE FETE

WERE WED 25 YEARS AGO

District Commissioner and Mrs. Sidney F. Taliaferro and several hundred other well-known Washingtonians last night attended the twenty-fifth wedding anniversary celebration of Mr. and Mrs. Henry C. Stein, of 35 Franklin street northeast, held at the temple of Stansbury Lodge, No. 24, F. A. A. M., Georgia and Colorado avenues northwest, under auspices of that and Brightwood Lodges and the Kallipolis Grotto.

Commissioner Taliaferro, Deputy Grand Monarch Edward W. Libbey, of the Grotto, Arthur Poynton, monarch of the District Grotto, Grand Master Wisdom Brown, past worshipful master Charles Sutphin, of Stansbury, and Past Grand Masters Joseph Milan and Gratz Dunkun gave addresses of felicitation. Worshipful Master Carroll L. Coakley, of Brightwood Lodge, presided.

Invocation by Celebrant.

The celebration was opened with an invocation by the Rev. Paul Rensen, who married Mr. and Mrs. Stein 25 years ago. It was preceded by an organ recital by Miss Lois Stunz, of the Petworth Methodist Episcopal Church, and a concert by the Grotto Band under the leadership of William Rankin.

Following the presentation of numerous gifts, which were handed to Mrs. Stein by Master of Ceremonies Carlton F. Howell, of the Grotto, Mr. Stein gave a short address in which he expressed his pleasure in serving through Masonic offices up to those of worshipful master of Brightwod and Stansbury lodges and chief justice of the Grotto.

Occupying Chairs of Honor.

Mr. and Mrs. Stein and their son occupied the three chairs of honor on the rostrum of the temple.

The addresses were followed by a vocal solo by A. Nelson Wilson and dancing and freshments, which included a huge four-tier wedding cake.

Mr. Libbey, who is chief clerk of the Department of Commerce, was presented with a traveling bag by the Grotto, and Mr. Poynton exhibited a gold ballot indorsing Mr Libby for the office of grand monarch at the national convention to be held on June 20.

Inspector and Mrs. Albert J. Headley and Capt. M. M. Barnard, superintendent of District penal institutions, were among those present.

Woman Bound to Jury In Effort to Burn Home

Accused of arson in connection with an alleged attempt to burn her own home, Mary E. Mullen, colored, of 2204 Ninth street northwest, was bound over to the grand jury in $3,000 bail yesterday by Judge John P. McMahon in Police Court.

The defendant's invalid mother, Lou Thompson, told the magistrate that her daughter poured kerosene on a chair and set it afire. The woman said she was unable to walk or crawl and was forced to roll herself away from the flames while her daughter watched her. Charles Lewis, colored, testified he noticed the smoke coming from the house while walking past and arrived in time to aid the invalid and extinguish the fire. The hearing was conducted by Assistant District Attorney Joseph C. Bruce.

469 DEGREES GIVEN AS G. W. U. HOLDS ANNUAL EXERCISES

Education Fundamentals Set Forth in Address of Dr. Meta Glass.

USELESS CHANGES HIT BY SWEET BRIAR HEAD

President Marvin Thanks Those Who Have Helped Add 20 Teachers to Staff.

While progressives in education have laid claim to many changes in methods of teaching and in courses laid out for students in all schools, the fact remains that education depends upon two fundamentals upon which it has always depended, ability and personality of the student and ability and personality of the teacher, Meta Glass, Ph D., president of Sweet Briar College, declared last night in a commencement address at the 108th graduation exercises of George Washington University held in Washington Auditorium.

Diplomas and degrees were presented to 469 graduates of the various schools of the university. The list included 173 from Columbian College; 61 from the School of Medicine; 20 nurses; 80 from the Law School; 27 from the School of Engineering; 4 from the School of Pharmacy; 47 from the School of Education; 4 from the Division of Library Science; 3 from the Division of Fine Arts, and 48 from the Graduate School of Letters and Sciences.

The program opened with four organ selections played by Adolph Torovsky. A. A. G. O., after which prayer was offered by the Rev. James Leven McLain, D. D., pastor of Union Methodist Episcopal Church. Special attention was called to the fact that twin sons of Rev. McLain, George Henry McLain and John Edward McLain, were receiving degrees of Doctor of Medicine at the exercises.

Standard Educational Basis Urged.

Prof. Glass then delivered the commencement address, in which she declared that progression in education was necessary, but asserted that making of changes, without sufficient justification, was just the same as lauding something new simply because it was new. Prof. Glass made an urgent plea for the development of a standard foundation of knowledge for both parent and child, a common ground on which both could talk intelligently.

Present-day trend in education is toward rushing the child into the technique of one particular line instead of developing it broadly, it was said, and it was against this practice that Prof. Glass delivered her plea for uniformity in education.

Dr. Cloyd Heck Marvin, president of the university, took occasion to mention the generosity of friends and alumni of the school, who through their gifts have enabled the authorities to add 20 active instructors to the staff within a year. Dr. Marvin said the student body now numbers 7,500, the teaching staff more than 350, while the alumni in all parts of the world total 10,000.

Deans of the various schools read the names of the successful candidates for degrees, after which each class passed across the stage of the auditorium to receive diplomas. Thirty members of the class in the school of medicine have completed a course in the Reserve Officers Training Corps and will be recommended for commissions as first lieutenants in the Reserve Medical Corps.

NATIONAL UNIVERSITY GRADUATES TONIGHT

300 TO RECEIVE DEGREES

Merle Thorpe, editor of "Nation's Business," of the United States Chamber of Commerce, will be the principal speaker at the sixteenth annual commencement exercises of National University law school and the school of economics and government at 8 o'clock tonight in Memorial Continental Hall.

Charles F. Carusi, chancellor of the university and president of the Board of Education, will preside at the exercises, at which more than 300 will receive degrees, including 84 post-graduate students. Mr. Justice Frederick L. Siddons, senior member of the faculty, will introduce the principal speaker.

Two honorary degrees of doctor of laws will be awarded—one to Dr. William Mercer Sprigg, a Washington physician, and one to Mr. Merle Thorpe. In addition, the school will award fourteen higher degrees, two doctor of civil laws, nine doctor of juridical science, and three doctor of jurisprudence.

Norwood P. Cassidy, of the class of 1929, will deliver the valedictory address, and Rev. James Shera Montgomery pastor of the Metropolitan Memorial Methodist Episcopal Church and chaplain of the United States House of Representatives, will give the invocation and benediction.

Mr. Justice Jennings Bailey, of the Supreme Court of the District, and a member of the law faculty, will distribute the various medals and prizes. Much interest is being taken in who will win the various awards. Although greatly outnumbered, the women carried off most of the honors last year.

Woman Is Treated for Poisoning.

Mrs. Blanche Scott, 23 years old, a roomer at 415 East Capitol street, was treated last night at Sibley Hospital for poison, which, police said, she drank by mistake. She was taken to the hospital by her husband, Frederick Scott. Her condition was not serious. According to police of the Fifth Precinct, she mistook the acid poison for mouth wash in an unlighted bathroom.

TRIO HURT IN SERIES OF AUTO ACCIDENTS

ONE INJURED INTERNALLY

A truck driver, a taxicab driver and a pedestrian were injured last night in a series of varied automobile accidents.

Allen Murdock, 32 years old, 2306 Sixteenth street southeast, driver for the Potomac Electric Power Co., suffered concussion of the brain, a fractured skull and lacerations of the forehead when the motor of a truck he was cranking exploded and struck him with its broken fragments.

Thomas Pettit, 48 years old, 628 Massachusetts avenue southeast, suffered serious internal injuries when he was struck by an automobile said to have been driven by John Ford, 1841 Fifth street northwest, at Seventh street and Massachusetts avenue northwest.

Veterans Urge School Grounds Be Kept Open

The opening of high school stadiums and schoolhouse grounds for children to play in during the summer months was advocated in resolutions adopted at the meeting of the Veterans of Foreign Wars in the Pythian Temple Tuesday night.

It also was suggested that more care should be taken to make the playgrounds inviting to keep the children out of mischief and danger.

Officer Going to French School.

Capt. Grant A. Schlieker, of the Army, who is on duty with the first tank group at Fort Meade, Md., has been ordered to Versailles, France, where he will take a course at the French Tank School.

Church Carnival Plans Completed.

Plans have been completed by the parishioners of Holy Comforter Church for a carnival to be held in the school hall, Fourteenth and East Capitol streets, from July 30 to August 1, to reduce the debt of the church.

MUNICIPAL CENTER BILL UP TO HOOVER; PASSED BY SENATE

President's Signature Will Make $3,000,000 for Tract Available.

DISTRICT TO REQUEST $3,500,000 IN DECEMBER

Simmons Proposes That U. S. Buy District Building for $5,000,000.

The Senate adopted the Bingham-Simmons municipal center resolution yesterday, thus completing congressional action on that measure. It now goes to the White House for the President's signature.

The resolution appropriates $3,000,000 the first sum made available for the big project. This will be used to buy half of the land between Third and Sixth streets, Pennsylvania avenue and Judiciary Square, the area that has been selected as the site of an array of buildings to house the various activities of the local government. The project, it is expected, ultimately will cost between $30,000,000 and $35,000,000.

Under tentative plans, the District will start its building program at the northwest corner of Louisana avenue and Sixth street. On this corner it is proposed to erect a new Police Court Building to take the place of the sadly dilapidated structure across the way.

Will Ask for $3,500,000.

In order to start the building program, District leaders expected to ask Congress to make another appropriation of $3,500,000 at the December session of Congress.

Directly south of the Police Court Building, on the corner of Sixth street and Pennsylvania avenue, it is proposed to erect a new building to house the headquarters of the police and fire departments. The new building to take the place of the present District Building will be three blocks to the east, at Third street and Pennsylvania avenue.

The area north of that will be reserved for buildings to take care of the expansion of the District Building or the District Supreme Court. The District Court of Appeals will be housed in the Police Court Building.

Representative Simmons (Republican), of Nebraska, author of the resolution that was adopted yesterday, has submitted a plan to Secretary of the Treasury Mellon which would speed up the municipal center project by making a building fund of $5,000,000 immediately available.

Will Buy District Building.

The present District Building is located in the Pennsylvania Avenue-Mall triangle, within which the Federal Government is erecting a number of monumental office buildings, and eventually the Federal Government will have to buy the structure.

Simmons' plan is to have the Federal Government buy it immediately, thus making available $5,000,000 or so that the District Government can spend on the municipal center.

Secretary Mellon now has his experts studying the plan. If he approves it, Simmons probably will introduce the necessary legislation at the regular session of Congress next winter.

The $3,000,000 which is made available by the resolution adopted yesterday, will be drawn from a surplus which now is in the Treasury credited to the District of Columbia.

The task of buying the property, or of instituting condemnation proceedings, will be in the hands of Maj. L. H. Atkins, Assistant Engineer Commissioner. The perfecting of the plans for the actual construction work will be in charge of Municipal Architect A. L. Harris, who soon will return from Europe.

Diplomas Awarded At Frelinghuysen

Commencement exercises of Frelinghuysen University were held last night at the John Wesley African Methodist Episcopal Church, Fourteenth and Corcoran streets northwest. The address to graduates was made by the Rev. Frank E. Hearns. Certificates and diplomas were awarded fifteen students in academic, collegiate and professional courses by the Rev. W. D. Battle, president of the institution. The invocation was said by Dr. W. W. McCary and the benediction by the Rev. M. D. Tillman.

The list of graduates included:

Keenan Estate Contest Is Ended by Agreement

The contest over the estate of the late Henry F. Keenan was terminated yesterday in the District Supreme Court by an agreement reached among the parties interested as to the disposition of the $150,000 estate left by the deceased journalist.

By the terms of the settlement, the will of December 30, 1927, was allowed to be probated, but under the terms of the agreement the legatees, comprising in most part the next of kin of the deceased interested in the prior will, were satisfactorily provided for. Attorneys Wilton J. Lambert and R. H. Yeatman represented the heirs and legatees under the prior will, while the proponents of the latter testamentary writing were represented by Attorneys Hamilton & Hamilton and William E. Leahy.

Garfield Heights Group To Press Transit Fight

Members of the Garfield Civic Association, who met last night at the Garfield School to hear results of their petition to transit companies for better service to Garfield Heights, on learning that their action had been ignored, voted to take the matter up with the Public Utilities Commission. The community contains 450 residents, it was pointed out, and is entitled to a better transportation system than is now accorded it, from 6 o'clock until midnight.
